STATE INCOME TAX PASSES BY 1 VOTE MARGIN

Victory Blamed on Chicagoan.

Chicago poor relief bills advanced to third reading in each house, but downstate threatens fight which may result in their defeat. Details on Page 3.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—The state income tax bill was passed by the house of representatives today. The vote was 78 to 59. It already has gone through the senate, which is expected to concur tomorrow in house amendments, leaving Gov. Emmerson's approval, considered certain, to make it a law.

Seventy-seven votes were required for passage, and it is believed that total would not have been reached except for the favorable vote of one Chicagoan, George W. Blackwell of the First district, a Republican, and one of the five Negro members of the house. He was the only Cook county man that voted for the bill. He made the count 76. Then two downstaters, who probably would have remained silent under different circumstances, came in on the roll call of the absentees and put the bill over.

Court Test Certain.

While complete enactment, including favorable consideration by the governor, is considered certain, there is just as much certainty voiced about the prospect of a court test of the tax in the state Supreme court. There is pending an appropriation for the costs of collecting the tax, and the attack on the law probably will be in the form of an injunction to restrain the expenditure of money for this purpose.

Lawyers who have gone into the subject during the several sessions in which this tax has been a live issue are about equally divided as to its constitutionality. Many of them have said that such a levy is in violent conflict with the revenue section of the constitution of 1870 and that the high court of the state would so rule if it considered only the law aspects of the question.

REPORT CUBAN CITY IN RUINS AFTER TREMOR

Famed as Site of Morro Castle.

BULLETIN.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 3 (Wednesday). —(AP)— Two severe earth shocks, one at 4:30 p. m. yesterday, the second at 1:15 o'clock this morning, laid at least one third of Santiago in Ruins and resulted in a casualty list of probably 1,500 dead and injured.

ABOARD YACHT KENKORA OFF SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 3 (Wednesday.) — By Radio.—(AP)— Earth shocks between 1:15 and 1:30 o'clock this morning were observed on the mainland. From the yacht it appeared the damage to property had been heavy. It was not immediately ascertainable if there had been loss of life.

BULLETIN.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 3 (Wednesday)—(AP)—(3:55 a. m.)—One third of the city is in ruins and 1,500 persons, according to estimates, are dead, following two severe earth shocks here early today.

BULLETIN.

HAVANA, Feb. 3 (Wednesday.) —(AP)—Reports reaching the Spanish language newspaper El Mundo at 2 o'clock this morning said Santiago, Cuba, had been laid in ruins by an earthquake with a toll of 2,000 lives.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 3 (Wednesday).—An earthquake at 2:41 a. m. almost completely destroyed the city of Santiago this morning.

More than 1,000 are known to be dead. Several thousand more are injured. Five hundred houses were destroyed.

Virtually every building in the city, the population of which is 160,000, has been damaged if not completely razed by the eruption.

The quake lasted only thirty seconds, but in that brief time spread death, destruction, and terror throughout the city and its environs on the eastern tip of the island.

It was the first quake since 1852, but the sixth since the city was first settled, 8,000 feet above the Caribbean sea, in 1654.

Mass of Ruins.

Early reports indicated, however, that the center of the city, including Libertad park, was a mass of ruins. So, too, said the reports, were the many cathedrals, churches, public buildings, and power plants.

Every light in the city was extinguished.

Immediately after the shock the streets were filled with screaming, frenzied hordes, most of whom were either in night attire or hurriedly dressed in coats or shirts.

Many were wounded and the dead lay practically in every section of the city.

Havana Rushes Help.

Police and soldiers immediately took charge. They summoned every doctor and nurse from neighboring towns and set up improvised first aid hospitals for the wounded. Parties searched the ruined buildings and dragged the maimed out, frequently risking their own lives in smoking debris to do so. Aid has been rushed by train, boat, and plane from Havana. Troops also were rushed to the scene to prevent rioting.

Among the population are 40,000 whites, largely Americans. Just how many of the latter have

SANITARY TRIAL MAY END TODAY; SPEEDY VERDICT IS RUMORED

Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court, who is presiding over the graft conspiracy trial of Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district, and six other defendants, refused yesterday to give his reasons for directing that all the defendants be present in court when the closing arguments in the case are resumed this morning.

Today may be the last day of the trial. It was rumored in the Criminal court that Judge Fisher and his associates, Judges James J. Kelly and John Prystalski, who are sitting in an advisory capacity, will retire as soon as the closing arguments are completed and deliberate on a verdict to be returned at once.

The judges, it is reported, intend to act just as a jury would in a criminal case—retire, reach a verdict, and return it to court. The defendants would have to be present in court under such circumstances, it was pointed out.

Attorney Albert Fink, chief counsel for the defense, spent yesterday in getting his closing argument ready. He expects to conclude his argument within the day and Prosecutor John E. Northup will end the case with a thirty minute rebuttal.

The village of Palatine, which declared a five day business moratorium on Saturday, announced last night that confidence had been restored and that business would go on as usual today. Four days, it was said, proved sufficient to convince the people that conditions were sound.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday disposed of the long pending income tax cases against Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, the valley hoodlums who became beer magnates in the early years of Volsteadism. He sentenced Druggan to two and one-half years in prison and fined him $5,000. Lake was sentenced to 18 months in the penitentiary and fined $2,500.

JUDGE WILKERSON [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The sentence virtually concluded United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson's offensive against the "front rank" of Chicago's criminals, but federal agents are said to be preparing cases against those who aspire to the places of their fallen leaders.

Ten Gangsters Feel U. S. Lash.

Ten major gangsters have been sentenced to the penitentiary or placed in line for deportation since the federal prosecutor started his drive a little more than three years ago, using the income tax weapon for a flank attack on those otherwise immune. The gangsters punished besides Druggan and Lake are:

AL CAPONE, sentenced to eleven years in prison and fined $50,000 for income tax fraud.

RALPH CAPONE, three years, and $11,000 for tax fraud.

JACK GUZIK, five years and a day, and $17,500 for tax fraud.

SAM GUZIK, one year and a day, and $10,000 for tax fraud.

FRANK NITTI, eighteen months, and $10,000 for tax fraud.

JAMES BELCASTRO, deportation order expected soon.

All these gangsters were included in the list of "public enemies" prepared by the Chicago crime commission as targets for law enforcement activities in the summer of 1930. District Attorney Johnson had listed these and many others in his own files late in 1928.

Beer Boys to Prison Friday.

Druggan and Lake, whose pleas of guilty were entered a year ago, contingent on similar cases since upheld by the higher courts, will leave for Leavenworth penitentiary Friday night. They were charged with attempts to evade and defeat income taxes for 1924-'25 and to cheat the government in false offers in compromise of their liability, aggregating nearly $500,000.

The surly Druggan stood mute when asked how he felt about his sentence. In response to a similar question, Lake said: "It's not what I think; it's what I've got to do."

The public enemies, both of whom told Judge Wilkerson they had led exemplary lives during the last seven years, appeared as usual in the courtroom with their best drawing room manners. Each of them, during brief sessions in the witness chair, kept his voice low, said "eyether" and "neyether" and was courteously solicitous of Prosecutor Jacob Grossman's thorough understanding of their responses.

Terry Reveals He's Ill.

Druggan began by whispering to the court that he was very ill and could hardly hold his head up. His thin face did appear sallow.

He was asked whether he had received any income from betting since 1924. Not if the prosecutor meant illegal betting, Druggan explained, but there had been some bets on the horses. A lease for his Greenview avenue apartment building was presented, and Druggan exclaimed:

"I've been looking for that for years. I don't know where the government got it, but it must have been at night." This apartment building was allegedly concealed in Druggan's statement of assets.

STORM BY LAND AND SEA; PEACE PLAN IS REJECTED

Spurns Plea for Negotiations to Settle Row.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 3 [Wednesday].—A Japanese foreign office spokesman indicated today that the Tokio government will not accept one or possibly more of the five proposals in the British, American and French peace plan for China and Japan. The fifth proposal, a government spokesman said, was "absolutely unacceptable."

The fifth proposal as outlined by Great Britain yesterday calls for "a prompt advance by negotiations to settle all outstanding controversies between the belligerent nations in the spirit of the treaty of Paris and the resolution of the league of nations of Dec. 9 without prior demand or reservation and with the aid of neutral observers or participants."

Insists on Direct Negotiation.

This proposal in the notes presented yesterday to Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa, it was later announced by the foreign ministry, was rejected because "Japan absolutely insists any settlement must be made between Japan and China alone and since it presumably applies also to Manchuria."

The complete reply to the three notes will probably be made today. No counter-proposals will be offered.

The other proposals in the peace plan provided for the cessation of all acts of violence, no further preparation for hostilities, withdrawal of both the Chinese and Japanese combatants from points of mutual contact in Shanghai, and protection of the Shanghai international settlement by establishment of a neutral zone to be policed by neutrals.

Accepts Neutral Zone.

The foreign office spokesman indicated that Japan's answer to three points of the powers' truce proposal will be:

1. Japan cannot promise not to increase her troops in view of the fact that the Chinese are increasing their forces.

2. Japan accepts the neutral zone in principle.

3. Japan cannot agree to evacuate her troops, leaving Japanese citizens to the protection of third parties.

Wants Chinese Troops Withdrawn.

"The Japanese government," the foreign office spokesman said, "feels that the immediate and pressing problem is to secure withdrawal of Chinese forces to a safe distance from Shanghai, and believes that negotiations should envisage creation of permanent neutral zones around all principal Chinese ports to prevent future menace from Chinese armies."

He added that the government feels that the powers misunderstood Foreign Minister Yoshizawa's previous conversations and that the foreign diplomats took his statement asking them [the powers] to help force the withdrawal of Chinese troops as a formal request for intervention.

"The notes presented to Yoshizawa last night are identic in nature in the request that Japan and China cease hostilities," the foreign office spokesman continued. "But the area is not specified and so Japan does not know whether Manchuria is included. If Manchuria is included this subject will be treated the same as in the reservations Japan made Dec. 10.

Views China as Menace.

"Japan also cannot comply with the proposal for no further preparation for hostilities as long as there is danger despite China's pledges. Her promises mean nothing. Therefore this proposal depends upon whether the Chinese troops will withdraw for at least fifteen miles."

The foreign office believes the powers played into the hands of the Chinese. It charges that China is making every effort to enlarge the hostilities with a view of obtaining a Sino-Japanese settlement through the intervention of the powers.

China Gives Assent.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3 [Wednesday].—[U. P.]—China is ready to cooperate to secure cessation of hostilities with Japan and to convene a conference for settlement of the outstanding issues disputed by China and Japan, a foreign office spokesman announced today in commenting on the peace proposals of the United States and Great Britain. China regards the latest Anglo-American communications as friendly, the statement said.

Planes and Troops Send Showers of Shells.

Situation in Nutshell

SHANGHAI.—Japanese open new attack on Shanghai by land and sea. Opposing forces fighting fierce artillery duel, the second in 24 hours. Japanese reported to be secretly landing a division of soldiers near Shanghai and shelling Chinese troop reinforcements advancing on railway from Woosung.

TOKIO.—Japanese government rejects four power plan to mediate in Sino-Japanese conflict. Tokio refuses to pledge not to increase her forces in Shanghai and also refuses to withdraw forces already there.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Tokio denies Washington report that Admiral Koichi Shiosawa, Japanese naval commander of Shanghai, has been ordered replaced. Japan says this has "not even been considered."

NANKING.—United States to evacuate all American residents of Nanking today. Martial law declared in former capital.

GENEVA.—Chairman Henderson of international disarmament conference warns delegates that they must succeed and that failure would be a calamity; France, Italy, and Germany join United States and Great Britain in calling upon China and Japan to make peace.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3 (Wednesday).—A great battle raged over wide sections of Shanghai and the countryside today, holding outside the harbor the United States cruiser Houston, just arrived with 300 marine reinforcements to protect American lives and property.

Six Japanese destroyers bombed the Woosung forts at the mouth of the Whangpoo river 16 miles from the city, while Japanese bluejackets ashore fought Chinese troops from the borders of the international settlement into the Chapei Chinese quarter of Shanghai along the north bank of the river.

Planes Join in Battle.

Japanese airplanes joined in the battle, bombing the Chinese area under fire. Japanese machine gunners swept the streets along the northern boundaries of their Hongkew section in a drive against Chinese snipers.

The Japanese consul general informed the American and British consuls general that Japanese forces were occupying Woosung. Another report states that Japanese airplanes from the aircraft carrier Kaya bombed and destroyed the Woosung forts.

Chinese shells fired in a duel of artillery fell in Japanese headquarters near Hongkew Park, the grounds of a boys' school, and the road of a rifle range, but failed to explode.

By 3:30 this afternoon the Japanese airplanes had increased their activity and were raining down a shower of bombs, which resulted in serious fires in numerous areas. Observers said the Chapei district again was an inferno.

Unconfirmed reports said large bodies of Japanese soldiers, believed to approximate a division, were being landed at a considerable distance down the Whangpoo river from Shanghai. The troops were being landed from ships recently arrived from Japan, the reports said.

This report leaked out as news came from Tokio that Japan had refused to promise the United States and other powers that it would not increase its military forces in Shanghai.

Move in More Bluejackets.

Japanese bluejacket reinforcements were rushed into line this morning in the Chinese Chapei section of Shanghai. Defenses along the Shanghai-Woosung railroad were strengthened.

The reinforcements were moved during a lull between the fighting today and the long artillery duel yesterday, in which neither side appeared to have profited to any great extent.

Japanese officers declared the purpose of the Chinese during the bombardment was to reduce the Japanese stronghold within the Chapei section. About 450 men were moved in from the warships in the Whangpoo, bringing the total Japanese strength to 5,000 men.

Observers said fighting between the Chinese and Japanese forces today shifted eastward from the Chapei north station area toward the north wall of the wayside district on the Whangpoo river, which is the extreme eastern flank of the Japanese controlled part of the international settlement.

Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river were reported to have shelled Chinese troop reinforcements as they advanced along the Shanghai-Woosung railway. The Chinese were advancing from Woosung, 16 miles down the river from Shanghai, reports from that quarter said.

A battalion of British troops arrived today on the cruiser Berwick. They were landed on the bund of the international settlement. The battalion is of the Argyll Sutherland Highlanders, known as "the ladies from hell."

The United States cruiser Houston, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, arrived today with 300 marines to protect the foreign settlement. The navy office revealed that the Houston had been warned to stay below the Woosung forts to keep out of range of Japanese warships attacking the forts. Arrangements previously had been made for the ship to anchor in midstream in the Whangpoo river and land the United States marines who were aboard her.

Thousands Flee in Terror.

Thousands of frantic Chinese refugees appeared again at dawn today. They crushed along the waterfront from the Garden bridge southward along the settlement side of the Whangpoo for miles, all awaiting an opportunity to cross the river into what they hoped was safer Chinese territory.

Today's newspaper headlines said the "truce was broken" by yesterday's hostilities. They said that unrestrained fighting now was likely. In reality there had been little evidence of a truce in recent days.

Japanese strengthened their positions in the Hongkew area during the night, set up more machine gun nests and sent heavier patrols around the Japanese consulate. There was a grim note as a squad of Japanese bluejackets blew a last salute on their bugles for a number of dead comrades who were being loaded on a warship.

U. S. Strengthens Defense.

A Chinese shell splashed into the Whangpoo close to a cluster of Japanese warships off the northern extremity of the bund, near the Japanese consulate. Fourteen Japanese bombing planes watched the bombardment below through a lifting fog, but themselves sent down no bombs. A new fire broke out in Chapei.

The heavy artillery firing caused Chinese in Chapei to mive toward the American defense lines along the northwest boundaries of the international settlement in greater numbers. United States marines thereupon strengthened their defenses along the south bank of Soochow creek and brought up additional machine guns. Three corps of Shanghai volunteers in armored cars also went into the sector.

During the artillery duel yesterday shells from a Japanese mortar fell near British volunteer units within the international settlement. No casualities were reported.

Bluejackets Hold Up Advance.

The Japanese began to mobilize a force of about 2,000 bluejackets, and it was expected that the bombardment would be followed by an attack, but no advance materialized. The day's work was left to the guns.

At 6:30 p. m. the Japanese put their heavy pieces into action, drowning out the noise of machine guns and lighter artillery and the trench mortars of the Chinese.

When the firing died down the only Chinese gun heard from was a lone trench mortar with a range of about 2,000 yards. The Japanese set up 38 or more barbed wire barricades and sand bag emplacements in the Hongkew area, manning each stronghold with bluejackets equipped with rifles and machine guns. These strong points, it was explained, were put out in preparation for the expected Chinese major offensive.

Foreign Commanders Protest.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the international settlement defense council, composed of the military commanders of the various foreign troops here, had handed the Japanese authorities a protest against independent military action within the settlement.

It was understood that the municipal council of the settlement had demanded the restoration of the municipal government in the Hongkew district, where the Japanese military have assumed uncontested control, throwing out of gear all the normal government machinery.

The Japanese declared they had won out in yesterday's exchange of shells. On the other hand, the Chinese command declared:

"We intend to drive the enemy out of Chinese territory."

Chinese Fall Back.

Some of the Chinese lines fell back at the conclusion of the exchange of fire. Japanese officers said their guns had been trained on strong defense works picked up by airmen who have made repeated scouting flights over the city.

Americans, British, French, and Italian troops, strung along the borders of the international settlement behind barbed wire entanglements and sand bag barricades, had orders to stop any attempt of the combatants to break through in case the big push developed.

Thousands of refugees streamed through the passageways left in the barbed wire. Police estimated that more than 50,000 persons have taken refuge in the settlement since the Chapei fighting started.

All stores in the settlement were closed, but the streets were jammed. Settlement authorities declared the food supply was sufficient for the present.

More than 3,000 foreign residents, both men and women, have been enrolled in various defense organizations. The women volunteered for service in motor corps similar to the units with the allies during the world war, and the men offered themselves to bear guns.

The British placed a string of outposts running into Chinese territory along the western bounary of the settlement. The purpose of this move was to protect extensive foreign property in that area.

All the commanders of the foreign forces in the settlement protested to their consular officials that the Japanese forces attached to the international garrison were infringing on sectors allotted to the Americans, British, and Italians.

Charges of brutality were made against the Japanese. One such charge was that bluejackets had bayoneted a 16 year old Chinese boy who picked up a rock and gestured as though he intended to throw it at a Japanese patrol.

Italy Rushes Two Warships.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 2.—With the rush of naval units of the world powers toward Shanghai well started, Italy jumped on the bandwagon today. She announced the dispatch of two warships, the cruiser Trento and the destroyer Espero, with a detachment of several hundred men, to Chinese waters. It is expected that the Italian warships will reach Shanghai in about 17 days. They will go via Bombay and Singapore.

Italy already has one cruiser, the Libia, and two gunboats with a detachment of 400 marines in the far east as protection for the Italian concession at Tienstin, and her diplomatic representative at Shanghai.

Until today an attitude of extreme circumspection has been maintained by both Italian officials and the press regarding the Sino-Japanese situation. The Fascist government has been waiting to see how the land lay following Washington's gestures.

Today, however, the press is provided with official comment. La Tribuna tonight declared that the Japanese operations against Nanking, the former capital of China, "indicate the deliberation of the Japanese and their determination to depart from the controversy in Manchuria and to place all China in a state of subjection."

Il Tevere said an actual state of war exists in China and the newspaper puts the responsibility on Japan.

"Chasing so-called bandits and police operations are stories which can be swallowed for only a limited number of months," it added.

Premier Mussolini has a personal interest in what is happening at Shanghai, since his daughter, Edda, is there. She is the wife of the young Count Ciano, Italian consul general in Shanghai.

Chinese Mayor Apologizes.

HONGKONG, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Amoy and Swatow were reported quiet today as a result of suppression by the authorities of anti-Japanese activities. There was considerable tension in both cities yesterday. The mayor of Swatow apologized for newspaper attacks on the Japanese, and after an agreement had been reached between him and the Japanese consul all Japanese destroyers except one were withdrawn.

PEIPING, Feb. 2.—Spurred by the news of the Japanese assault upon Shanghai and the bombardment of Nanking, the northern Chinese leaders are exerting every effort to sink their differences and unite their forces to avert invasion of this region. All anti-Japanese boycotts and popular demonstrations were forbidden today and newspapers printing anti-Japanese articles were suppressed.

Tribune Writer Gets Front Seat View of War; Visits Both Japanese and Chinese Battle Lines

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent today visited both sides of Shanghai's most unique and complicated of all the wars which have visited this oriental metropolis in recent years.

Armed with five different kinds of military passes, issued by the local consular and municipal authorities, I proceeded first to the Japanese zone, the Hongkew district of the foreign settlement, where the Japanese have expelled the foreign authorities and taken over complete military control, and then to the Chapei district, where the Sino-Japanese lines zig-zig through the narrow streets, often only a block apart.

Crowds Watch the Hostilities.

To enter the Japanese zone it was necessary to cross a bridge spanning Soochow creek, a canal which cuts through the city and provides communications with the hinterland, from where comes Shanghai's food supply. The canal was jammed with boats. Chinese farmers sat among heaps of produce, apparently oblivious to the war proceeding only a few blocks away.

The bridge was crowded with foreigners and Chinese, gazing down the street from where came the steady rat-tat-tat of Japanese machine gun fire—now a familiar sound to Shanghai residents. Then came the sound of artillery as a Japanese battery blazed away in the direction of the Chinese positions, apparently in retaliation for the Chinese action in firing on three Japanese scouting planes slowly flying over the Chinese positions, apparently taking photographs.

Into the War Zone.

I proceeded down Szechuen road in the direction of the firing zone. I went afoot past street intersections guarded by stolid, unsmiling Japanese sailors manning machine guns behind sand bags. The sailors paid little attention to me, their attention being concentrated down the side streets or on upper story windows, from where came an occasional Chinese sniper's shot.

The street was deserted except for an occasional motorcycle bearing couriers carrying messages. Shops on both sides of the street were closed, some shuttered and others with smashed show windows. At one place the sidewalk was covered with broken tiles where a shell had landed on the roof of the building. In the broken show windows miscellaneous merchandise was scattered about, offering possibilities of unlimited looting in event the Japanese are forced to evacuate the area in face of a Chinese advance.

Approaches Chinese Positions.

Dodging from one doorway to another, I finally reached a point about three blocks from the front barricades where the machine gunning was going on. Here it was necessary to stand inside the gateway of a brick wall. The Japanese sailors motioned that it was dangerous to proceed further, due to snipers' bullets from the upper stories of the taller buildings fronting the position.

I then crossed through an alleyway to another street, Honan road, about two blocks from the railway station area. This district is still held by Chinese troops, despite the frequent Japanese attempts to dislodge them with airplane bombs. The station was burned after being hit by a Japanese shell the first day of the hostilities.

Sees War from Front Seat.

From the top of a three story building with a parapet about three feet high, it was possible here to obtain a front seat position and observe the Sino-Japanese show now enjoying a world audience.

I saw a concrete blockhouse on the border of the international settlement where a detachment of Japanese bluejackets was holding out with a detachment of municipal volunteers. Two armored cars were stationed about a block to the rear, watching developments.

I leaned over the parapet to obtain a better view. The commander of the armored cars in the street yelled: "Duck your head" as a Chinese trench mortar blazed away a short distance to the front.

Invades the Chinese Lines.

I then retraced my steps, made a ten mile circuit through the countryside outside the foreign settlement, and entered the Chinese lines. The first sign of activity was a company of Cantonese soldiers transporting munitions to the front. They were using rickshaws along a new model highway named in honor of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese republic, which was constructed by former President Chiang Kai-shek two years ago. The highway runs entirely around the borders of the foreign settlement. The road is now serving a useful purpose for the Chinese army, since it permits direct communication with the Chinese arsenal.

I reached a position on the Chinese side directly opposite the place within the Japanese lines referred to above. Here I was stopped by a Chinese sentry, but was allowed to proceed when my chauffeur pointed to the American flag attached to the radiator of the car.

Chinese Digging Trenches.

I crossed a concrete bridge over the canal, where I found Chinese soldiers and laborers hastily digging trenches and constructing bombproof dugouts against the Japanese air bombing which the Chinese soldiers are certain is coming shortly.

The Chinese troops were mostly youthful. They appeared to be in deadly earnest, but they were entirely lacking in the machinelike discipline of the Japanese troops. The Chinese sandbag barricades were equally effective, but they lacked the neatness and trim of those on the Japanese side. As soon as they learned my nationality the Chinese troops asked:

"Will America and Great Britain do anything, and when are the American troops coming?"

Hide from Air Bombers.

Aside from the Chinese troops occupying the barricades, few soldiers were visible. Most of them were concealed inside huts and buildings to avoid the ever vigilant Japanese air bombers.

On the way back to the city I noticed a large factory fully a mile inside the Chinese lines which was still guarded by Japanese marines with machine guns behind sandbag barricades on the roof. Although the Japanese machine guns pointed to the rear of the Chinese lines, Chinese soldiers passed in the street 100 yards distant. They paid little or no attention to the Japanese.

The Chinese soldiers declared emphatically that they had no intention to attack the Japanese, but they were equally emphatic in their determination to oppose the Japanese drive which is expected momentarily.

U. S. TO EVACUATE AMERICANS FROM NANKING TODAY

BULLETIN.

NANKING, Feb. 3 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Martial law was declared here at 10 a. m. today.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—The navy department received word tonight that 36 American citizens were being evacuated from Nanking.

Reports of the evacuation came from Lieutenant Commander P. W. Rutledge, in charge of the American destroyer Simpson at Nanking. Rutledge informed the navy department that the American citizens would leave the Chinese city, which was under fire of Japanese guns, Wednesday morning [Nanking time] on a merchant vessel.

14 Already On Warship.

Fourteen of them were on the Simpson when the message was sent at 6:40 a. m. today [Chicago time] and the remainder were in "a safe and accessible place."

State department records indicated that the 36 comprised virtually the entire American population of the city. About 165 Americans are within a 100 mile radius of Nanking. Most of them are missionaries and educators.

The American commander said the city was quiet and there had been no resumption of firing.

Thousands Flee in Panic.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—The bombardment of Nanking by three Japanese warships last night and early this morning was followed today by a mad exodus of the Chinese population. All roads leading from Nanking to cities further in the interior are jammed with thousands of refugees, fleeing they know not whether, but away from the threatened city.

The foreign consular officials conferred today. They considered the evacuation of all foreign residents, including 200 Americans, but a definite decision has not yet been made. The foreigners, Nanking dispatches said, cluding Americans. The foreigners, Nanking dispatches said, including consular officials and their families, spent the night in terror. The Chinese had closed down the light plant, telephone service was disrupted, and the city was pitch dark. The streets were jammed with a mass of panicky humanity.

Japanese Break Pledge.

The foreign apprehension was increased by the fact that the commander of the Japanese fleet stationed at Nanking had previously assured the foreign consuls that the Japanese had no intention of shelling Nanking.

Chinese officials today denied the Japanese allegation that the Chinese took the offensive by opening fire from a battery at the Lion hill fort. The Chinese charge that the Japanese began shelling the city at 11:20 o'clock last night and fired some twenty shots at the Chinese batteries. The Chinese declared they did not return the Japanese fire, fearing they might strike British and American warcraft also stationed in the harbor. However, the Chinese said, their units replied with rifle and machine gun fire, and the fighting lasted for an hour and a half.

Some of the Japanese shells struck Lion hill fort. Others fell inside of the city wall and still others fell in the section of the city adjacent to the Yangtze river. One unexploded shell passed through the municipal electric light plant. The Chinese casualties were one killed. There was considerable property damage.

American Envoy Arrives.

Nelson T. Johnson, American minister to China, and a naval attaché, who were expected to reach Nanking from Peiping last night, did not arrive until 3 o'clock this afternoon. Fearing trouble at Nanking, Mr. Johnson stopped over for several hours at Pengpu, north of Nanking, and did not enter Nanking until he was advised the Japanese firing had ceased.

Early this morning the Japanese landed 100 sailors in Nanking. The Chinese defenders, however, had withdrawn a considerable distance and there were no further clashes.

Five Japanese warships are now stationed in front of the city and two others are located a short distance down the river.

10 OF 30 CHINESE STUDENTS AT PURDUE GO HOME TO ENLIST

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Purdue university's Chinese colony was diminishing today as ten of the thirty young men from China who are attending college here prepared to depart to enlist in the movement to repel the Japanese. Others will go later, it was announced.

The Chinese declare the Japanese are violating every rule of civilized warfare in their attacks on Chinese civilians.

About half of the Chinese at Purdue were sent by the Chinese government from funds collected as a result of the Boxer uprising.

NATION'S PUBLIC DEBT INCREASES $1,652,592,880

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—(AP)—An increase of $1,652,592,880 in the gross public debt during the twelve months ending Jan. 31, 1932, was shown today in the monthly statement of the treasury.

The total debt is now $17,815,861,111.

Since Jan. 31 the treasury has issued an additional $372,000,000 of treasury certificates which were used to raise funds for the reconstruction credit corporation and retire $61,000,000 in maturing treasury bills.

Large decreases in the government's revenue from taxes were the chief causes of the increase in the public debt.

Raiders Find Entire Cellar Filled with Alcohol Mash

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Deputy sheriffs found an entire cellar of a house had been made into a 20,000 gallon vat for alcohol mash. It contained 12,000 gallons when a lonely residence was raided here this morning.

CHICAGO IS GOAT OF INCOME TAX, MALONE ASSERTS

Blisters Emmerson "Rule by Spoils System."

William H. Malone of Park Ridge, former chairman of the state tax commission and now a candidate for governor, roundly denounced the state administration last night for having brought about the passage of an income tax measure which he condemned as an unjust piece of legislation intended to give more spoils to spoilsmen at the expense of the already overburdened taxpayer.

He was speaking at the Warren-Clyde Community house in Cicero, charging the Emmerson administration with willful waste, when he heard of the passage of the income tax bill in the house of representatives at Springfield.

"No Time for Extra Tax."

After spending a few minutes reading the provisions of the measure as it now stands, Mr. Malone said:

"It's the old, old story of a bunch of politicians wanting more money to spend and going into a huddle to devise ways of getting it. This is no time to add an extra tax of any kind to the citizens who are staggering under a load made unbearable by men now in office.

"Of course, Cook county will get the worst of it. That statehouse crowd has a way of collecting from Cook county for their own benefit.

"If they were honest and courageous in Springfield they would stop this orgy of spending and help the poor taxpayer who is not now able to give what they want to take away from him. They should purge the pay rolls instead of padding them.

Taxes Already Too High.

"If I were governor I'd veto that income tax bill instantly. If the present administration governed as it should, there would be no financial difficulty in state affairs today. The present tax is 40 per cent too high now without adding to it. What do they want to make of the people? Do they want the public's life blood?

"Don't they want to leave a man enough to buy food? The administration's tax appetite seems unquenchable. Money! Money! Money! And for what? So a lot of politicians can wax fat.

"The appropriations signed by Gov. Emmerson at the close of the 1931 session of the legislature exceeded the 1929 appropriations by over $33,000,000. If the governor had been interested in economy rather than building up his political organization through state patronage he could have vetoed most, if not all, of these appropriations and thereby have helped to reduce our tax bills through this period of economic depression.

Rips Custer's Candidacy.

"The conduct of the Emmerson machine has indicated to the people that they do not appreciate the serious plight of the taxpayers. The heir apparent of the tax spending machine, the hand picked candidate of the governor, Omer Custer, is one of them.

"After I resigned, Mr. Custer was appointed by Gov. Emmerson to succeed me as chairman of the state tax commission. So our records in office may be compared. In two years he spent $141,000 more than was spent in the previous two years under me. In this one department under my supervision the appropriations two years ago were only 39 per cent of what Mr. Custer felt to be necessary for his administration.

"He's running for governor with Emmerson's backing, and the state patronage gang, living off the taxpayers' money, are with him. Mr. Public is paying for the campaign."

Cop Sees Holdup, Leaps from Auto, Shoots Robber

Sergt. John H. Scherping of the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office shot and probably fatally wounded one of two Negro bandits he surprised in a holdup shortly before midnight last night. Scherping was on his way home after duty when he saw the bandits hold up John E. Tracksel of Elk Grove at Western avenue and Lake street. Scherping leaped from his auto and pursued one of the bandits, cornering him between Western and Oakley avenues. The sergeant fired as the bandit raised his revolver. At the Bridewell the robber gave his name as Harold McGarry, 25 years old, 3222 North Fairfield avenue.

LAWYER'S WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

MR. and MRS. JAMES M. HOPKINS.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Charges Cruelty

Mrs. Dorothy Peck Hopkins filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty, in the Superior court yesterday against James M. Hopkins Jr., 450 East Wisconsin avenue, Lake Forest.

Hopkins is an attorney in the office of Winston, Strawn & Shaw. His father, James M. Hopkins Sr., 1530 State parkway, is chairman of the board of the Camel company, manufacturers of railway supplies.

The couple were married on Dec. 22, 1925, in Syracuse, N. Y., Mrs. Hopkins' former home. They have a daughter, Patricia, 5 years old. They have been prominent in the younger social set of Chicago since their marriage.

Mrs. Hopkins' bill, filed by Wilson & McIlvaine, states that she left her husband on Jan. 15. The bill charges that he has "beaten and struck her very frequently during the last two years without any provocation."

Mrs. Hopkins' bill asks a decree and custody of her daughter, but makes no mention of alimony.

WAR IN SHANGHAI BOOSTS PRICE OF SILVER DOLLARS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—Because Chinese banks with more than $150,000,000 in silver in their vaults remain closed and foreign banks and many stores refuse to accept Chinese bank notes, the price of silver dollars is mounting rapidly.

On Monday 100 American dollars bought only 404 Chinese dollars, as against 418 on Saturday.

When foreign banks opened this morning 100 American dollars bought only 388 Chinese silver dollars, and quotations were fluctuating so wildly that no written exchange rates were posted, quotations being given verbally every few minutes. This, added to the great increase in commodity prices, is working great hardship on most of the 5,000 Americans here.

Roche Outspeeds Speeder; Captures Load of Alcohol

Alfred Webster, 32 years old, 837 East 61st street, was arrested late last night by Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, when 25 five-gallon cans of alcohol were found in his car. Roche and a squad were cruising at 75th street and Stony Island avenue when Webster sped past the squad car. The squad gave chase and caught Webster in Jackson park.

STATE INCOME TAX PROVISIONS LISTING RATES, EXEMPTIONS

Provisions of the state income tax bill passed by the house of representatives at Springfield yesterday are:

EXEMPTIONS—$1,000 for a single person or for a married person without dependents; $2,500 for a married couple living together plus $300 each for dependents. A single person with an income of $1,200 would have to pay tax on $200; a married couple with two children would have to pay on all income over $3,100.

RATES—On the first $1,000 of taxable income, 1 per cent; on the next $2,000, 2 per cent; on the next $5,000, 3 per cent; on the next $7,000, 4 per cent; on the next $9,000, 5 per cent; taxable income over $25,000 to pay 6 per cent. A person with taxable income of $1,000 would pay $10; with $2,000 taxable, $30; with $4,000 taxable, $70; with $6,000 taxable, $130; with $10,000 taxable, $260.

JAPANESE SILK EXCHANGE SHUT AS PRICES CRASH

YOKOHAMA, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Prices on the Yokohama raw silk exchange, the principal source of supply for the United States, dropped almost 20 per cent during the morning session today and the exchange suspended operations at noon. After the suspension order there were indications of further weakening of prices. Pessimism over relations between Japan and the United States was cited as the principal factor in the day's developments.

Permits a person paying general taxes on any kind of property to claim a direct offset or reduction from his computed income tax on either or both of the following ways: [A] By reducing computed income tax in same proportion as income producing property bears to total income, [or] by deducting not to exceed $100 for taxes paid on residence.

No Extended Debate.

The debate on the new tax was comparatively brief. It had been held at the top of the calendar for two weeks and the only question whether it would be called up today rested on a counting of noses by its proponents. They had been claiming 81 votes but admitted today that three of those upon whom they had counted were absent.

It was recognized that the votes for and against the bill were "set," that oratory would not change a single one of them. For that reason there was only one speech against the bill, one by Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, whose criticism chiefly concerned the omission of corporations from the bill and the fact that no more than $100 may be deducted from the income levy for taxes paid on a residence. Homer J. Tice [Rep., Greenview], leader of the farm bloc, sponsored the bill. He spoke for it and was supported by Logan D. Griffin [Rep., Springfield], Dennis J. Collins [Rep., De Kalb], and Sol Handy [Dem., Marshall].

Talks as Votes Are Corralled.

During the roll call H. D. Sparks [Rep., Shelbyville] talked against time to permit the rounding up of another vote or two and the 77th came in from Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island], and he was followed during the calling of the absentees by Grover C. Borders [Dem., East St. Louis]. During the call also Ralph W. Church, Evanston Republican, asserted that passing the income tax would delay revision of the revenue article of the constitution.

It was admitted by backers of the new tax that the most effective aid given it this year was the recommendation of the levy by the governor's tax conference. This point was exphasized during the debate.

Mrs. Dolly Gann Is Here to Address G. O. P. Women

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, arrived last night on the Santa Fe railway from Topeka, Kas., her home, where she has been speaking at Republican women's meetings. While in Chicago she is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn in their home at 229 Lake Shore drive. She will speak tomorrow at the Woman's National Republican club meeting in the Congress hotel.

Chicago Relief Bills Advance, But Passage Is Not Assured

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Storm warnings, presaging little if any downstate support for the Chicago poor relief bills, were heard in both houses of the assembly. The measures went to third reading in each chamber, but this was not regarded as an indication that they would pass finally.

MRS. FLORENCE FIFER BOHRER.

Sensing the opposition before it had hardly been manifested, proponents of the bills made a call to Mayor Cermak and he arrived in Springfield tonight prepared to lend his verbal and political support tomorrow, combined with Chicago's official appeals for aid, in behalf of the charity program.

The objections to passing the bills, and thereby $18,750,000 in state credit, which would forestall the closing of relief agencies in the city, were varied.

Most of the expressed fears were that the "paper increase" in the tax rate would be extended and an additional 25 or 30 cents added to the tax levy.

"Law of Self Preservation."

It was pointed out in both hearings, by Attorney Henry E. Cutler of Chicago and others, that the program does not contemplate that these taxes be extended, unless people vote against the referendum next November.

"I should think the law of self preservation would operate there," said Cutler in response to a question in the senate. "If they vote against it their taxes will be raised."

"What guarantee," asked Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer [Rep., Bloomington] "have we that the big interests in Cook county will support this bond issue?"

"If they don't, it will be the biggest double-cross ever put over on this assembly," declared Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield].

Henry M. Dunlap [Rep., Savoy], dean of the senate, asserted that the bills looked like an effort to "shift the burden upon downstate. I may say we are afraid and even suspicious," he said. "If the situation is as serious as we hear it is, why couldn't the people of wealth—those now contributing to the World's Fair and the opera—meet this situation?"

In further explanation, Mr. Cutler told the senate, and the house as well, that it was not possible to sell county bonds.

Senator Victor P. Michel recalled that referendum bond issues had not had much success in Illinois recently, the people refusing to vote them.

"Well, let's be fair about that," Minority Leader Courtney of Chicago, told him. "The people didn't vote for them because they didn't want to raise the taxes. They would vote for this one for the same identical reason."

Condon Is Questioned.

Attorney James G. Condon of Chicago followed Mr. Cutler on the rostrum to urge the bills. Representative Sidney Parker [Dem., Mt. Vernon] asked him:

"What is your alternative plan if this fails?"

"The heart of this state, sir," replied Condon. "You don't realize that Chicago is sitting on a volcano. We only ask that you give us what you would give your own city."

ALCOHOLCLAIMED 795 LIVES IN 1931 IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Alcohol was the cause of 795 deaths in New York City during 1931, according to Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris. The figure, made public today, represents an increase of 100 over the total for 1930.

"The number of deaths in New York of which alcohol was the direct cause or a contributing factor," said Dr. Norris, "undoubtedly more nearly approached 1,500. The deaths recorded in our files are merely those reported to us by the hospitals and do not include many deaths by alcoholism which are probably concealed by doctors to save the name of the patient's family. Even 1,500 deaths would probably be a low estimate if the deaths caused by automobile accidents when the driver was under influence of liquor were counted and added."

Deaths from drinking wood alcohol were only 14 in 1931, as compared with 74 the preceding year.

CHURCHILL ASKS U. S. FOR HELP TO END DEFLATION

Address Seen as Plea to Quit Gold Basis.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The extraordinarily distinguished gathering of solid men of Chicago at the Union League club last evening received the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill's address on "The World Economic Crisis" as a genial and ingratiating plea that the United States join Great Britain in going off the gold standard.

Something to function in the place of what he called "sterilized gold" was the English statesman's suggestion of a remedy for the crisis, and he emphasized his suggestion with a homely parable of the game of marbles at school that came to a sudden end.

Parable of Marbles Game.

"The boys played, and played, and played," said the son of the Rupert of Debate, "day in and day out at the luncheon hour until a day came when one boy had won all the marbles. So all the losers leaned against the wall. And even the winner—he had naught to do but lean against the wall, too. So there was no game.

"What to do?

"There was, in the matter of that arrested game of marbles, but one thing to do—get some more marbles.

"In the economic crisis which we confront today there are only two things to do. One is to play a new game. That's what the Russians suggest. The other is what I suggest—let's get some more marbles.

"Today, of eleven and a half billion dollars of gold in the world at parity of exchange, the United States and France possess about seven billions. They hold nearly two-thirds of the world's supply of gold. And nine-tenths of the population of the world hold only one-third of it."

Under such conditions, Mr. Churchill thinks, it does not look very promising for the continuance of the game of marbles on a sportsmanlike, to say nothing of a businesslike, basis.

His suggestion of a remedy he offered as a statesman out of office to responsible statesmen in office.

He Urges a Revaluation.

"No action," he said, "can well be taken by any one country alone. But will it not be sufficient if two or three countries take the step of revaluating commodities to the 1927 level? If once the English speaking peoples decide to take this step there will not be much difficulty in getting other countries to come into step with them. In fact, I think there might be an ugly rush to come in.

"I am confident of the results of such a measure. I firmly believe that if the United States and Great Britain, through their agents, the Federal Reserve and the Bank of England, would agree that credits shall be expanded and commodities revaluated to the 1927 or possibly the 1928 level we can restore to human society the benefits which it has lost by the hideous processes of deflation.

Statesman Counsels Courage.

"But, whatever we do, do not let us fail in the supreme duty—the duty of good courage. . . . My confidence in the British empire is as great as is my confidence in the United States. We still have the everlasting fundamentals to deal in and to consider. In the words of one of your own statesmen"—the speaker said after his address he referred to the late Bourke Cockran—"'the earth is a generous mother. She will produce food for all her children if they will but cultivate her soil in justice and in peace.'"

The man of the crowded life and the dazzling career, who was one of the most vivid figures of the world war, was a tremendous drawing card. The party in his honor overflowed onto three floors of the Union League club. There were 1,200 reservations for places at the tables and 300 more men and women who had been unable to obtain reservations waited in the parlors and lobbies until the hour of the address.

At that hour the tables in the main dining room were removed and the whole company was assembled in the spacious chamber.

The speaker did not partake of the dinner and did not appear on the scene until 8 o'clock. He was enthusiastically greeted, men and women rising and cheering him. He seemed, at the age of 57, in the pink of condition. His voice was resonant and his address, though parts of it were highly technical, was full of pleasantries.

But a cruel scar on his forehead showed how near to a tragedy his encounter with an auto in New York on Dec. 14 had come. "The cowcatcher," he said, "saved me." To the accident he referred in his address, saying, "Facts are stubborn things. When I struck an auto going 30 miles an hour I had to recognize the fact. There was no paltering with it. There was no good trying to deny it."

He recommended similar recognition of economic facts going 30 miles an hour to his hearers.

A Query on World Conditions.

Putting on old-fashioned steel bowed spectacles and mounting to the platform by means of a chair instead of going around to the steps on the other side of it, the man who was in parliament at the age of 27 asked why in the absences of famine, pestilence and civil convulsions we are all so much poorer than we were a few years ago. "The only things not reduced," he added, "being debts and fixed charges of all kinds."

"We are told," he said, "that the disease is overproduction. We are in want, it seems, because we have grown so clever in making the things we want."

The true cause, in his opinion, is that we are attempting to pay war debts and reparations across high tariff walls. That has led to the artificial enhancement of the price of gold. And this attempt had been made in the face of the fact that international debts in any considerable amount can be paid only in goods.

"Lack Gold for War Debts."

"I believe now," he said, "and I believed at the time of the peace treaty that the amount of gold in the world was not enough to pay one-tenth of the war debts and reparations. And when I remonstrated to Lloyd George on the amount of the reparations he said, 'The people have suffered, their passions are roused. And they won't listen to reason.'

"But now the passions of parties and parliaments have had time to cool, and today we have to face the stubborn fact that unless payment is accepted in goods, or unless there is a great rise in prices that will make old debts look comparatively small, there is probably little chance that creditor nations may look forward to vast repayments. I do not believe Germany can pay now, but I do believe she will be able to pay something some time."

Fears Slump to Dark Ages.

The speaker indicated that wise and clear views of the present crisis are "a matter of life and death."

"The hideous processes of deflation," he said, "have but to go on to isolate the nations and reduce them to the barbarism and barter of the dark ages. . . . Frankly I think we are all in the same boat. . . . We have slipped off the ledge of the precipice and are at the bottom. The only thing now is not to kick each other while we are there."

H. J. TICE TO RETIRE AFTER 26 YEARS IN STATE LEGISLATURE

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Homer J. Tice's intention to retire from the general assembly became known generally today when he said during a speech on the floor of the house that it might be his last appearance in a major legislative battle.

HOMER TICE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

This battle was over the state income tax bill, which was sponsored by Tice, but his plans to retire had nothing to do with the fight. More than a month ago he told friends he did not intend to enter the April primary.

Tice, a Republican from Greenview, Menard county, has served 26 years in the lower house. He says he feels he has done his full duty by his constituents.

Kitchen Still Explodes; Woman Seriously Burned

Mrs. Agnes Graskis, 48 years old, was seriously burned late last night when a still exploded in the kitchen of her home at 2457 Rice street. The woman, with her clothes afire, fled into an alley. Her brother, Frank Grusinski, followed and extinguished the flames. She was taken to St. Mary's hospital.

FOUR GANDHIS IN JAIL; BRITISH NAB HIS YOUNGEST SON

BOMBAY, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The government struck two swift blows at Mahatma Gandhi's new civil disobedience campaign today through the arrest of the leader's youngest son and a legislative victory. Devi Das Gandhi, earnest believer in his father's doctrine, was arrested at a New Delhi railway station while en route to the frontier. A warrant for the arrest of the young man had been out for some time.

(Devi Das' arrest marks the fourth detention in the mahatma's household since his return to India from the London round table conference. Mrs. Gandhi and their oldest son followed the mahatma to prison.)

The government defeated by a vote of 62 to 44 a resolution of censure in the legislative assembly in New Delhi today. The measure would have condemned the mahatma's internment and the arrest of Sen Gupta, another Indian Nationalist, besides expressing disapproval of the treatment of women in the campaign against civil disobedience.

SOVIET OFFICIAL EDITOR BARRED BY SWITZERLAND

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Karl B. Radek, foreign editor of the official soviet newspaper Izvestia, has been denied a passport visa by the Swiss minister in Berlin. This was revealed today when the reason for the Swiss action was made public. It was: "The Swiss frontier is closed to the bolshevik leader because of his political activities."

Protests to League.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The secretariat of the league of nations has received a protest from Maxim Litvinoff over the refusal of Swiss authorities to grant Karl B. Radek, Russian editor, permission to come here.

It was believed Radek's expulsion from Switzerland during the war as a communist was a factor in the erection of the present barrier.

DEBT CANCELLATION URGED BY HEAD OF BRITISH TREASURY

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Cancellation of German reparations and interallied war debts was advocated by Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain when parliament reassembled today as the most effective means of settling the world's financial problems.

"The policy of his majesty's government," he said in answer to a question, "is that a comprehensive and permanent settlement of reparations must be reached as soon as possible, we believe, as successive governments in this country have believed in the past, that this aim can best be realized by means of a general cancellation of reparations and war debts."

When a conservative member asked him: "Can we have any assurance that payments are not to be made to America unless we get payments from other countries?" he made no reply.

U. S. Secret Agents Seize Counterfeiting Machinery

Federal secret service operatives under Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan yesterday seized three men and counterfeiting equipment valued at $5,000, with which they allegedly intended to produce bogus $20 notes by the thousands. The alleged counterfeiters, Joseph Patumis, James Kunatz, and his brother, Alex Kunatz, were arrested at 562 West Adams street after a raid at 6124 South Kedvale avenue, where the plates and other counterfeiting equipment were found. Capt. Callaghan said the apparatus was sufficient to flood the city with the fake notes.

FIRE NEXT DOOR TO HOSPITAL.

Fire in a frame building next door to the Streeter hospital, 2646 Calumet avenue, sent clouds of smoke rolling into the institution yesterday afternoon. Nurses quieted the six patients who were in the hospital, and it was not necessary to remove them from the building.

AIR FORCE MOVES TO SAVE HAWAII FROM 'INVADERS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Feb. 2.—Fighting planes took off from Wheeler and Luke fields today and roared over Honolulu to establish air bases on other islands of the Hawaiian group to repel the attack of the blue forces which are expected any time after 5 o'clock Saturday morning—the zero hour for the maneuvers.

In previous army and navy exercises the planes defended part of the islands, but this is the first time they have had a sufficient force to protect the entire archipelago.

Meanwhile army tanks crashed through sugar cane fields while the artillery and infantry sought cover from hostile air raids under thickets at points commanding possible landing places of the invading forces. All provisioning of troops is being done at night to avoid observation. Officers today revealed that actual firing will occur. Twenty-five thousand rounds of small arms ammunition will be used.

PLEA FOR PAROLE MADE BY PASTOR WHO SHOT SEXTON

James A. Wilson, former pastor of the Methodist church at Mendota, Ill., appeared before the state board of pardons and paroles yesterday to plead for parole from the Joliet penitentiary. He was sentenced to one to fourteen years in prison for shooting Amos Elliott, sexton of his church, and Mrs. Elliott in an attempt to get a letter which had been written by a member of the church.

Wilson, who will have served a year on Feb. 9, gave a short history of his life. He said he had once been a street car conductor in Chicago and gave up that means of earning a livelihood to go to Mendota as a minister. He declared that he had not meant to harm the Elliotts and "did not know what he was doing" when he fired on them.

"The notoriety I have received has been more than enough punishment for me," he added.

GANG ARMORER IS FOUND GUILTY IN TEST OF GUN LAW

A jury in Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green's court found Louis Scaramuzzo guilty last night in a test case involving the effectiveness of the law against defacing or obliterating serial numbers on guns. Scaramuzzo is a gunsmith at 604 Blue Island avenue. He has been termed by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker the "armorer of the west side gunmen."

Several persons have been convicted under this law since last July 1, when it became effective after being enacted by the last legislature, but the Scaramuzzo case was the first before a jury and the first in which technical points were raised in attacking the law. The law was enacted as a weapon against gangsters, whose custom of having the serial numbers of guns obliterated has made it difficult for the police to trace firearms found at the scenes of murders.

Judge Overrules Plea.

Attorney Ben Short, representing Scaramuzzo, before the hearing of evidence yesterday, endeavored to have the evidence suppressed on the ground of irregularity in serving the search warrant used in the raid on Scaramuzzo's shop. Judge Green overruled that motion, clearing the way for a decision on the issue of the facts.

Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne, who was specially assigned to prosecute Scaramuzzo, and Assistant State's Attorney Robert Klenha presented their evidence quickly.

Detective Philip Breitze testified that after Scaramuzzo had been arrested in the gunsmith shop, and guns in a vault were found to have numbers filed off them, he went to Judge Donald S. McKinlay and obtained a warrant to seize the weapons. The result of the seizure was placed before the jury—53 pistols of various makes, nine of which had defaced numbers.

Everett Schwantes, an expert, who by a chemical process is able to reproduce numbers obliterated through filing or other means, testified that he was able to reproduce the numbers on the gun involved in the specific charge on which Scaramuzzo was being tried. In all there were thirteen charges against the defendant.

Character Witness Heard.

The state then rested and Defense Attorney Short called Dr. Ray M. Fouts, 5219 Wolfram street, as a character witness. Dr. Fouts testified that Scaramuzzo bore a good reputation for being a law abiding citizen.

Scaramuzzo then took the stand and testified that he is 42 years of age, the father of nine children, that he came here from Italy when 15 years old and that he was naturalized in 1918. He had never been arrested previously, he stated.

In closing arguments, Mr. Klenha read the law, which says possession of a gun with defaced numbers is prima facie evidence against the possessor. Attorney Short replied that the prosecution was ridiculous in the face of Scaramuzzo's denial that he owned the gun in question. Scaramuzzo claimed it belonged to a customer whose name he did not give. In replying, Prosecutor Ditchburne said this new law is the only one which gives the state the "presumption" of guilt, and is the first to "give the public a break."

The jurors took the 53 guns with them when they retired to deliberate, and an hour later brought in a verdict of guilty, which Attorney Short said would be appealed. Judge Green said he would impose sentence on Friday. The maximum penalty is one year's imprisonment in the county jail and a fine of $300.

POLICEMAN'S SHOTS KILL TWO IN CAFE BATTLE

Robert Bridges, 30 years old, 2447 East 74th street, and William Moriarity, 29 years old, 3546 Princeton avenue, died in the Bridewell hospital last night of bullet wounds inflicted early yesterday morning by Policeman Harvey McArthur, an ex-marine, assigned to the South Chicago station. The men were shot outside the La Fiesta café, 8044 South Chicago avenue.

McArthur was summoned to the café by John J. Thies, the proprietor. Thies told the policeman that Moriarity and Bridges were intoxicated and were trying to break into the café. The policeman said the men attacked him, knocked him down, and beat him when he appeared. McArthur was rescued by Hans Jenkins, 6417 Maryland avenue, driver of the taxicab in which the men had been riding. McArthur ended the fight by drawing his revolver and opening fire.

Before they died the two men said they went to the café to recover a hat one of them had left there earlier in the evening.

KIDNAP SUSPECT IS FREED.

Arthur O'Leary, 38 years old, 6200 Kenmore avenue, seized as a suspect in kidnapings and confidence games, was freed by Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Criminal court yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus.

HEARS HUSBAND

MRS. MARY D. SIMMONS.

TELLS WEALTHY WOMAN'S TRIPS TO SPIRIT MEDIUMS

The litigation for the $437,000 estate of the late Mrs. Kitty Gunn-Jones of 4119 Drexel boulevard went forward yesterday when her former chauffeur, Carl J. Carlson, 7736 Essex avenue, testified to his mistress' frequent visits to fortune tellers and mediums during the last years of her life. She consulted her ouija board for directions concerning her stock market manipulations and often entertained a Negro yogi at tea, he asserted.

The hearing took place in the office of Ald. Jacob Arvey, who is a master in chancery acting for Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski. He will recommend judicial action on a bill for partition of the real estate of Mrs. Gunn-Jones, which was filed by her second husband, George W. Jones, who married her in 1925.

Although the real estate involved does not exceed $20,000 in value, the whole estate is concerned, attorneys explained, since Mrs. Gunn-Jones is considered to have died intestate because Probate Judge Horner refused to probate her will made a short time before her death, leaving almost her entire fortune to her husband. Judge Horner has suspended action of his court until the Circuit court has adjudicated the partition bill and a second suit filed by eighteen heirs of Mrs. Gunn-Jones.

The heirs' action asks that the court annul Jones' marriage, alleging that his wife was not mentally competent to contract marriage at the time the ceremony was performed.

EVERY MAN HAS WEAK MOMENTS, SIMMONS SAYS

Thus He Explains Why He Said "Yes" to Wife.

Parke E. Simmons, 78 years old, Evanston art collector and retired lawyer, explained yesterday with dignity that at certain moments in the life of every man he will tell a woman that he loves her whether he does or not.

The theory was expounded in the chambers of Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude, who is hearing the motion for temporary alimony made by Mrs Mary de Diemar Wright Simmons, 51 years old, who is suing her husband for separate maintenance. Last July Simmons filed a bill for annulment of their marriage, but recently Judge Trude ruled that he had no ground for court relief. Subsequently Simmons, who charged that he was tricked into marriage when his wife falsely convinced him that he was about to become a father, filed an amended bill which is now pending.

Questioned by Attorney.

Earlier in the case Simmons testified that he was intimate with his wife on seven occasions prior to their marriage in January, 1931. Yesterday he was asked by his wife's attorney, Samuel T. Lawton, of what he spoke during their first meeting.

"O," said Simmons slowly, "we just spoke of those things appropriate to the occasion."

"Just what," asked Attorney Lawton, "did you consider appropriate to the occasion?"

For a moment Simmons peered through his spectacles at his questioner. Then he leaned back in his chair, clasped his hands, and pleaded, "Mr. Lawton, please."

The attorney withdrew the question and asked if Simmons had spoken of love.

"Mrs. Simmons would ask me if I loved her," the witness said, "and I would say 'Yes,' because you know what would be the result if I did not. Under those circumstances any man says 'Yes,' whether he means it in the bottom of his heart or not.

Denies Ardent Wooing.

But later Simmons denied that he had conducted an ardent campaign of wooing, saying that he had carefully kept any mention of love out of their relationship. Even the Christmas card he sent was chosen because it contained no mention of love, he said. He sent it, he explained, only because "it was the courteous thing to do."

Sitting only a few feet from his wife in the crowded chambers, Simmons slightly raised his voice and emphasized his words when he stated: "There never has been a moment since I met Mrs. Simmons that I couldn't have said good-by to her permanently without the slightest regret."

GETS DIVORCE

MRS. MARGUERITE KLASEN.

Mrs. Marguerite Klasen, 22 years old, 5135 North Ashland avenue, a dancer known on the stage as Peggy Leaf, was granted a divorce from Theodore Klasen of Maywood yesterday by Judge Harry B. Miller in the Superior court. She testified that they were married in 1928 at Waukegan and charged that Klasen deserted her a year later.

ALBERT B. FALL DENIED PAROLE AS UNJUSTIFIED

In denying application for a parole for the former cabinet member, the federal parole board today asserted his release would be "unjustifiable and incompatible with the welfare of society," and contrary to the intent of the framers of the parole law.

Former Secretary of the Interior Fall was sent to the penitentiary after being found guilty of "bribery," a charge leveled against him in the federal courts, for the part he played in the sensational oil lease scandals of the Harding administration.

INCURABLY ILL, DOCTOR POISONS FAMILY AND SELF

Pretends to Administer Typhoid Antitoxin.

New York, Feb. 2.—[Special.]—His day as the beloved country doctor was over—ended by specialists in larger places nearby. The securities which he had purchased against just such a contingency had declined steadily in value. There had been a final blow. One of the specialists told him he was suffering with an incurable disease and had only a few years to live.

So, Dr. Frederick C. Low, 64, gathered his entire family about him in his home at High Bridge, N. J. He held a hypodermic needle in his hand. He told them he was about to administer an antitoxin against typhoid fever.

All Submit Willingly.

They all submitted willingly—Mrs. Alice Low, 38, his wife; Mary, 11, his daughter, and Frederick C. Low Jr., 15, his son, who had been summoned home from Pennington seminary for just this purpose. Then Dr. Low administered the treatment to himself and laid the needle aside.

That, as the state police reconstruct the scene, happened Sunday night.

All day yesterday the door of the Low home remained closed. The milk bottles on the front porch were untouched. Schoolmates who called for Mary received no answer when they rang the doorbell.

Puzzle Solved by Police.

The puzzle was solved today. Frederick awoke with burning skin and a throbbing head. He groped his way to the telephone, knocked the receiver from the hook, and called for help.

A quick thinking operator called Harvey Hoffman, a neighbor. He summoned troopers and they broke into the Low home.

Mrs. Low and her daughter were in bed in a room on the second floor. They were dead.

Dr. Low was lying on a couch on the first floor. He, too, was dead. The hypodermic needle was on a table at his side.

Frederick, who had lapsed into unconsciousness, was the only living member of the family. He was taken to the hospital of the Annandale reformatory. There, according to Dr. Boyer, his condition improved somewhat.

Youth Tells His Story.

The youth was able to tell state troopers what had happened. He showed them the mark of a needle in his foot and they found burns about his body.

The contents of the syringe were analyzed and were found to be a deadly poison.

Dr. Low lived in a sparsely settled section of High Bridge, which is 35 miles north of Trenton, in Hunterdon county. He had practiced in High Bridge for 39 years.

That practice, residents said, had dwindled slowly in the last decade. Lately he paid considerable attention to his securities, the value of which had declined, even as his practice.

Officials of a bank where the physician's securities were kept said that he called at the institution several times daily and asked to see his stocks and bonds. He would look at them, they asserted, and express concern over his paper losses.

Police Recorder George H. Cramer, who had known Dr. Low for many years, said the physician had behaved "queerly" for some time.

Coroner John G. Brokay of Lebanon gave a formal verdict that Dr. Low had killed his wife and daughter, attempted to kill his son, and then ended his own life.

Mrs. Low was a daughter of the late Assemblyman John Matthews.

INQUIRY ORDERED ON EMPLOYMENT BUREAU CHIEF

Gov. Emmerson has instructed Barney Cohen, director of the state department of labor, to conduct a thorough inquiry into the reported brokerage activities of John Keane, superintendent of the state free employment bureau and proprietor of Keane & Co., a La Salle street securities house.

Until he receives Cohen's report the governor, it was said, will have no comment to make on the literature issued by Keane, in which he promised clients the name of a stock with possibilities of 1,000 per cent profit and in which he declared that his state job gave him access to important information bearing on the stock market.

It was understood that Mr. Cohen's inquiry would bear on what percentage of his time Keane has been devoting to the free employment bureau.

DISARM PARLEY TOLD IT MUST NOT FAIL NOW

Powers Join Move to Win Peace in Orient.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 2.—That medley of offstage noises, called in old plays "alarums, alarums, alarums of war," was all that was lacking when Arthur Henderson, former British foreign secretary, this afternoon opened the international conference on reduction and limitation of arms.

Without any such horrific commotion, the alarms were there all right, vibrating in the hush in which the spokesmen of 1,700,000,000 people at last confronted the mammoth task cut out for them at Versailles and so laboriously approached these last twelve years.

Parley Waits on League.

Henderson's stroke of the gavel waited an hour on an emergency session of the league of nations' council called to hear J. H. Thomas, British secretary for dominions, reveal what Great Britain and the United States had done to halt "war in everything but name" in China.

This statement, which was as strong as bull beef, shook the French and Italians into declarations that they had taken similar steps, and the council as a whole to give its benediction to move to end this war while its commission at Shanghai is trying to find out what it's all about.

It was only an hour's delay, but it alleviated some more acutely farcical aspects of the situation, and Henderson was able to refer to the war in progress without anybody saying, for instance, that Maxim Litvinoff, soviet commissar of foreign affairs, was getting nasty.

"Before passing on to my main subject I feel bound to refer," said Henderson, chairman of the most important gathering since the end of the world war, "to the tragic fact that at the moment when this conference, the very purpose of which is to take further steps toward the maintenance of peace, begins its work, we are confronted with a situation of such extreme gravity as that which now exists in the far east.

Calls on Signatories.

"It is imperative that all the signatories of the covenant of the league of nations and the Briand-Kellogg pact should make it their business to insure the strict observance of these two great safeguards against acts of violence and war."

Nobody peeped. Mr. Thomas, the English railroader, had taken care of that a few minutes before in the league council room.

Henderson never abandoned his restraint, which undoubtedly left some of the continentals cold, even when he referred to the "horrifying cataclysm" the next war would involve.

"Every delegate in this hall, I am sure," he said, "fervidly hopes and prays that mankind may be spared an occurrence whose mere contemplation staggers and afflicts the imagination."

Refers to Kellogg Pact.

Henderson then went into the network of treaties designed as a part of the "bulwark of peace" and referred to the Kellogg pact as binding "almost every civilized country in the world."

He spoke with few illusions, adding: "I refuse to contemplate even the possibility of failure. If we fail, none can foretell the evil consequences which might ensue."

The conference opened without ceremony. Henderson, looking ill and strained, brought down his gavel twice and began to speak.

Three Main Objectives.

He spoke for a solid hour. Outside the newsboys could be heard crying the latest developments in the orient as he stated the task of the conference and outlined three main objectives:

1. A collective agreement on a practical program for substantial reduction and limitation of armaments.

2. A determination that no armaments may be maintained outside the scope of that agreement.

3. Plans for similar conferences in the future at reasonably short intervals of time.

The chairman then held out for disarmament as a hope for the solution of the economic and financial crisis. He figured that $4,000,000,000 had been spent on armaments by 61 countries in the last four or five years.

"World Needs Disarmament."

"World opinion demands every effort be made for this conference to achieve a substantial reduction of those prodigious expenditures," said Henderson. "The world wants disarmament; the world needs disarmament."

The league council had planned no meeting for today, as the report of the investigation commission at Shanghai had not arrived. Dr. W. W. Yen for China tried to provoke one but had no luck.

Then the British secretary for dominions asked that the council assemble in an emergency session and Andre Tardieu of France, acting chairman, could only give him the floor.

"Great Britain feels it is impossible that the present condition in the far east should be allowed to continue," the British minister said. "Each day brings news of some fresh incident of utmost gravity. Fighting over a wide area is practically continuous. Shanghai is the scene of a series of conflicts in which rifles, machine guns, artillery, and airplanes are taking part.

"War Is in Progress."

"War in everything but name is in progress. To such a state of things the members of the league of nations cannot be indifferent. If it is allowed to go on, the league covenant, the pact of Paris, and the nine power treaty must inevitably lose the confidence of the world.

"It is not without significance to the members of the league that the United States government takes entirely the same view of the situation. In all the efforts to secure peace put forward by the council during the last four months we have been happy to receive the wholehearted support of the United States. On several occasions the council has pressed its members to second its efforts by diplomatic representations to the two governments concerned.

"The British government, other governments and members of the league have shown themselves ready to respond to that appeal. Unfortunately these efforts have been unsuccessful so far. The British government, therefore, in concert with the United States government, has decided to make a further effort to bring the present lamentable state of things to an end and they trust that other governments can see their way to take similar actions. The two governments have accordingly presented Tokio and Nanking their formal request."

Demand Is Outlined.

Thomas outlined the request, which was featured by a demand on both nations to cease hostilities at once.

"In bringing its action on this matter to the notice of the council, Great Britain is satisfied it will receive the approval and support of its colleagues," he said.

The diplomats about the horseshoe table appeared unconcerned with the exception of Dr. Yen, who beamed his delight. Tardieu quietly said that the French yesterday had instructed their representatives at Tokio and Nanking to take similar steps and bearded Dino Grandi of Italy said the same.

OFFICIAL PROBE FAILS TO PROVE INSULT TO U.S. FLAG IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—[U. P.]—An official inquiry by American consular authorities has failed to prove that an American flag was desecrated during the crises in the last few days. The inquiry followed a protest lodged at the United States consulate general by the Rev. Dr. J. C. Hawk, presiding elder in the Methodist Episcopal [South] district in Shanghai.

QUAKE RAZES SANTIAGO, CUBA; REPORT 1,500 DIE

Thousands Injured; City Laid in Ruins.

been killed or injured still is unknown.

Although a large number of vessels of the scouting fleet are at Guantanamo, only 35 miles from Santiago, no word of the reported earthquake at the latter city had been received by the navy department here at 4 o'clock this morning. Admiral A. L. Willard on his flagship, the cruiser Augusta, is in command at Guantanamo and, in the belief of naval officers here, would have communicated any information he received at once.

CITY FOUNDED IN 1514.

Santiago is the capital of the province of Oriente and lies on the southeast coast of the island 470 miles southeast of Havana. It has a fine natural harbor, completely landlocked and very deep and capacious. It is five miles long and has a very narrow entrance, at one spot only about 200 yards in width.

The rocky cliffs which surround the entrance are crowned by the celebrated Morro castle, well remembered by all Americans old enough to recall the Spanish-American war, and the fortress of Socaba. The city is only 35 miles north of the American naval base at Guantanamo.

Built on the rocky and precipitous sides of the mountains, the city is made up largely of one storied houses which cluster along narrow, crooked streets. The population of the city was 61,513 in 1914, of whom almost 60 per cent are colored. In recent years it has grown greatly and the latest total is 141,124.

Suffers from Pirate Raids.

Santiago was founded in 1514 by Diego Velasquez and was the capital of the island through most of the first half of that century. In common with other cities on the Spanish main it suffered repeatedly from the raids of pirates and hostile fleets.

The cathedral of Santiago, designated as architecturally more imposing than that of Havana, contains the tomb of the first governor, Velasquez.

Another building of great antiquity in the city was the convent of San Francisco, reckoned the oldest structure in Cuba. It was erected prior to 1550.

The city is the principal market for the rich mining industries which center in the mountains behind it. Iron foundries and machine shops and a considerable number of tobacco factories are its principal industries, and its greatest exports are tobacco, coffee, sugar, iron ore, manganese, and cabinet woods. It has a considerable coastwise trade and is the terminus of the railroad which runs the length of the island.

KILLED AT ELEVATED STATION.

The body of a man who fell to his death from the Ravenswood elevated platform at Western avenue, was identified later in the day as that of Herman C. Winter, 46 years old, 6631 North Talman avenue, a pattern maker.

HEREWITH RECORD OF DEATH TOLL TAKEN BY OTHER QUAKES

Perhaps the most destructive earthquake of modern times was the one which occurred in the vicinity of Tokio and Yokohama, Japan, on Sept. 1, 1923. More than 99,000 persons were killed and 702,000 houses were destroyed.

The quake of 1906 in San Francisco cost 452 lives and made 265,000 homeless. Property damage was placed at $350,000,000.

Three thousand persons were killed by a quake in the Orizaba mountain district of Mexico in 1920. In Guatemala in 1917 a total of 2,500 lost their lives. In Nicaragua, last March, 2,000 were killed.

Italy has suffered severely during the past thirty years from earthquakes. Sicily and Calabria were shaken in 1908 and 76,000 were killed. In 1915 the central part of the peninsula was visited by a tremor that killed more than 29,000.

One of the great disasters of modern times was the destruction of St. Pierre on the island of Martinique by an eruption of Mont Pelee. The dead in that catastrophe reached 30,000.

13,000 JAPANESE MOVE ON HARBIN; FIGHT BLIZZARD

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Gen. Jiro Tamon, the bespectacled and professional little Japanese leader who captured Tsitsihar and Kowpangtze, moved his veteran troops from Changchun today toward Harbin.

The troop movement was started in weather 30 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, and there was a blinding snowstorm, but despite these adverse conditionse 2,000 Japanese residents of Changchun cheered the departing soldiers.

Warn Chinese General.

Gen. Tamon's objective is to drive out of Harbin the Chinese forces of Gen. Ting Chao. He operated under orders from Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese high commander, who has warned Gen. Ting that the Japanese are determined to protect foreign lives and property from warring Chinese factions in Harbin.

One brigade entrained from Changchun today and another, under Gen. Amano, is leaving tomorrow. The entire expeditionary force, totaling about 13,000 men, is expected to enter Harbin by Friday.

One Japanese brigade already has taken position south of Harbin.

Dispatches from the north today indicated that Gen. Ting's command was disintegrating. Two regiments had been put to flight by the Japanese, these reports said, another had deserted, but Gen. Ting said he still had 10,000 men left and was determined to oppose the Japanese to the last.

In addition to considerable infantry forces, Gen. Tamon has several batteries of artillery, a unit of engineers and a ground crew for his air squadron.

Ask Russia's Permission.

MOSCOW, Feb. 2.—(AP)—A Tass (Russian) News agency dispatch from Peiping today said Japanese army commanders had asked soviet officials of the Chinese Eastern railway for permission to transport troops from Tsitsihar to Harbin, Manchuria, where the Japanese were advancing on Chinese forces. The soviet vice chairman of the railway's board replied that the Chinese officials of the line would have to give their consent.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM — COURTESY — EFFICIENT SERVICE — ALWAYS

He Never Heard of Railroads

George Washington, born 200 years ago this month, encouraged the development of interior transportation and himself organized and headed a company for the improvement of the Potomac River.

Upon his death in 1799 the United States was the beneficiary of nearly two centuries of highway and waterway transportation. Yet commerce was meager and difficult, the population was a bare 5,000,000, and that was along the seacoast.

Thirty years after Washington's death the first railroad in America was built. In the ensuing century our population has grown to 125,000,000, and our vast domain has become an organized and efficient economic unit.

When we give thanks, as we should, for the progress made since Washington's day, let us not forget the vital part played therein by our railroads.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

President, Illinois Central System

Chicago, February 1, 1932.

It is no mere coincidence that the United States and the railroads grew together.

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfaction in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

HOOVER AWAITS TOKIO'S REPLY TO PEACE PROPOSAL

Washington Sees Japan 'Blunder' in Shanghai.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 3 (Wednesday, 12:30 p. m.).—The Japanese naval ministry today denied that Admiral Koichi Shiozawa, fleet commander at Shanghai, had been recalled to Japan or that the matter had even been considered.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Pronouncing "critical in the extreme" the situation in Shanghai, where 5,000 Americans are war imperiled, the Hoover administration tonight is awaiting the replies of Japan and China to the mediation proposals of the four principal world powers.

[A dispatch to The Tribune from Tokio early this morning stated that only part of the peace proposals were acceptable to the Japanese government. Meanwhile an unconfirmed report from Shanghai said Japan was landing troops.]

With Japanese naval hostilities suspended for the time being, following the recall of the fleet commander, Admiral Koichi Shiozawa, the chief danger in Shanghai now emanates from several thousand Japanese and Chinese civilians, who are armed and carrying on desultory warfare. There is evident apprehension that an irresponsible act on the part of such irregular combatants might be the spark that would touch off the powder barrel.

The recall of the hard boiled admiral, Shiozawa, from Shanghai by the Tokio government and his supersession by Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, an officer reputed to be of a wholly different type, is generally regarded here as a confession by Japan of a major blunder in the tactics employed in the assault on the Chinese metropolis, particularly the invasion and occupation of the international settlement.

Punished for Defeat.

Military officers were not surprised, for they were the first to sense the fact that the Japanese forces at Shanghai had in reality suffered a signal defeat at the hands of the Chinese infantrymen, and they construed the recall of the Japanese commander as an attempt by the Tokio government to "save face" by blaming Admiral Shiozawa for the blunder.

Color is lent to this interpretation by the removal, as well, of the chief of staff of the Japanese navy. There appear to be two counts in the accusation of the chief of staff and the recalled admiral. One is that the expedition lacked sufficient numbers to assure successful operations. The other is that the attack should have been made on the opposite side of Shanghai, which would not have involved invasion of the international settlement.

That a battle ashore was contemplated from the beginning is indicated to naval officers by the numbers engaged. Had each Japanese warship not carried far more than normal complements of bluejackets, there would have been none left aboard after the landing.

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, paid a high tribute to Admiral Nomura, the new Japanese commander at Shanghai, whom he knows personally. He is not only a most able naval officer, said Admiral Pratt, "but he is of statesman caliber, having served a long apprenticeship as aid to Baron Kato, one of the finest characters and foremost liberal statesmen of his day. If any naval man can help clear up this tense situation in Shanghai, I feel that better choice could not have been made than the appointment of Nomura to handle this difficult situation."

There is much discussion tonight of the possibility that the Japanese military blunder may have consequences even more far reaching. It was because of the blunder at Shanghai involving Japan in difficulties with the western powers that Tokio suggested mediation. The United States and Great Britain, seizing upon that opportunity, made proposals involving not only cessation of hostilities, but settlement of the entire controversy between Japan and China, including the right of Japan to retain control of Manchuria.

If, as a result, Japan should be forced to relinquish Manchuria, it would be because of the Japanese navy's blunder at Shanghai.

Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese ambassador, called at the state department this afternoon, but said he had heard nothing on this matter. He called to deny the report that Japan is sending two brigades of troops to Shanghai.

The cabinet meeting today, which was protracted, was devoted almost entirely to discussion of the Asiatic situation. The course the President is now pursuing meets with the unanimous approval of his advisers. This course is to employ armed forces only for the protection of Americans in China and to join with other powers in proposing mediation.

The question of dispatching naval units from the battle fleet now steaming toward the Hawaiian islands for the winter maneuvers and additional marines and army troops from continental United States has been considered but a decision held in abeyance. It is understood, however, that the battle fleet will be held at the Hawaiian islands as long as there is possibility of reinforcements being needed in Asiatic waters.

Weakens Defense in Far East.

With the 31st infantry transferred from the Philippines, where it constituted the garrison of Manila, to Shanghai, the defense of America's far eastern possessions is that much weakened. In the event of war between the United States and Japan it would be within the possibilities for the Japanese to capture the 31st infantry at Shanghai and then be able to descend upon the Philippines and occupy the islands with a handful of troops.

It was stated at the war department that if it becomes necessary to retain the American regiment at Shanghai for a considerable period a regiment will be sent from continental United States to the Philippines as replacement.

The mediation move was explained to the cabinet in detail and the character of the coöperation with the other powers considered. It is denied by cabinet members that this coöperation rests upon any bargain pertaining to reparations and war debts as is reported from Paris to be the consideration whereby France agreed to join in the representations made to Japan. This report is that Great Britain agreed to support France on a settlement of reparations and war debts, in return for which France agreed to back up Great Britain in the far east. By this means Britain is said to have detached France from Japan.

Perceives Hint from Japan.

According to the story percolating from the cabinet meeting it was President Hoover who first perceived the opening for mediation proposals. He learned from the press Sunday night that the Japanese foreign minister, in talking with the American and British ambassadors, had used the words "good offices" in urging that their governments persuade China to withdraw her troops from Shanghai. It is "good offices" that nations offer when attempting mediation.

At the instance of the President, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson early yesterday morning searched the official messages for trace of the Tokio suggestion. He found it. It contained the suggestion that Britain and America use their good offices. China had been asking for good offices daily for weeks. With both China and Japan asking good offices, it would not be an intrusion to offer mediation.

Mr. Hoover told Mr. Stimson to go ahead. At 10 a. m. Mr. Hoover and the secretary were talking to Prime Minister MacDonald in London by telephone. At 11 MacDonald telephoned Britain would join the United States and suggested the proposals to be made. At noon agreement was reached and an hour later France and Italy were being asked to join. Four hours later the British and American envoys presented the mediation offer at Tokio and Nanking.

MANILA IS STRIPPED OF U. S. WARSHIPS AS FLEET SPEEDS TO CHINA

MANILA, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Warlike conditions in China stripped Manila bay today of ships of the United States navy's Asiatic fleet, all hastening to the trouble area with soldiers, bluejackets, and marines, to protect nationals in the danger zones. Only a few submarines, their mother ship, Beaver, and a few naval auxiliaries were left in the empty looking harbor.

Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, commander of the army's Philippine department, asserted the sudden troop movement was "in no way to be considered an act of hostility to either China or Japan."

CEASE FIGHTING! CHINA AND JAPAN TOLD BY POWERS

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Great Britain and America, tired at last of Japan's stalling tactics in the attack on Shanghai and other parts of China, today demanded the immediate cessation of hostilities. This announcement was made this afternoon in the house of commons by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, who had risen from a sick bed to be present, and by J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, at Geneva.

SIR JOHN SIMON.
[Acme Photo.]

France and Italy have agreed to support the demand and Germany has given her cautious indorsement, the British house was told.

What the powers propose to do if Japan still proves recalcitrant was not stated, but it has been learned that the powers are seriously considering a declaration of an economic boycott against Japan if other efforts fail.

Out of respect to American susceptibilities, this boycott may not be declared by the league of nations, but by the powers separately, with all acting in concert.

Sir John Simon's statement this afternoon began with a retrospect of the events within the last few days. He then announced that instructions had been sent to British representatives at Tokio and Nanking to deliver the following proposals, pressing strongly their acceptance and indicating that the proposals agreed with those of the United States government and that the French and Italians had joined in approval:

1. Cessation of all acts of violence on both sides at once on the following terms:

2. No further mobilization or preparations whatever for further hostilities.

Ask Troops Withdrawn.

3. Withdrawal of both Japanese and Chinese combatants from all points of mutual contact in the Shanghai area.

4. Protection of the international settlement by the establishment of neutral zones, these zones to be policed by neutral nations and arrangements to be set up by consular authorities on the spot.

5. Upon acceptance of these conditions a prompt advance to be made by negotiations to settle all outstanding controversies between the two parties in the spirit of the treaty of Paris and the resolution of the league of nations of Dec. 9, without prior demand or reservation and with the aid of neutral observers or participants.

Prime Minister MacDonald will undergo a delicate eye operation for glaucoma after tomorrow's cabinet meeting. His ailment is described by physicians as a "slight and progressive diminution of the vision of his left eye." The prime minister's general health is described as satisfactory. The operation will keep him in a nursing home for at least a week.

Germany Sends Protest.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—As a power which signed the Kellogg pact and is a member of the league of nations, but has no settlement in China, Germany took independent diplomatic steps with Tokio by cable today in reference to the conflict in China.

ECUADOR CLAIMS REVOLT CRUSHED; REBELS FIGHT ON

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The government today announced it had crushed a revolt in the area of Tulcan near the Colombian border and imprisoned two men described as its leaders.

The Quito correspondent of El Telegrafo said, however, that the rebels had reorganized and again attacked the Tulcan barracks with machine guns from the towers of a church in front of it. Federal troops were resisting the attack while awaiting reinforcements, he said.

Sixty rebels and five federals were killed in an eight-hour battle in which the Manabi battalion recaptured the barracks.

JONES FILES BILL TO FORCE STATES TO HAVE DRY LAW

Would Use Army, Navy in Boycott Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Dry sentiment chose another means of forcing its will on the dissenter today when Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], author of the notorious "Five and Ten" law, introduced a resolution in the senate aimed at coercing states now without state prohibition laws into passing such laws and warning other states not to abandon concurrent enforcement.

WESLEY L. JONES. [Fotograms.]

The Jones resolution seeks to prohibit the navy from sending any vessel to a port in any state without state enforcement, and to prohibit the holding of Citizens' Military Training camps or the building of government ships in states without state dry laws.

He denied that the resolution would include West Point, Annapolis or the coast guard training school at Newport, R. I., all of which are in states without state enforcement. These schools, the senator explained, were established and permanent.

Woodcock Opposes Beer Bill.

The introduction of the Jones resolution came shortly after the senate subcommittee considering the Bingham beer bill had heard it pointed out that although the federal taxpayers are required to support a prohibition force which was made 33 per cent larger last July the number of prohibition cases in the federal courts has risen only 20 per cent.

The reason for this was the old economic law of diminishing returns, explained Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, who was the day's head line witness.

Director Woodcock, personally as well as officially dry, did not approve of the bill sponsored by Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] to bring back beer. It would, he said, mean the return of the saloon.

Senator Bingham pointed out that his measure specifies that the beer would be bottled and sold only in case lots; that it could not be consumed in public except in hotels or restaurants with meals. Col. Woodcock said he feared, in that case, that restaurants might degenerate into saloons.

"Do you believe there are no saloons now?" asked Senator Bingham.

"There are no legal saloons," was the prohibition director's reply.

"That may be, but there were more than 6,000 actual saloons closed in 1931," the senator countered.

Beer Would End Enforcement.

Col. Woodcock maintained that enforcement was growing increasingly effective. And he claimed that the "net enforcement cost" which he estimated at $4,234,282 was unfairly figured. There should be credited, he asserted, the contraband, which is seized and allocated to other government departments. He insisted that the government was just about repaid for its efforts to enforce the dry laws.

He agreed that the legislation of beer would simplify the enforcement problem to whatever extent the people accepted beer as a substitute for hard liquors.

"If a hotel could sell beer at 10 cents a pint, as against beer at 25 cents a glass in a speakeasy, wouldn't that hit the speakeasy pretty hard?" asked Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.], former Peoria distiller.

Wants 10 Years More.

Joy Elmer Morgan of the National Educational association compared prohibition to Christianity and the founding of the public school system and told the committee that the eighteenth amendment is the "greatest child welfare movement of all history."

Answering questions by Representative Hull, he said:

"If you can't keep liquor away with the law, how are you going to keep it away if you repeal the law?"

"Give us ten years more," he continued, "it takes 25 years for any great reform to be effective. In my opinion there was as much bootlegging in saloon days as now. We are arresting a lot of cases now we would not have looked at 15 years ago."

MOONSHINERS KILL 1 FEDERAL DRY AGENT; ANOTHER IS SHOT

New Orleans, La., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Federal dry agents from New Orleans tonight are pursuing through the pine lands of Mississippi the men who last night, during a raid on a still, shot and killed Agent Robert M. Bulk and seriously wounded Otis Williams, another agent. Mississippi dry agents are joining in the search.

Zeno Hoda of Kiln, Miss., with a bullet wound in the neck, is in jail in Gulfport and is believed to be one of the moonshiners' gang wounded in the exchange of shots. He will not talk, but agents believe he was one of the half dozen around the still, hidden deep in the woods.

The agents came upon the still 30 miles north of Gulfport and were almost upon the moonshiners before they were discovered. The moonshiners scattered into the woods, firing as they fled, and the government men returned shot for shot. Two agents fell, one dying almost immediately and the other seriously wounded.

Bloodhounds have been sent to aid the agents in the pursuit, and it is not believed possible that the moonshiners can escape, inasmuch as the country through which they are fleeing is comparatively open.

He has been missing since Sunday. Many were killed in the area into which he vanished.

JUDGE IMPOSES 28 SENTENCES IN RUM PLOT TRIAL

Woman, 25 Men and Two Corporations Hit.

Twenty-six individuals and two corporations were meted out fines or prison terms or both yesterday in a windup of the $12,000,000 midwest liquor conspiracy case which has been on trial before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley here since Jan. 12. Federal agents had spent 18 months developing the evidence.

Robert W. Besse of Sterling, former state's attorney of Whiteside county, most prominent convicted defendant among the assorted still tenders, alcohol peddlers, fixers, and business men, was absent when the sentences were imposed. Judge Lindley said he would rule in Besse's case today.

The sentences imposed were as follows:

Harry Chapman, Waterloo, Ia., one year and a $2,000 fine.

Mrs. Harriet Fritts, Aurora, sole woman defendant, six months in jail; sentence suspended for two years' probation.

Joseph Schreiner, Aurora, ninety days and a $100 fine, jail sentence to be suspended under two years' probation.

James Fishburn, Aurora, three months and a $100 fine.

Paul Cinquinna, Chicago, 18 months and a $1,000 fine.

Joseph Keller, Aurora, $200 fine.

Clare Mahoney, Chicago, three months and a $100 fine.

Morris N. Fink, president of the Sugar Supply company of Chicago, $300 fine. The company, which allegedly supplied the ring its materials for alcohol manufacture, was fined $1,500.

Thomas J. Harrigan Jr., president of Tom Harrigan, Inc., an automobile concern of Oak Park and Chicago, $100 fine. The company was fined $500.

Five other persons, all associated with Tom Harrigan, Inc., were each fined $100. They are H. D. Carmichael, Kenneth Klattenburg, J. B. O'Connor, Fred Shaw, and Elmer Schroeder.

NEW LEVEE CRASHES; GOV. KING APPEALS TO PRESIDENT FOR HELP

New Orleans, La., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—With a roar heard for miles up and down the Red river in Avoyelles parish, the swirling waters of the river this morning bit out a 100 foot chunk of levee and poured through the break and spread over thousands of acres in this section. The break is expected to materially relieve the strain on the levees above and below Alexandria. The break is at Vick, southeast of Alexandria.

The flood water will sweep over the tip of Avoyelles and in Catahoula and Concordia parishes, and up in the Mississippi delta torrential rainfall has increased the menace of swollen streams, with the Tallahatchie, Yalobusha.

Gov. Alvin O. King, making a tour of inspection of the flooded area in Louisiana with Adjt. Gen. Raymond Fleming, has called upon President Hoover to take over the flood relief work, pointing out that from $250,000 to $500,000 is needed to take care of the 15,000 refugees now living in Red Cross refugee centers.

Evansville Near Isolation.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—With the Ohio river nearly five feet above flood stage, Evansville is threatened with near isolation since all roads except United States highway 41 and state road 66 are closed. All Wabash river ferries of the section are tied up. Ten inches of water stand over highway 41 between Evansville and Henderson.

ONTARIO SLASHES PRICES OF ALL WINE AND LIQUOR

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 2—[Special]—On orders sent out today by the Ontario government, liquor stores in Ontario immediately will reduce the prices of whiskies and wines, it was announced today by Archie Gray, manager of the government stores.

Mr. Gray added that the pint bottles of whisky for medicinal purposes announced by the control board a short time ago, will be ready for the market within two weeks.

Prices on some of the popular brands of liquors were cut as follows: King George's Gold Label from $4 to $3.75 per quart; Mitchell's Heather Dew from $3.75 to $3.55, and Mitchell's Irish whisky from $3.40 to $3.25.

Two brands of Canadian wine have been cut from 65 to 50 cents a quart.

MINERS SWELL RANKS OF 'GOOD' BEER CRUSADE

Reopening of Five Year Agreement Opposed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—With scarcely a dissenting vote, the United Mine Workers of America in their thirty-second biennial convention here today approved a resolution asking for legalization of the manufacture and sale of "good" beer. There was no discussion, and only two or three "nos" were heard.

Delegates from districts 1, 7 and 9, Pennsylvania, which comprise the anthracite fields, following a caucus announced tonight that they approve a resolution opposing any suggestion to reopen the five year agreement with operators, which holds good until 1936. The miners argue that if the agreement is reopened it would provide a loophole for wage reductions.

Connection of John L. Lewis, international president of the union, with the United Labor Bank and Trust company, Indianapolis, received approval when they voted down a resolution which asked that Lewis either resign as president of the bank or as president of the union.

Favor Election of Judges.

The convention also went on record as favoring election, instead of appointment, of federal judges. The delegates approved a resolution drawn up by the Central Labor Union, Rock Springs, Wyo., asking the American Federation of Labor to assess its members for a fund of approximately one million dollars a month to be used in organizing and in payment of strike benefits.

Following completion of the report of the resolutions committee, the convention voted down another proposal, introduced by the Royalton [Ill.] local union, demanding resignation of all international officials, and voted to include in the constitution the six hour, five day working week and unemployment insurance.

The convention reaffirmed its belief in the innocence of Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings, serving life sentences in California prisons, and again asked that the men receive full pardons.

Other resolutions call for a tax on labor saving machinery; assistance to miners of Harlan county, Kentucky, in the dispute which has resulted in criminal prosecution of several men; commend the administration of Lewis, and urge that miners use only products manufactured by companies that use coal as a fuel.

Dodge Repeal Proposal.

The resolution asking modification of the Volstead law was offered as a substitute for several that propose repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Committee members said legalization of beer would provide employment.

A proposal asking for the full payment of the soldiers' bonus was adopted. Numerous resolutions criticizing certain acts of the present mine workers administration and asking investigation of organization work in West Virginia were voted down. Repeal of all syndicalism laws was asked.

Extended discussion was held on two resolutions seeking investigation of the disposition of money raised by the "rank and file movement" in Illinois two years ago.

GANG TERRORIZES TAVERN CROWD, ATTACKS GIRL

Bind and Rob 13 Others in Roadhouse.

Four young men with pistols held up the Liberty Park roadhouse on Route 4-A, fifteen miles south of Joliet early yesterday, kept fourteen persons in subjection for nearly three hours and committed a gang rape upon one of their victims while the others, ten men and three girls, lay bound on the dance hall floor.

The ravished victim is an 18 year old girl of good reputation, a member of a respectable family. She was under a physician's care last night.

The gunmen escaped with approximately $1,000 in loot, consisting of cash, jewelery and clothing, which they stripped from the girls and their escorts. Deputies of Will county and adjoining counties were patrolling all highways, searching for the blue sedan in which the gang fled.

Rob Proprietor First.

Vincent Jonikas, 56 years old, gray haired proprietor of the resort, was at the cigar counter when the robbers arrived about 12:30 a. m. They demanded all his cash. Jonikas shrugged, mumbled something about the depression and pointed to the dance hall, which was deserted except for one couple, Thomas Beach, 25 years old, and his sweetheart, Hazel McKnight, 17, both of Joliet.

One of the gunmen gripped Jonikas by the collar and pressed a gun against him while his partner took $4 from his hip pocket. The other two advanced with drawn guns upon the Joliet couple, produced a clothes line and commanded them to stretch on the floor. Before being bound Miss McKnight was robbed of her fur coat and $17, while Beach gave up $11 and his watch.

Leaving one man on guard the other three then marched to Jonikas' living quarters in the rear, where they found his 17 year old niece, Anna Kruszas, asleep.

Girl Robbed and Bound.

A search of the bureau drawers yielded $6, representing the girl's weekly wages. She was driven out to the dance hall, where she was bound with the others. At this juncture, the proprietor's son, Vincent Jonikas Jr., 20 years old, a freshman at the University of Illinois, returned home with a saxophone under his arm from Lemont, where he had been practicing with the village band. He was also bound.

Three young couples from Lemont, all friends of young Jonikas, were the next to arrive. In the party were Lester Virtel, 22 years old; James Joyce, 23, and Sylvester Nona, 20, each being accompanied by a young woman.

Lead One of Girls Away.

The youths were stripped of their cash and watches and one of the girls gave up a $350 coat, a $125 diamond ring, and a $50 watch. Jonikas, who was lying face down at the end of the row, cried out in protest as he saw two of the men pull the girl next him to her feet, unbind her ankles, and lead her to a rear room.

The girl made no outcry until the door closed behind her and the two men. Then she began to scream. The youths on the floor started struggling in their bonds, but a menacing word from their guards silenced them.

Three more patrons came in, cattle truck drivers en route to the Chicago stockyards, who had stopped for a cup of coffee. Caught unawares by the two gunmen, they submitted to being searched and bound. Their loss was about $40.

3 ARE MASSACRED AT NEW YORK WITH 4 POLICE REVOLVERS

New York, Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Discovery of the two automobiles used by the gangsters who killed two men and a woman last night in Commonwealth avenue, the Bronx, provided a hope of tracing the murderers.

The second automobile contained a sub-machine gun and two shotguns. The first car, in which were four revolvers and on which were license plates that appeared to have been stolen from Auburn prison, had been located earlier in the day. The revolvers were of "special police" make.

The shooting, in which three men were also wounded, took place when gunmen invaded the house known as a haunt of Vincent Coll, gang leader, and opened fire on those gathered there.

Autopsies performed today showed that each of the three victims had been killed by a wound in the head. The three were Pasquale Del Greco, a Coll retainer; Fiorio Bastile, brother of Coll's principal lieutenant, and Mrs. Emily Tenzello, wife of a Bronx business man.

BROTHER TELLS STORY OF PLOT IN JAIL ESCAPE

Officials Disagree with Witness on Pass.

Stanley Montague, 26 years old, who changed places last Sunday with his brother, Cornelius [Neil] Montague, a member of a kidnaping gang, enabling Neil to escape from the county jail admitted last evening to Assistant State's Attorney Ross Lee Laird and Chief Investigator Pat Roche, that he was a party to the "plot."

The investigators informed him that he was not telling them anything new, that what they wanted to know was who, if any one, in authority in the county jail was to blame for allowing the Sunday visit to be made and for allowing the switch to be made and not discoved until it was too late to put the real prisoner back in his cell.

From the jail last evening came a purported solution of the visit. However, the explanation, which is to be forwarded to Sheriff William Meyering today, does not agree with the testimony given on Monday before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court.

Story of Jail Pass.

The explanation offered through Warden David Moneypenny of the jail was that the pass issued by Assistant Warden Frank Wright on Jan. 21, for use on Jan. 24, was not used, but kept until last Sunday when the change was effected.

It was said it was not necessary to use the original letter pass issued by Wright for Sunday, Jan. 24, because Wright telephoned to the jail that he had issued a pass to Joseph Casey, a plumber and precinct worker in the 6th ward. Thereupon the jail authorities, according to their story now, made out a regular jail pass and put it in the Sunday box. When Casey and Mrs. Montague, wife of the escaped prisoner, appeared on the first visit the guard took the regular pass from the Sunday box and the letter pass was not necessary. The warden said the records of the jail would prove this.

Before Judge Fisher on Monday Casey said that he had used the pass on the day for which it was issued. The letter, he said, was turned in at the jail on Jan. 24. However, the jail authorities said this letter was used by Stanley Montague and Neil Montague's wife for admittance to the jail last Sunday.

No Pass for Jan. 24 Visit.

Judge Fisher called for all passes issued for Montague. No pass was produced for the Jan. 24 visit, although five others were handed to the judge. No one could explain how the same pass could have been used twice, because it was the duty of Assistant Warden George Gibson, who acts as warden on Sunday, to take up these letters, stamp them as used, and place them on file. The letter produced was not so stamped.

The explanation came from the jail after State's Attorney Swanson had issued orders to his assistants to question all jail employés, if necessary, to solve the pass question. This is expected to be done today.

His Story of Plot.

Stanley Montague said yesterday that his brother, Frank, first talked to him about changing places with his brother. He said he demurred, but finally consented when he was told that he would be freed the next day on a writ. He said that Frank produced the dye to change his hair from red to brown so that it would match that of the prisoner. He went to the jail with Neil's wife and Frank, he said, and Neil directed him how to act.

Prosecutor Laird said that he would seek indictments today against Stanley, Neil, and Frank Montague, and Neil's wife.

Only Prisoner Flees Jail; Then New Lock Is Stolen

Linton, N. D., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Two weeks ago the only inmate of the Linton jail escaped. A new padlock was placed on the cell door. Then some one broke in to flee with the new lock and wearing apparel the prisoner had left behind.

RUTH JUDD BARED AS SWEETHEART OF PHŒNIX MAN

Alienist Reveals Secret Love Affair.

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Winnie Ruth Judd and Jack Halloran, wealthy Phoenix lumber man, had intimate relations over a period of many months, Dr. Paul Bowers, psychiatrist, said the woman accused of the "jealousy trunk slaying" of her best friends had confessed to him.

DR. PAUL BOWERS. [Acme Photo.]

"She told me she had always wanted a baby by Halloran," Bowers told the jury hearing Mrs. Judd's murder trial here late today. "She said she believed he is still true to her, but cannot visit her in jail because it would cause talk."

Denied She Was Jealous.

"Mrs. Judd denied to me that she was jealous of Halloran. Maybe he loved other girls, she said, but he paid attention mostly to me."

Dr. Bowers' testimony provided the first major sensation of a trial which has been marked by the reluctance of both state and defense to bring into clear focus much of the hazy background of the dual murder.

It came immediately after he had unhesitatingly declared Mrs. Judd entirely sane and capable now as well as on Oct. 16 of not only knowing right from wrong but of knowing exactly what she was doing.

Dr. Bowers' testimony for the first time sketched clearly the part Jack Halloran played in the lives of the three women.

Halloran himself stands subpoenaed as a prosecution rebuttal witness and may be forced to the stand before the trial is concluded.

High Feeling Prevails.

The day ended with high feeling in as well as out of court, as defense attorneys made a desperate effort to get Judge Howard C. Speakman to order Dr. Bowers' notes turned over to them.

Prosecution attorneys fought back and gained temporary victory when Dr. Bowers was permitted to retain them over night after they were marked for identification.

Dr. William C. Judd, husband of the slayer, who yesterday cam to her defense by revealing in court intimate details of their marital relations, heard Dr. Bowers begin his testimony, then hastily left the courtroom.

Mrs. Judd appeared unconcerned, but a few minutes later when she left the courtroom as adjournment was taken, lunged savagely at Bowers as he stood in the corridor, pushing him against the wall before turning to walk calmly ahead of her matron guard.

Presenting length and highly technical testimony by Dr. Edward D. Huntington Williams and Dr. Clifford Wright, Los Angeles psychiatrists, that Mrs. Judd is insane and unable to tell right from wrong, the defense abruptly rested this afternoon when Dr. Wright was almost contemptuously excused from cross-examination by the prosecution.

Dr. Williams declared Mrs. Judd is "an undeveloped woman, a eunuchoid in our term, and her condition is aggravated by active tuberculosis."

Witnesses Stress Sanity.

Immediately before presenting Dr. Bowers, whose testimony will be followed by that of Dr. Joseph Catton, the state called half a dozen persons who testified that Mrs. Judd had been entirely rational in her conversations, actions, and work for a long period preceding the dual slaying.

Prosecution attorneys said their rebuttal will be completed tomorrow.

HAMMER KILLER CALLED MANIAC BY 2 ALIENISTS

Lunges at Police as They Quiz Him.

Paul Harrison, 29 years old, who has confessed two hammer murders and implicated himself in a third, was examined by two alienists in his cell at the detective bureau last night. Following the examination it was reported the psychiatrists found Harrison to be a homicidal maniac.

The doctors refused to make public their findings until Harrison is arraigned in court. The examination was made at the request of Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne when he became convinced that Harrison was mentally unbalanced during hours of questioning that followed the confessions early yesterday.

Police Resume Questioning.

Dr. Francis Gerty and Dr. Harry Hoffman submitted the killer to tests. Further examination is to be made today by Dr. H. Douglas Singer. After the mental tests the police resumed their questioning of Harrison in the hope of solving two additional hammer murders. During the questioning Harrison frequently lunged at the prosecutor and policemen.

The victims named by Harrison were Miss Norma Newby, 27 years old, 2701 Flournoy street, who was found beaten to death in the Elk Grove forest preserve last March; Dr. James Shaffer, a dentist, slain in his office at 3801 Broadway on Jan. 23, and Earl Davis, 22 years old, a watchman, who was hammered to death in a garage at 3740 Sheridan road last Sunday.

Harrison was identified yesterday by Frank J. Murray as one of two men who kidnaped Miss Newby and himself and drove them to the preserve. Harrison, Murray said, led him away from Miss Newby and beat him with a hammer. When he regained consciousness, Murray said, he found Miss Newby dead.

Harrison confessed striking Murray and named Joseph Hardy of Cumberland, Va., as the slayer of Miss Newby. Their motive was to get funds on which Hardy could return to his home, Harrison said. After the killing he and Hardy drove in Murray's auto to Virginia, where Harrison remained for a day, and returned to Chicago, he said. Virginia police were asked to search for Hardy.

Quizzed on Other Deaths.

In their questioning the police sought to fasten on Harrison the slayings of Charles Tyrell, who was killed Jan. 13 in a rooming house at 617 North Dearborn street, and of Charles Pagel, who was killed Jan. 9 in the Aplin hotel, 27 East Harrison street.

Harrison was seized Monday afternoon in a flat at 4312 Madison street after he had taken a sleeping drug with suicidal intent. Under his mattress Lieut. Ollie Hoffman found his confession of the Davis murder.

Harrison was born in Bowing Rock, N. C., and came to Chicago several years ago. He has an 8 year old son living with his divorced wife, Mrs. Margaret Kemp, 3333 Flournoy street. On Jan. 6 he married Mrs. Margaret Dalesndro, 3721 Pine Grove avenue, who has since left him.

GIRL DIES OF SCALDS.

Fleurette Layhane, 3 years old, daughter of Frank Leyhane, a city fireman living at 5802 South Paulina street, died yesterday of scalds suffered on Jan. 27 when she tipped a pan of boiling water off a stove.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE RETREAT TO OLD DIPLOMACY.

Great Britain, France, and Italy have joined the American state department in protests to Japan. So long as the United States government was inspired by the Kellogg peace treaty it was out all alone. When Mr. Stimson, apparently alarmed by the chill of the cold world of realities into which he had ventured, came back to old fashioned diplomacy he found the support he needed. The common ground which the occidental nations find is their national interest.

A great deal of danger was contained in the playing of a solitary hand, as the American government was doing, far from home and in the sphere of a strong military nation acting upon the advice of its military caste. Until the last few days Japan was not, for its part, out alone in an adventure which had the moral reprobation of Europe. The inanities of the council of the league of nations were the natural consequences of the fact that the council had to make a pretense of action which was not at all in the purposes of the European powers. Great Britain, for instance, made it perfectly plain that it was not opposing Japan. Some of the English liberals, of the Manchester Guardian school, scored the government for not following Mr. Stimson, but that did not affect the situation. The American government was on its own and it was being rebuffed, even humiliated, because Japan understood the situation if the United States did not.

The American government was rescued from this position, curiously enough, by the Chinese and by a Japanese blunder. The Japanese underestimated the difficulties of occupying the native sections of Shanghai, encountered unexpected resistance and were checked. They bombed the city to protect their sailors and marines. Stories of atrocities flowed first into the United States and more slowly into Great Britain. Conditions in the foreign city became critical and European nations which had been indifferent became alarmed.

Mr. Stimson, also alarmed, beat a retreat to the ground where he could find support in the defense of national interests and people endangered by the consequences of the Japanese overplaying their hand and of the Chinese making a better fight of it at first than had been expected of them. An unopposed occupation of Shanghai or an occupation which lacked the element of terror and horror and which had scrupulously regarded the security of the international city would have left the American government in its insecure position. It may almost be said that Chinese soldiers and snipers pulled the state department out of a hole, if it will now stay out of it.

France, Italy, and Great Britain will join the United States in demanding protection for their people and the property—that is, foreign rights—against Japanese operations. That is old diplomacy, not Kellogg diplomacy. Behind this united front there is as much security as can be expected. The United States has allies to secure all that it is called upon to obtain. Can it be hoped that the American government will not insist that all the world shall be arrayed against it before it seeks the largest measure of trouble?

MR. BAKER HAS BANANAS.

Newton D. Baker, in New York to sail for Mexico on a vacation, issued a statement to make clearer his opinions regarding the league of nations and the United States. These opinions boil down to the conclusion: Yes, the United States should not enter the league, which prepares for the inference: No, Mr. Baker is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

What is even more plainly evident is the introduction of a new technique in American politics. Mr. Baker says that the opinions he entertains on the league are the opinions of a private citizen and such as will be granted any private citizen as a right. He believes in the good of the league. He thinks the United States should enter it and eventually will enter it, but if he had the power he would not put it there. When the United States takes a seat at Geneva the act should result from the conviction and decision of the American people that there is where the United States belongs. So Mr. Baker says he would not make the issue one of political partisanship. He would not write it in the Democratic platform. He would not have the Democratic nominee pledged to it and he would not ding-dong the senate. In good time the cause will prevail. Maybe. Mr. Baker was asked if he was a candidate. He said no. He increased his availability by giving the soft answer to his critics, but renounced the ambition and hasn't the bananas.

When this political example is accepted as a guide to procedure Gov. Ritchie will say that personally he believes prohibition to be undesirable, but also that the United States should continue with it until the spontaneous feeling of the people is evident to a congress which has not been advised or importuned one way or the other. Mr. Norris might indicate his belief in the practicality of federal operation of Muscle Shoals, but his willingness to have an Alabama light and power company take the properties at a nominal figure. Senator Johnson might acknowledge that he had favored government construction at Boulder dam, but was willing to switch the cost to Los Angeles. And Bishop Cannon could say that he would set aside his preference for prohibition in favor of the old time saloon.

GOV. RITCHIE TO THE NATION.

Gov. Ritchie is carrying on his campaign for a sound national policy with characteristic courage and force. In his speech before the Kentucky legislature he emphasized again the destructive divergence between what our government and our politicians say and what they do, a course which is carrying the nation into bankruptcy and the breakdown of the American system of government.

Our actions belie our principles, and while declaring against socialistic expansion, against government interferences, against the growth of bureaucracy and public expenditure, our government refuses to cut down the huge waste and check the growing entanglements and burdens of our enterprise and our people.

"We talk about the arbitrary powers and the excessive cost of government, and then by giving government more and still more powers we whittle down the liberties of the people and responsibilities of the states, and raise the cost of government still higher, and tax ourselves almost to death."

On one of the main causes of our demoralization—prohibition—Gov. Ritchie is equally plain spoken, in refreshing contrast to the trimming of other leaders in his own and the Republican parties. He does not try to dodge responsibility by denying that prohibition is a political issue. He points out that it is a moral issue converted into a political issue, and his proposal is clear.

"I can see no way out except by turning the question back to the states with the federal power limited to its sound constitutional function of seeing that the interstate phases of the subject are controlled so as to give effect in each state to the popular will.

"What the country needs is a formula of home rule which will end the strain which the 18th amendment has put upon our social and economic structure everywhere—north, south, east, and west—and which will everywhere point the way out of the wilderness, in the cause not only of law and order, but of true temperance as well."

Gov. Ritchie is making the most important contribution to straight thinking by the American people, and his service to political integrity and the nation's welfare is worthy of the nation's gratitude.

KIDNAPERS—AND WHO ELSE?

Mr. Howard A. Woolverton, the South Bend manufacturer, has been released by his kidnapers. Therefore, public attention can now be transferred from the victim himself to the public officials of Indiana who are presumed to be engaged in the search for the criminals. Indignation is running high in northern Indiana, as well it may. It is to be hoped that the justified anger of the community does not spend itself in futile curses addressed to the kidnapers, but takes the more intelligent form of insistence upon the capture of the criminals with no excuses for failure.

It is the public officials of Indiana who are on trial at this moment. The kidnapers can be caught if a determined search is made for them with no sparing of expense, no weakening of the will to succeed, and no tiring in the pursuit. It may be safely assumed that at least four men were direct participants in the kidnaping and, no doubt, a dozen others know who is guilty. A dozen men and women cannot keep a secret. If Indiana officials want to find out who kidnaped Mr. Woolverton they can certainly do so.

That being so, the conclusion is inescapable that if the kidnapers are not caught and punished it will be because the political leaders of the state of Indiana are in partnership with the criminals. That is a conclusion which the voters of Indiana cannot afford to overlook or forget. If one of the most prominent business men of South Bend can be kidnaped and held for ransom under the threat of torture and death, the life and property of no man in Indiana are secure. And if the kidnapers remain unpunished it will be because the political powers of Indiana are sharing, directly or indirectly, in the plunder.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Sun.]

For seventeen years C. B. Gabb has compiled from the obituary notices published on the front pages of the London Times a rough record of longevity in Great Britain. His report for 1931, submitted on the last day and presumably at the last moment, shows that the Times recorded in 1931 the deaths of 428 Britons of 90 and over. Of these, 134 were men and 294 were women. Of the 428, fourteen were centenarians, two men and twelve women. The senior in age among those whose deaths were recorded on the front page of the Times was Miss Sarah Louise Bannister, who died at the age of 104.

In other columns, however, the Times reported deaths at even greater ages. Augustus Lago, who died in Havana, was reputed to be 120. Mrs. McAnn, "senior British subject in Brazil," was 110. Mrs. Pearley of Alnwick was "nigh to 109"; she had been a widow for fifty-four years at the time of her death. She attributed her long life to "plenty of hard work and plain food." Mrs. Prosser of Newcastle, who remembered shaking hands with Palmerston when he was prime minister, was 103 when she died. Mrs. Hannell Hoadley, who died at 104 in North Middlesex hospital, held that rum was the secret of a long and happy life. The Rev. D. H. Norman, a Warwick clergyman, died at the age of 103; of him it is recorded that at a mayoral dance just before his ninety-fifth birthday he danced with a young lady ninety years his junior.

Mr. Gabb does not allow many of these irrelevancies to creep into his report. One who has compiled a record of the deaths of nearly 6,000 persons over the age of 90 must be interested primarily in statistics rather than in the reasons which individuals assign for reaching a great age or in the skittishness which they display after reaching it. The British "Who's Who" does not include Mr. Gabb. It is a pity, for curiosity about his own age is inevitable and permissible. Obviously he is no stripling, for his record keeping has been maintained for seventeen years. But he might be in his forties or fifties or eighties for all the clew that his hobby gives. The final sentence in his report to the Times speaks of a "Jan. 1, yet, maybe, remote," so that whatever his present age, Mr. Gabb presumably hopes to be touched by the contagion of longevity so that the days of the recorder for the ancients may be long in the land.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gaps fall where they may.

EVERY ONE OF THE NEWS SHEETS found space yesterday somewhere between the stories of the Japanese shelling Shanghai some more and the Chinese retreating from Nanking again to say that the groundhog was out looking for his shadow. This, young ladies and gentlemen of the schools of journalism, is a quaint old newspaper custom and must never be neglected on the second day of each and every February. It's been done so much that the material is working rather thin, but if and when you graduate and get a job as a reporter you might introduce something new and novel regarding the cunning little groundhog. Say that he appeared and, being determined to see his shadow, he was observed to take a candle from his pocket, light it with a match, and then, holding the candle in front of him, peered anxiously over his shoulder to see his shadow. Whereupon he immediately scampered back to his home and went to bed for another six weeks.

AGNOSTIC.

Thick fog and darkness brooding on the deep,
Fumble with calloused fingers for the spoke
Feeling beneath my feet the tilting keel.
Danger from storm, from calm, from derelict,
Though guiding stars for other sailors glow
How may I safely steer my ship to port
Who cannot see, and therefore humbly say

ETHELYN BRYANT CHAPMAN.

IN THE NAME OF HUMANITY Great Britain and the United States yesterday protested to Japan against her further progress in China. And at once they questioned each other how many soldiers each one should send to China if Japan did not heed the remonstrance. The answer is very easy. Great Britain in 1930 sold goods to the value of $83,000,000 to China; the United States sold $79,000,000 worth. Each nation should send one soldier for every thousand dollars' worth of trade. Therefore, England must send 83,000 soldiers and the United States 79,000.

BUT IF WE UNDERTAKE to boycott Japan our Upper Classes must cease wearing silk underwear. Cheer up, Japan; there'll be no boycott this day.

OF COURSE, we might give up drinking tea to carry out the boycott against Japan. But as none of us knows or gives a whoop whether our tea comes from Japan or China or is made out of mulberry leaves down in Arkansas probably that wouldn't help very much.

Goshski! A Crisisovitch!

M. Kolinski, High Imperial Press Agent of the Soviet Union, took his stand opposite the Kremlin and addressed all Russia. "Gentlemen," he said, "our great commonwealth is facing a crisis. During the last three months the number of books written and published in America pertaining to Russia has decreased at an alarming rate. Heretofore Russia held a monopoly on misery, and the notoriety derived therefrom made our position among the nations of the world eminent. During the past three months, however, American competition has cut the demand for Russian misery not less than seventy-five per cent. For the last five hundred years Misery has been synonymous to Russia as Rice has been to China. When an author thought of Misery he wrote of Russia; and when he conceived horror he substituted Siberia; and with our thermometers registering all the way to fifty below zero, our bitter black bread, our cruel Cossacks, the rat-tat of our machine guns on this very corner, our multi versions of the death of the Czar, our refugee trains, and our inherent disregard for soap and razors, we grew and prospered. Today, however, all is changed and we are confronted with a foreign product which, no doubt, lacks quality, but none the less damages our position among nations. Today we are facing oblivion unless we are come to one mind to perfect the quality of our national industry. Let me caution you, therefore, that a reorganization of our Siberian climate is imperative, and the dark days of all Russia must be made black. Fifty new conspiracies surrounding the death of the Czar should be milled immediately. Bakers with a high sense of patriotism will put aloe in the black bread. The number of executions increased a hundredfold, and public dispensaries established where typhus germs may be obtained free. These and all other details of the industry must be given every study and labor, that in the end our trade, to the number of seventy-five thousand volumes on Russia printed in America, will have been regained." ORACLE.

THE LOVERS ASK.

What is this thing that draws us into its rhythm
Sweeter than song or the murmur of our blood?
What is this thing that thus can set our pulses
To its own wild beat, like streams attuned to a flood?

O wave, O music! In your mighty flowing
We are borne on to what unfathomed sea?
We mingle with what immemorial cadence

ADELAIDE LOVE.

AN INVENTOR says he has a machine that produces electrically a "mating hum" like the love song of a mosquito. The other skeeters hear it, climb into the trap, and get it in the neck. Great! But why invent a machine to do the mosquito's love song? Let the skeeters listen to any of the crooners on the radio; that would fool 'em. And now we know what a radio crooner's song sounds like. We've been trying to think what it was for months. It's the mating song of a lovesick mosquito.

WE'VE HAD to take our laundry away from Wun Lung, who has washed our shirts faithfully and well for years and years. But we've got that tired of looking at the war picture, every time we have to look at another Chinese or Jap we burst right out screaming. R. H. L.

EPIDEMICS AMONG THE WILD.

THE prevalence of epidemics is not because civilized man lives under artificial conditions. There are people who say it is, sometimes going as far as to argue that epidemics are visitations of Providence as punishment meted out to man for having built up an artificial society; that they are a curse on those who show their disrespect and irreligion by obedience to the laws of social behavior; more frequently they are alleged to be misfortunes earned by ignorance or wrong living.

In proof that epidemics are products of our civilization it is said that primitive peoples escape. Better knowledge of these peoples shows us that they are not free from epidemics. Some say wild animals escape, and that this is proof disasters are products of civilization. There is abundant evidence that epidemics prevail at times among wild animals. I think it was Salons who wrote of epidemics among wild buffalo in Africa that have almost emptied certain localities of game.

Dr. Charles Elton writes of an epidemic among hippopotami in the Kongo in 1911. There have been several very virulent epidemics among snowshoe rabbits in Manitoba. Elton recorded one that prevailed in 1887. He says that such epidemics prevail at intervals of about ten years. Dr. F. P. Thompson has told me of one that he had knowledge of less than twenty years ago. Elton refers to extensive epidemics among hares in northern Norway, and among field mice and rats in various parts of Europe.

The tendency of plague to spread among rats, ground squirrels, and such wild animals is well known. The great rat and mouse migrations found on the records are generally explained on the theory of flight from animal epidemics. The classical epidemic of Picardy, which prevailed many years ago in France, was attributed to the migration of field mice into human habitations.

Dr. Clark finds relapsing fever and malaria quite prevalent among wild monkeys and coccidiosis among opossums.

There is ample evidence that man would meet with disappointment if, to avoid his epidemic diseases, he returned to life in caves and trees.

DEPENDS ON LOCATION.

Mrs. A. C. T. writes:

1. What is the cause of a baby being born with an obstruction in the food pipe near the throat?
2. Is it inherited, or is it caused by worry through pregnancy?
3. Can the baby live when operated on immediately after birth?
4. Is there any other cure for it besides operation?
5. How long can a baby live with such a defect?
6. Is it caused by injury while mother is giving birth under ether?

REPLY.

1. I do not know. As a rule, we do not know the cause of congenital defects.
2. Neither.
3. Depends on the location and nature of obstruction, as well as on the operation.
4. It is not clear what the defect is and where it is located.
5. Nor can this question be answered without more facts.
6. No.

CAUSE OF LUMBAGO.

C. D. C. writes: What is the cause of lumbago? What can be done for it?

REPLY.

Lumbago is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. No other form of rheumatism is so easily remedied. The liniments so extensively sold made most of their reputations in the treatment of lumbago. Heat, hot baths, massage, use, and light are also of service. Chronic lumbago yields better to good hygiene than does any other form of rheumatism.

Unfortunately, lumbago is not the only cause of pain in the back. Many such pains are charged unjustly to rheumatism. Arthritis of the spine and some other causes of back pains often charged to lumbago are more difficult to diagnose and still more difficult to cure.

DUPLICATE PAPERS.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—[Friend of the People.]—Please advise how it would be possible for me to get a duplicate of my first naturalization paper which I took out in the city hall, Chicago, on July 27, 1927, and lost some time ago. L. E. C.

The applicant should call on the clerk of the court where he obtained his declaration of intention [first paper], get the number and date thereof, and then call at this office, room 776 postoffice building, and make application for a copy. He should obtain two photographs of himself 2½ by 2½ inches in size, showing a full front view of his face without hat, on a light background, sign the photographs on the margin, and bring them to this office, together with a postal money order in the sum of $5, payable to the commissioner of naturalization, Washington, D. C., and he will be assisted to apply for a copy.

VETERAN'S BONUS.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I served in the U. S. army during the war for nineteen months and was honorably discharged. Six months later I joined the navy and when they were discharging men right and left for minor offenses I was dishonorably discharged. Am I on my record during the war entitled to the war insurance or bonus, or did I automatically lose that when I was dishonorably discharged? If I am entitled to this, where can I secure my first discharge that I had to turn in when I rejoined the service and how can I make application for the insurance? W. A. J.

Take the matter up with the veterans' department, Hines, Ill. It might avoid additional correspondence if you will state the basis of your discharge.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 3, 1904.

Long growing ill feeling between Russia and Japan, largely as a result of the extension of Russia's influence in Manchuria, along the line of the Trans-Siberian railroad to Port Arthur, resulted in the Russo-Japanese war of 1904. In view of the acute situation in the far east at this time The Tribune will print from day today excerpts from the files of events connected with the opening of hostilities in that year.

ST. PETERSBURG. — A dispatch from Vladivostok issued here by a semi-official agency says the Russian fleet at Vladivostok has been fully equipped for immediate service and prepared for sea. All the wood fittings of the ships were removed and the harbor is being kept open by ice breakers. A correspondent at Port Arthur cables that orders have been received for the mobilization of Russian squadrons there and at Vladivostok and that they are ready to go to sea at a moment's notice. Russia's reply to Japan's last note will not be sent until Feb. 5. On no day has the situation been so generally accepted as grave as today. A high official said: "The Japanese seem to have made up their mind it would be more advantageous to fight now than later." A general close to the czar said: "I do not see the remotest possibility of war being avoided."

LONDON.—Premier Balfour will be asked in parliament tomorrow whether joint or separate representations have been made by this and the government of the United States to Russia, pressing for the evacuation of Manchuria by Russia.

WASHINGTON.—The attention of the state department being called to a Paris telegram quoting a Washington dispatch to the effect that the United States was coöperating with England and France to bring pressure to bear upon Japan in the interest of peace, it was stated by the acting secretary of state that there had been no such concerted action and that the United States had not and would not act with any other power in this matter.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 3, 1916.

NORFOLK, Va.—It was learned today that there was a real German warship in the vicinity of the Canary islands on Jan. 17 when the German steamer Moewe or Ponga captured the steamer Appam, now at anchor in Hampton Roads. It was the cruiser ——, a fleet sea fighter with a full armament of ten inch guns. It stood forty miles away, according to the report, and directed the capture of the Appam by wireless. Two hundred and forty-five persons held prisoners by the German prize crew on the Appam were informed they are at liberty to land on American soil, but more than 200 others, including the German captors, the captain and crew of the liner, and certain passengers alleged to belong to the armed forces of Great Britain, will be held on board until the United States government decides their status.

WASHINGTON. — Indications are that the British passenger liner Appam, brought into Hampton Roads by a German prize crew, will be held by the United States to be a German prize of war and not an auxiliary cruiser.

PARIS. — Heavy artillery engagements in which the French destroyed a German munitions station in Alsace and caused two explosions in enemy batteries near Vimy are reported on the western front. The war office statement says that in the Argonne the French exploded a mine at hill No. 285. In Lorraine at hill No. 423, east of Senones, the French batteries demolished an enemy blockhouse.

PETROGRAD.—The war office says: "In the Caucasus our troops, pursuing the Turks in the region of Lake Tortum, have advanced toward the Tchoruk river. In Persia in the region of Kermansha we drove the enemy in the direction of Nekhovend."

KANSAS CITY.—Leaving behind him here the most enthusiastic throng he has encountered on his entire speaking tour of the middle west, President Wilson left for St. Louis, where he is scheduled to deliver his final address tomorrow. In his speech here he demanded that steps be begun during the present month to back him up in defending American lives and commerce abroad.

FEBRUARY 3, 1902.

WATERBURY, Conn.—This city is fighting a fire which has raged without cessation since 6:30 o'clock last night and, with property loss already over $2,500,000, promises to lay low the greater part of the business and residence buildings here. Practically the whole city is in a panic. Fire departments of all cities for many miles around are battling the flames. The state militia is guarding the town and many looters have been arrested while trying to rob residences temporarily deserted. The fire started in a dry goods store. Special trains brought fire apparatus from various Connecticut cities.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Rear Admiral Schley at the tomb of Andrew Jackson, walking uncovered through the well preserved rooms of the famous Hermitage and sitting with Mrs. Schley in "Old Hickory's" pew in the little brick church which dates back to 1823, were incidents in Admiral Schley's visit here which long will be cherished by Nashville's residents.

CHICAGO.—John Alexander Dowie characterized as a lie that part of Judge Tuley's opinion in the Zion lace industries case wherein the jurist declared that religion and business do not mix well together. Dowie spoke at the Auditorium and declared that Zion will live in spite of all.

CHICAGO.—Albert Griffiths, better known as "Young Griffo," the pugilist, is at the county hospital in a serious condition with both feet and hands frozen. He was found leaning against the main gate of the Bridewell.

TOO MANY BOSSES.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 29.—Mr. Oscar Hewitt's article in a recent edition of THE TRIBUNE was illuminating, in which he gave a complete list of the superintendents, assistant superintendents, district superintendents, directors of bureaus, supervisors and more assistants, in fact, that vast majority who go to make up the tottering superstructure of our poverty stricken educational system.

Vacillating somewhere between a feudal system of old on the one hand and a modern factory system on the other, our educational system staggers on without a dime to its name, with millions in the red, and with the taxpayers with their backs to the wall.

It might be wise to spend our taxpayers' money when, as and if we ever get any, upon the taxpayers' children with some first hand service, and save some of the vast expenditure of money upon the different types of superintendents who keep as far away as possible from the madding crowds of the schoolrooms, and as far away as possible from anything like contact with pupils.

I thought that we had but ten school districts in our city, but now it seems that we are to have fifteen district superintendents; that averages 1.5 district superintendents to a district, which is the story of the pails all over again, Mrs. Hefferan to the contrary notwithstanding.

I have known these same district superintendents to help some principals concoct untenable situations in the schoolrooms, dumping 50 to 55 pupils in one room, repeating that same offense again and again in the same building for the same semester, for which expert advice and service the taxpayers pay just exactly $37.50 per day, $750 per month, if you please, unsuspecting taxpayers, and then drive away from the building in a car every expense of which is paid for by you. L.

TWENTY MILES AWAY.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Just another word on Sheridan's ride. In the '70s and '80s the poem by Thomas Buchanan Read was one of the favorite declamations on the Friday afternoons and other school occasions.

Many years ago I knew a Mr. Hibbard, then an old man, who had been in Cincinnati during the civil war, and he told me that while the papers, of course, carried the news of the battle, a picture of Sheridan on his black horse, published, I think, by the Graphic, was the direct inspiration of the poem. When the illustration reached Cincinnati it came to Read's attention on Sunday morning and, shutting himself away from interruption, he that afternoon wrote the verses which added to Sheridan's fame probably more than any one thing, and there were few boys who could not quote at least the lines:

"The terrible rumble, grumble and roar,
Telling the battle was on once more—

THOMAS C. POWELL,

WHERE TO FIND A GIRL.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—In SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE C. M. wrote Doris Blake saying he had no girl friends and asked Miss Blake how to go about getting one. She advised him to learn to dance and go to dances and he could find a girl. That's a fine way to advise our young men. Why not advise him to go to church, Miss Blake, and there get acquainted with the proper kind of girls?

DOROTHY COWIN.

SALVATION BY MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 28.—May I present to you a plan whereby our national depression may immediately be relieved, another one averted; a plan that would solve many social and perplexing problems that face us today?

If every mother in our country had a mother's compensation to be paid by the government they could and would buy all the produce, products and materials that men could raise, produce or manufacture.

My plan is this:

Every woman when she becomes a mother would receive $100 per month for life; when she had a second child, $50 per month additional; the third and each additional child, $25 per month, until said children were 13 years of age, after which pensions would be discontinued, the mother only retaining her $100 per month for life. All children would be responsible for their own bills after they were 18 years of age.

The mother would assume the responsibility of all household bills and those of herself and her children until they were 18 years of age. Any mother who went out into the world to work would forfeit her pension.

To raise money for the pensions, tax every man between the ages of 23 and 64 years of age [except those physically or mentally unable to work and college students] one-half their salary or income up to $5,000 per year, plus 10 per cent on all over $5,000 per year; also tax women's luxuries.

Under this plan men would not be responsible for the bills of any woman; men would only be responsible for the mothers' pensions, their own personal bills, and that of their business.

MRS. MARY ETHEL BRUMFIELD.

LEGISLATIVE RELIEF.

Mount Morris, Ill., Jan. 28.—The editors of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are generally given credit for bright, progressive thinking, but the leading editorial in your yesterday morning's edition raises that question to at least a debatable status. The idea of having the legislature appropriate funds for relief and raise the money by additional taxation presents an easy out, but as a public policy is not above criticism, especially at a time when there's a crying need for a reduction of taxes.

To me the meeting of the needs of relief by state legislation is the last resort and should be applied only when the desired result can be accomplished without adding a burden of doubtful economic value. Meeting the emergency by taxation is simply the shifting of the burden and will work a real hardship on taxpayers. If the legislature would knock out a dozen or more needless bureaus and commissions and divert part of the saving to relief of suffering, that would serve a real purpose. But when a new tax is levied, or some form of taxation increased, a precedent of the wrong kind is established.

Right now the need for relief is largely chargeable to overtaxation. Raising taxes for the purpose of relief will only make another and greater increase necessary. And so on and on—indefinitely. The dog will eat his tail until he consumes himself. R. C. REMINGTON.

QUESTION.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Could one find a better argument against the entry of the United States into the league of nations than the handling which this institution has given the Manchurian crisis?

COUNTY BOARD EYES OWN PAY AND PASSES ON

Two Offers to Take Cut Die in Silence.

The county budget makers came yesterday to the task of considering their own salaries and appropriations. In contrast to the preceding day, there was a full membership of the board present. The commissioners cleared their throats solemnly as they regarded the statement that the salaries of thirteen commissioners at $7,500 and one president at $12,000 sets the taxpayers back $109,500 each year.

"How about cutting $1,000 a year off our salaries?" inquired Commissioner Charles H. Weber.

"We can't do it," said Chairman Maurice A. Kavanagh of the finance committee. "The law won't let us."

"If you feel so wealthy, my dear, go ahead and take a $1,000 cut," said Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, a commissioner, to Commissioner Weber.

Ryan Willing to Take It.

"If the employés have to take a cut, we should, also," declared Commissioner Dan Ryan. "I'm ready."

The other commissioners were silent. There was an awkward pause until Mrs. Fleming launched a sudden attack on President Emmett Whealan's contingent fund. The question of cutting the commissioners' salaries was left open.

A contingent fund of $15,000 was spent last year and another $15,000 was asked for 1932. President Whealan also has a $10,000 contingent fund as president of the forest preserves last year, but spent only $1,000 of that.

"Do we get an itemized account of the president's expenditures?" asked Mrs. Fleming. "I think he gets too much."

"The president needs the fund for emergency purposes," said Chairman Kavanagh.

The appropriation was finally cut to $12,500.

Jacobs Cuts Own Fund.

J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer who attends the budget sessions and recommends economies, himself suggested that the appropriation for him and his staff should be $20,000 this year in comparison with $23,750 spent last year. His figure was accepted.

A few more small reductions were made and the commissioners then found themselves with not much to do. It was pointed out that the delay of the Circuit court judges in making a decision on the number of employés to be allowed in county fee offices—their right under the law—was hindering the commissioners in drafting a budget.

The judges were handed the recommendations of their own subcommittee several weeks ago. They were to have given a decision last week but postponed an announcement until next Friday.

TRY DIVORCE SUIT OF MRS. WARREN IN NEVADA COURT

Minden, Nev., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Hearing of the divorce action of Mrs. Edith T. Warren against the Rev. Ulysses Grant Warren, former pastor of the Congregational church at Corning, N. Y., and before that a well known mission worker in Brooklyn, was started here today. Mrs. Warren charges cruelty and failure to provide.

The Rev. Warren recently filed in Chicago a suit for $200,000, charging alienation of affections against William B. Storey, president of the Santa Fe railroad, and Mrs. Storey. The latter is a cousin of Mrs. Warren.

In the Chicago suit the minister charges that the Storeys, by writing letters to his wife and entertaining her in their California home, persuaded her to leave him. It was as a result of his trouble with his wife, he charges, that his congregation at Corning dismissed him last September.

He filed a similar suit some months ago in the Federal District court at Buffalo, N. Y., where it was dismissed.

WOMAN CASHIER IN LOOP HUNTED FOR $25,000 THEFT

Police and deputy sheriffs last night were searching for Miss Dorothy Dunbar, 40 years old, 3041 Logan boulevard, on a warrant charging her with embezzlinz $25,000.

The warrant was procured by the Hartford Accident and Indemnity company, 175 West Jackson boulevard, where Miss Dunbar has been cashier for ten years until she resigned last Oct. 2, supposedly to get married. Officials of the company said Miss Dunbar is also known as Mrs. Jack Thomson.

According to Lawrence E. Johnson, attorney for the company, the total of Miss Dunbar's peculations will amount to $35,000, of which $10,000 was taken prior to three years ago, when the statute of limitations became operative in the case. The warrant was issued by Judge James F. Fardy in Felony court.

STENCH BOMB IN BARBER SHOP.

A stench bomb was thrown through the window of the barber shop at 2627 North Kedzie avenue early yesterday. The owners, Frank Popiolek, 2939 North Hamlin avenue, and William Rietz, 2634 North California avenue, attributed the bomb to the trouble with the porters' union.

HOUSE APPROVES U. S. TAKING PART IN WORLD'S FAIR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Federal participation in the Chicago Century of Progress exposition was approved by the house of representatives today. The congressmen, however, amended the bill to authorize an appropriation of only $1,000,000. As passed by the senate, the bill called for $1,725,000.

A. J. SABATH. [U. & U. Photo.]

Supporters of the measure are hoping that a compromise may be reached in the conference committee of the two houses, to which the bill must now be sent. They believe that an appropriation about half way between the house and senate figures might be agreed upon.

The following representatives argued vehemently in behalf of the bill and the original appropriation: Sabath, Keller, Igoe, Democrats; Chindblom, William E. Hull and De Priest, Republicans, all of Illinois; Luce [Rep., Mass.], Connery [Dem., Mass.], Arentz [Rep., Nev.], and Murphy [Rep., O.].

But they were unable to stem the economy swing which followed the objections and the arguments of Representatives Michener [Rep., Mich.], Simmons [Rep., Neb.], Hogg [Rep., Ind.], and Burtness [Rep., N. D.].

"The exposition is not just for Chicago; it is for America," said Representative Sabath.

Representative Luce pointed out that congress had already authorized this government to invite foreign governments to take part in the fair.

"Frankly, I regret that we have to pass this bill," he said. "But we have pledged the government and we must carry out the pledge to Chicago, the states, and the foreign governments."

The money, he explained, was not a subsidy as in the case of past fairs, but was to be used only to finance a proper federal government exhibit and building.

Representative Burtness' amendment to make the appropriation $500,000 was defeated, but Representative Michener's $1,000,000 amendment was approved, 99 to 88. The vote on final passage was 117 to 51.

ENDS LIFE WITH KNIFE.

CHARGES JUDGE POLLS JURY ON DRY LAW STAND

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Charging that the jury which convicted him was required by the presiding judge to express its attitude toward prohibition, counsel for Carl Kramer, Pewamo farmer, under sentence as a fourth offender against the dry law, today obtained from the state Supreme court the right to appeal.

Kramer was sentenced a few days ago by Judge Royal A. Hawley of Ionia to serve from 7½ to 15 years in Jackson prison as a habitual criminal. He will not be committed to prison immediately, however, if he is able to furnish the $10,000 bail fixed by the Supreme court pending the outcome of his appeal.

Kramer has been convicted of dry law violations four times and would have faced a life sentence had not the 1929 legislature amended the terms of the habitual criminal act so that the maximum sentence is imposed only in cases where the fourth felony was a major crime. Since a dry law conviction now carries a maximum penalty of less than five years, the line of demarcation between major and minor felonies, the fourth offense penalty, is fixed by the law at 7½ to 15 years.

Louis Herman, Grand Rapids attorney appearing for Kramer, contended in his brief Judge Hawley committed reversible error when, in examing the jurors at Kramer's trial early in January, he asked for a showing of hands as to whether they favored enforcement of the prohibition laws.

CATTLE RUSTLERS IN CHICAGOLAND! INDICT FOUR MEN

A gang of alleged cattle rustlers, who operated within fifty miles of State and Madison streets, were indicted yesterday by the Kane county grand jury at Geneva. The four defendants, Charles Saelens, Tom Boone, Ray Somers and John Fisher, all of St. Charles, are charged with stealing hundreds of steers, cows, sheep and hogs from more than fifty farmers in that neighborhood.

Instead of horses, the gang is alleged to have used an automobile truck, which was quietly backed into pastures and loaded with stolen stock. And instead of a picturesque ride "over the border" in the fashion of old time rustlers, the men indicted are charged with having rushed their booty to markets in nearby cities and disposed of it a few hours after the theft.

The thefts went on mysteriously for several months, it is charged, until officials, who set out to investigate a bad check given by one of the men, discovered the midnight operations of the alleged ring.

PREDICT 20 PCT. SALES INCREASE AT AUTO SHOW

Leaders Point the Way to Upturn in Trade.

BY HAL FOUST.

The 32d National Automobile show, at the halfway mark last night, was breaking the sales and attendance records of the 1930 and the 1931 motor expositions. When the doors of the exhibition are closed on Saturday night, ending the show, executives anticipate that the total show sales will better last year's record by 20 per cent.

The current sales, manufacturers believe, are justifying the confidence displayed by the industry in spending $75,000,000 during the slump year of 1931 to improve the motor car and to reduce prices. A renewed confidence in the economic future of America's largest industry is being reflected at company meetings.

Predicts Upturn of Trade.

At the largest of these company meetings during the auto show, R. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors, last night told 1,100 Chevrolet dealers and salesmen at a banquet in the Palmer house that the temper of the country has been aroused and that there is every indication that the tide of trade will return in time to a greater volume than in 1929.

"Political and industrial leaders," he said, "have banded together in a spirit of coöperation such as is seldom seen outside of war time. Such coöperation in aggressive effort will release hoarded billions and return the country to normal business conditions.

"There is plenty of money available for a return of business—twenty billions in hoarded savings. The money is there; it is our job to attract it out of hiding.

"The automobile manufacturers during the depression have displayed more confidence than any other business group. It is the job of you salesmen to help restore the confidence of the American people."

Cut Sales Cost $18,000,000.

H. J. Klingler, general sales manager of Chevrolet, said his company has cut $18,000,000 from the expense of marketing the company's product, enabling dealers to make a profit three times greater for each car sold than in 1929.

"We are in position," he concluded, "to make a profit regardless of what general business conditions are in 1932."

W. S. Knudsen, president of the company, emphasized that the available business of 1932 was for those who fought for it.

"The trade," he said, "will no longer beat a path to your door to buy the best mouse trap."

Benton, Ill., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Emery Kerns, 38, a miner of Christopher, died yesterday of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile driven by Carl O'Grady in Christopher. O'Grady said he was "blinded" by the lights of another car.

Auto Show Notes

Alfred Reeves, vice president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in an address yesterday said: "Aggressive merchandising of the greatest product ever offered by our industry at almost unbelievably low prices has convinced people with funds that now is the time to buy if they would profit by the below cost prices at which steel, nickel, rubber and other commodities are being sold."

Seven hundred representatives of the 57,000 automobile dealers in America yesterday heard an address by H. G. Moock, general sales manager of Plymouth Motor corporation, on the essentials of profitable motor car merchandising. The occasion was the annual meeting of the National Automobile Dealers' association in the Palmer house.

C. W. Churchill, vice president in charge of sales of the Buick Motor company, reports that sales at the automobile show are more than double the 1931 figures.

An increase of more than 52 per cent in the dealer-distributor organization of the Auburn Automobile company during the last year was reported yesterday by N. E. McDarby, vice president in charge of sales.

PLANE RUSHED TO ARCTIC; WILL BOMB MAD MINER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 2.—Three crimson coated "mounties" are lying hour after hour with rifles trained on a rude wilderness parapet awaiting the arrival of a government plane from which dynamite bombs are to be dropped on the parapet's lone defendant.

Behind the rude fort is Albert Johnson, mad miner of the far north, who has wounded one and killed another member of the Canadian mounted police which originally wanted him for alleged interference with the Indian trap lines. Steely eyed and sullen visaged, Johnson is known as a dead shot, and he has two rifles and a plentiful supply of ammunition.

While the three mounties keep night and day watch on the arctic lair five others are collecting a formidable force of northern trappers to participate in the final assault after the bombs are dropped from the plane. "Punch" Dickens will fly from Edmonton early tomorow morning for Fort McMurray. Capt. W. R. May, Canadian war ace, will continue the flight to Aklavik, about sixty miles south of Canada's arctic shore.

Johnson, who already has outlived siege, revolver, rifle, and dynamite attack in his original cave cabin stronghold, will take with him when he dies one of the arctic's great treasure secrets. When he first came to the arctic Red river from the Yukon last fall his pockets bulged with gold. But he would never divulge where he got it.

UTILITY UNITED WITH LUXURY IN SALON MOTORS

Gay Fripperies Give Way to the Conservative.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Motors built merely for show have ceased to exist in the automobile world. This year the Drake salon, where the boulevard beauties are gathered once a year to exhibit their charms, has banished the strictly esthetic for the sternly utilitarian. The cars have gone beautifully simple—yet they remain simply beautiful.

The luxurious models appeal to the motorist's pocketbook as well as to his eyes. The depression obliterated all traces of fripperies that once bedecked these rolling aristocrats. Coachwork, whether American or European, insures value received in service as well as pride in appearance.

Conservative Colors Rule.

Colors are conservative and dignified. These cars move through town or country in impeccable black, with perhaps a tracery of silver; in deep blues, or darker than medium; in varying tones of gray; in rich maroons, or in an occasional yellow beige.

Interiors are done unreservedly in solid tones, with the decorative touch supplied by the woodwork, of cherry, or antique walnut, or rosewood and mahogany. One shows an artistic inlay of ebony against the walnut. Another, a graceful tracery in pewter silver as the inlay over mahogany with rosewood applique. Appurtenances—the few that have been retained—appear in silver, in bronze, or gold plate.

Feminine vanity and masculine taste each reflect their demands in the tonneau of one custom built model after another. For the women there are the recessed makeup units set into side walls, with miniature electric lights—that really work—illuminating the finest quality mirrors. For the men, although not necessarily exclusively, there are frequent built in cellarettes with complete service for mixing and pouring the cup that cheers.

Speed Built into Lines.

One of the most important new features is the hood that comprises a single piece, sweeping back from the radiator to the windshield in an unbroken line of great beauty. This tendency to create the illusion of speed in the lines of a car is shown also by V shaped windshields and V shaped radiators, and a straight sweep of line in the body of the car.

Newest of all is the "doublentree" door, which comprises a single door reaching from the driver's seat to the rear seat and which swings open on hinges at either end in one model. It provides greater footspace in the rear seat and is more efficient, its makers claim, than two doors, as well as improving the line of the body considerably.

NORWAY BREAKS OFF TRADE DEAL WITH RUSSIANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OSLO, Norway, Feb. 2.—Trade relations between Norway and Russia were broken off today. The soviets demanded that Russian agents act as intermediaries in all sales in Norway, which is contrary to Norwegian laws.

The soviets also demanded that Norway purchase as much from Russia as Russia purchases from Norway, and that Norway must agree to make the most of her grain purchases from Russia as well as to buy Russian wines.

The Russian trade delegation also asked for increased credits. The Norwegian authorities were unable to accept the demands.

HADLEY PADDLES OWN CANOE IN STATE PRIMARY

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton yesterday opened his Cook county campaign for attorney general in the Republican primaries in April with a declaration that he will go on his own without any attachments to the various slates. He appointed Robert L. Doran, former commodore of the Columbia Yacht club, as his headquarters manager at the Sherman hotel, and the commodore announced that his candidate is running under his own steam without any tugboats.

CHARLES W. HADLEY. [Walinger Photo.]

"Hadley," said Doran, "hopes to see a Republican ticket nominated that won't have to be towed in next November. Hadley has been organized downstate for four years. He is in the enviable position of being his own candidate and not that of some particular faction or political dictator."

Mr. Hadley, who resigned as chairman of the state commerce commission, to run for attorney general, pulled out of the race for that post four years ago to make way for Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom."

Custer Appoints Manager.

Omer N. Custer of Galesburg launched his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor with the appointment of State Senator Harry G. Wright of De Kalb as campaign manager. Headquarters were opened last week in the Morrison hotel.

Mr. Custer said more than 30,000 names have been signed to his petition which will be filed Saturday at Springfield.

Word from Washington last night was that Roy O. West, Republican national committeeman, had called on President Hoover and had told him that political prospects in Illinois are bright and that no organized opposition has arisen to Hoover's renomination.

The Harding-Crowe-Nelson-Emmerson entente plans to open headquarters in the Morrison hotel for the "harmony" county slate. They are now picking a slate of candidates for national delegates.

R. M. Adams Out for Delegate.

On an anti-Hoover, liberal platform, Robert M. Adams, lawyer and Princeton man, announced his candidacy for delegate to the Republican national convention from the Ninth congressional district. Mr. Adams, who has been active in near north side politics, was an alternate to the 1924 convention. He is seeking the delegateship, which in 1928 was held by the late William Wrigley. He opposes the renomination of President Hoover, "based on a conviction that his renomination will insure defeat for the party in November," and urges a plank "favoring, if not the repeal of the 18th amendment, at least the modification and liberalization of the Volstead act."

Democratic harmony on the governorship seemed to slip a cog when Michael L. Igoe was quoted from Springfield as saying he would not retire from the race in the Democratic primaries. By slating Senator Thomas Courtney for state's attorney, on the county slate, instead of for attorney general on the state slate, the Cook county organization Monday took what was deemed a step towards honeying over possible discords in the primaries by opening the way for overtures to Mr. Igoe to go on the ticket for attorney general instead of governor.

Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, was placed on the Democratic slate of district delegates to the national convention yesterday in the 5th district, taking the place of Ald. James Bowler, who retired in Mr. Harrison's favor. In the 10th district activities were started to put Vincent Bendix, inventor and manufacturer, on the Democratic slate for congress in the district of Carl R. Chindblom, Republican dry.

Stratton Opens Campaign.

Secretary of State William J. Stratton opened his campaign for renomination in the Republican primaries by announcing, among other items, the appointment of a Stratton committee headed by Albert D. Lasker, Emil C. Wetten, Sheldon Clark, Harold Ickes, Silas H. Strawn, David E. Shanahan, and Edwin W. Sims.

C. Wayland Brooks, assistant state's attorney, one of John A. Swanson's first string prosecutors, was indorsed for the Republican nomination for state treasurer last night by the 29th ward organization. Brooks was one of the youngest first lieutenants in the marines, and he was awarded the distinguished service cross, the croix de guerre and the American navy cross. Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, announced he would not run for ward committeeman.

ALBION, MICH., CUTS CITY BUDGET $29,000; LOWERS TAX RATE $1

Albion, Mich., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Albion's 1932 budget, adopted tonight by the city council, amounts to $146,612, a reduction of $29,875 from last year. The budget is the city's smallest since 1922. The tax rate was cut from $14.50 per $1,000 to $13.50, and all real estate assessments were reduced 10 per cent.

GOV. ROOSEVELT OPPOSED TO U. S. JOINING LEAGUE

Declares Europe Owes and Must Pay "Us."

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight took his stand firmly and beyond equivocation against American participation in the league of nations. He declared that the league had strayed far from the purpose Woodrow Wilson, its founder, had in mind, and had become, not an organization for the general promotion of world peace purposes, but a vehicle for straightening out European problems.

No War Prevention.

"The league has not developed along the course contemplated by its founder, nor have the principal members shown a disposition to divert the huge sums of war spent on armament into the channels of legitimate trade, balanced budgets and payment of obligations," the governor said. "American participation in the league would not serve the highest purpose of the prevention of war and a settlement of international difficulties in accordance with fundamental American ideals. Because of these facts, therefore, I do not favor American participation."

Gov. Roosevelt went a great deal further than did former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, looked upon by many as the man on whom the anti-Roosevelt forces at the Democratic national convention may concentrate in an effort to "stop" the governor who now appears to be in a commanding position in the presidential race.

What Baker Had to Say.

Mr. Baker in a statement made public several days ago said that he did not view American participation in the league at this time as an issue, nor did he think that this country should go in until a preponderance of educated public sentiment throughout the nation was ready for such action.

Gov. Roosevelt recalled that he had campaigned vigorously for American participation in the league of nations as a candidate for Vice President in 1920. He added that he had no apologies to make.

"If today I believed that the same or even similar factors entered into the argument, I would still favor America's entry into the league; and I would go so far as to seek to win over the overwhelming opposition which exists in this country today," the governor said in what many in his audience regarded as a subtle impeachment of Mr. Baker for running away from something in which he firmly believed.

Gov. Roosevelt did some plain talking on the debt question when he said:

"Europe owes us. We do not owe her. Therefore, we should call a meeting of our debtors here and not in Europe and demand an understanding. If it were considered advisable in the present condition of world finance to postpone the payment of debts for a while, we should nevertheless insist upon an accord as to when payments should begin and in what amount.

"Europe has indulged herself in an orgy of spending and finds herself in a crippled financial position. She should look at the facts of her spending and bring about a change of policy to restore her financial equilibrium and enable her to meet her just obligations. She should cease to blame us for all the ills which have followed this reckless course of spending and try to remember the aid we gave her in time of need; aid for which she was once grateful but which she has forgotten."

MYSTERY MALADY TAKES LIFE OF THIRD BOY IN OHIO FAMILY

Mount Vernon, O., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Mysterious death struck today for the third time in ten days, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Paazig, Pleasant township, Knox county, farmers, 10 miles southeast of here.

One brother, Raymond, 8, died last Sunday, while another brother, Stanley, 9, died Jan. 24.

Three younger brothers in the Paazig family appear in robust health, but doctors have been watching them since the malady attacked the family.

A theory that cow's milk, poisoned from the animals' eating of snake root, had caused the three deaths was practically discarded today, although Dr. Finley Vanorsdall, chief of the department of communicable disease in the Ohio department of health, took samples of the milk and samples of Marion's blood to state laboratories for tests.

VIGILANTES KILL ONE IOWA BANK BANDIT; CAPTURE THE OTHER

Lowden, Ia., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—One bandit was killed and his partner was seriously wounded and captured this afternoon when they engaged in a gun battle with four vigilantes who had been called following the robbery of the Union Trust and Savings bank at Stanwood.

Marshal M. V. Pauls of Lowden, vigilante, was shot in the leg when the bandits tried to escape around a truck which blocked the highway. The bandits entered the Stanwood bank, forcing Cashier C. H. Haesmeyer and Vice President Otto Evers into the vault. Mrs. Lou Jackson, working in a back office, did not know of the robbery.

When the robbers fled the bankers released the vault door and called for aid. After the robbers were blocked they opened fire and in the return fusilade the body of one of the robbers was filled with lead. The other was taken to jail in Tipton. The robber car, with Mexico license plates, was registered in the name of Robert Morse of San Francisco.

ASK INDICTMENT OF 28 AS ALIEN SMUGGLING GANG

Garsson Charges Plot in Four Large Cities.

Murray W. Garsson, special assistant secretary of labor, will go before the federal grand jury today with the request that 100 indictments be voted against twenty-eight men, alleged members of an alien smuggling ring which has been operating in Montreal, New York, Detroit and Chicago. The activities of the ring, according to federal immigration authorities, embraces illegal reentries into the United States and false naturalization papers.

M. W. GARSSON. [Tribune photo].

It was reported last night that several of the men wanted by the government in the case have been arrested. Names of the men accused have been withheld.

Fees ranging from $250 to $2,000 were exacted from aliens by the smuggling racketeers, Garsson said. "They used every kind of shakedown method to get money from foreigners who didn't know what it was all about," he asserted.

In the list of men charged with the federal offenses, it is said, are bankers, lawyers, and notaries public.

Immigration authorities declared that in some cases the men smuggled into the country had been forced to work in alcohol cookeries and in breweries.

Hold Hearing on Belcastro.

The final deportation hearing against James Belcastro, Capone gangster, described by the police as a bombing leader, will be held today before Garsson. The hearing was continued yesterday when Belcastro asserted that a conviction for assault with a deadly weapon, entered against him on July 17, 1917, had been reversed. The government will try to refute this plea today.

Investigation of Belcastro's record was begun by the government four months ago. It is charged that when he reëntered the United States from Canada in 1929 he failed to mention the conviction for assault. If the charge is substantiated, Belcastro is liable to deportation.

Can't Remember His Arrests.

Belcastro has been arrested 150 times, according to Garsson. At one point in the questioning yesterday Belcastro was asked how many times he had been convicted besides the one for assault that the government charges.

"I don't know," said Belcastro. "I've been before so many judges I've forgotten what happened."

Slayer of Brother-in-Law Loses His Second Trial

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Harold E. Williams, slayer of his brother-in-law, William F. Prophet, has again lost his fight to escape death in the electric chair. A jury of twelve men last night found him guilty of first degree murder in the second trial. Williams and his sister, Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, were arrested for the crime. Williams was convicted and sentenced to death while his sister received life imprisonment. Because testimony concerning a so-called "hidden motive" had been excluded, Williams was granted a new trial.

'Take It Easy,' Experienced Robber Warns His Victim

Two bandits took $88 yesterday in a holdup of a Metropolitan Life Insurance company branch office at 11431 South Michigan avenue. The leader was a red headed youth who led a series of robberies a few weeks ago on the south side. After lining the five men and five women who were in the office against a wall, he said: "Now, folks, just take it easy and everything will be all right. We know our business. This is just a simple stickup."

MOVES TO SPEED TAX RULING BY SUPREME COURT

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Attorney Urban A. Lavery today made a formal motion to bring about an early hearing and decision by the Supreme court on the decision of Cook County Judge Jarecki which invalidated the 1928 and 1929 tax levies and voided nearly 500 millions of dollars in taxes.

The motion was for the immediate filing of abstracts and briefs by attorneys for the county and for Mrs. Lillian Cisar, the plaintiff in the suit.

The court was asked, at the same time, to withhold its ruling in the Bistor case, which involves many of the questions covered by Judge Jarecki's decision. The court took the motions under consideration and a preliminary ruling is expected before the end of the week.

When Appetite Goes, Health Goes Too! · Clean Out Poisons Here · With Fresh Yeast

Sick at the very thought of food? How long can health exist under such conditions? Your whole system suffers when internal neglect cuts off the body's sustenance.

Yet how easy to restore health! Nature provides yeast*. It brings you blessed relief.

Has Meal-time lost its 'KICK'?

REMEMBER how you used to look forward to your meals? "When do we eat?" you used to say.

Well, what has happened to you since then?

* * *

Intestinal sluggishness . . . that's the thing that takes the "kick" out of meal-time . . . steals the appetite, upsets digestion . . . yes, spoils good tempers and ruins homes!

And to think how easy it is to get rid of this trouble today! Listen . . .

Literally thousands of grateful men and women testify to the amazing value of fresh yeast in correcting constipation and the poor appetite, poor digestion, loss of "pep," etc., to which this evil leads. A food, yeast is used and prescribed by world-famous doctors.

Made a part of your regular daily diet, Fleischmann's Yeast mingles with the accumulated waste matter that has been clogging your intestines . . . softens it . . . "tones" the intestinal muscles so they can again perform their normal work easily and regularly.

Look out! That's usually a sign of a seriously deranged condition of your system that must be corrected by all means

Thus harmful poisons—the cause of your listlessness and distress—are daily passed off by your body. Digestive juices flow normally again. Appetite revives. A strong, healthy digestion is yours once more!

And in addition, you know, Fleischmann's Yeast richly supplies three indispensable health-giving elements lacking from most foods—vitamins B and G, and the remarkable "sunshine" vitamin—vitamin D.

So why go on suffering like a martyr when relief is so easy, so well known? Right at your grocers', or at any restaurant or soda fountain, you can get the little cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast that hold such rich promise for you!

Just eat it regularly, three cakes every day—before meals or between meals and when you go to bed—plain, or dissolved in a third of a glass of water.

Won't you try it—for your own health's sake? Not just for a few days . . . but long enough to find out what it will really do?

*IMPORTANT—*Fleischmann's Yeast for health comes only in the foil-wrapped cake with the yellow label. It's yeast in its fresh, effective form—the kind famous doctors recommend. Ask for it by name!

'Loads of Love' Provides Fat, Rich Heroine

Adding to the Reputation of Anne Parrish.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Loads of Love," by Anne Parrish. [Harpers.]

"Man Comes of Age," by John Langdon-Davies. [Harpers.] All published today.

ANNE PARRISH has added another bay leaf to that particularly brightly shining wreath which she now wears as a writer of delicate satire. "Loads of Love"—like "Tomorrow Morning" and "The Perennial Bachelor" and that remarkably keen first novel of hers, "A Pocketful of Poses," and the others — is a novel with a great deal of light [lightness of touch, lightness of method, lightness of theme], but not one bit of cloying sweetness.

ANNE PARRISH.

In the old fashioned slang use of the phrase, "Loads of Love" is full of "sweetness and light," in the character of Bessie Plummer. There is, however, none of that quality on the part of the author in the portraiture of Bessie, or any of the other characters.

That is Anne Parrish's special gift—seeing people for exactly what they are under their masks. The masks which her characters assume are the masks which most nice people wear. There are no pirates of life or love, no intentionally cruel or Napoleonically grasping persons in her books. There are few persons out of the average mill run of character. It is Anne Parrish's keen and seeing eye which makes of the mill run the individuals which remain memories to the reader. She has an undeniable genius for yanking off the masks of her characters in a sentence and portraying them—with a cutting satire—as the very human beings that most humans really are. Miss Parrish writes with a definitely light touch. But the skilled incision of a scalpel is deadlier than the lunge of a badly aimed sword. Anne Parrish's pen is a scalpel, if not mightier, at least as penetrating as many more swordlike implements.

"Loads of Love" is thus named on account of Bessie Plummer, who scatters love about as she ends all of her letters, loads at a time. She is fat, unattractive, wealthy, officious, hoydenish, a behemoth of good intentions, and a frankenstein of effects. Dr. Samuel Johnson said that hell is paved with good intentions. The paving of the little local hades of the characters in "Loads of Love" is done mostly by Bessie. The rest of the characters merely suffer from the cobblestones, as it were.

One of the sharpest of the cobblestones is the three cornered love of a young novelist, a hard working, clever, intelligent girl who paints for a living, and a child of nature who adores and is adorable. Miss Parrish has done a touching and brilliant picture of their relations one to the other, with Bessie, like a great blundering deus ex machina managing their lives for them.

"Loads of Love" will be to many readers a bouncing tale (full of good clean laughs) of a blowsy blunderer. To others it will be a delicate dissection of life. To still others, it will be a tender and touching tale of love. Readers will, I suspect, get out of it what they want most, because it is the kind of book that is, with peculiar success, all things to all readers.

This is also the publication day of three other important volumes, two novels and one book of nonfiction.

"One Woman's Freedom" is a novel by Helen Zenna Smith, who wrote "Stepdaughters of War." This one also has the war for a background and for a motivating force. It is about a woman who gives herself in marriage to a hopelessly maimed officer, but finally revolts from her sacrifice and in the delirium of armistice night returns to a former lover. The diabolically contrived revenge which the husband takes, the dramatic crash of the heroine's life and her regeneration is the theme of a brutal, but exciting tale.

"Headed for Hollywood," by Homer Croy [Harpers], is not an important addition to the novels of the spring [hence it is not listed in electric lights at the head of the column], but it is an amusing, gay screed about one of the most overnovelized of all localities in the U. S. A. There is no satire in Mr. Croy's latest tale, just fun and frolic.

"Life and Andrew Otway," a novel by Neil Bell [Putnams] is the February choice of the Book League of America. It will be reviewed tomorrow.

In "Man Comes of Age" John Langdon-Davies sets himself the task of answering the question, "What has science to do with me?" First the author explains what modern science is driving at, and then he relates the findings of modern science to modern individual life. He tells his readers why modern science is of interest to the ordinary man—and then makes it very much so!

PICK 1932 AMERICAN BEAUTY; SHE'S BLOND AND A PERFECT 34

She was selected from 500 beauties by the American Beauty congress tonight, after a committee of pulchritude experts had first picked fifteen outstanding types.

The winner is Mabel Ellis, an orphan who came to New York from Birmingham, Ala., three years ago. She is five feet and one-half inch tall, weighs 118 pounds, and measures 34 inches around the bust and hips, and 26 inches around the waist.

Ten of the fifteen who competed in the finals tonight were blonds. One was a red head, one had gray hair, one was a brunette, and two had brown hair. Blue eyes predominated.

Gig Renee of Washington Heights, N. Y., the red head, and Eleanor Buffington, blond, of Catonsville, Md., tied for second place.

Bishop Stewart Finds 3 Evils Caused Slump

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bishop George Craig Stewart yesterday told the 1,000 visitors and delegates to the 95th convention of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago that the present depression is not an indictment of nature or of God, but of the selfishness, cowardice, and incompetence found in the present social order. He spoke at the opening of the convention at St. James' church, Huron street and Wabash avenue.

The bishop invoked for the present situation the challenge of John the Baptist to the leadership of that earlier day. The same three fundamental evils existed then as now, said the bishop as he pointed to "faulty distribution of necessities; political corruption and the threat of predatory militarism." However, the beneficial effect of the depression on church life was also pointed out.

A gain of six per cent in church membership took place last year; the largest number of confirmations in the history of the diocese, said Bishop Stewart. The prelate asked for the establishment of three new deaneries for the north, south and west sides of the city, and for a commission to study how the expanding work among colored people of the city may best be administered.

The opening session of the convention was marked by a gesture which indicated a growth of friendship between the Episcopal church and certain other Christian communions. In colorful robes of their office, the bishops of the Greek and Russian orthodox and Polish National Catholic churches marched in procession with the 150 diocesan clergy and occupied seats of honor in the sanctuary of St. James church. Significance is attached to the participation of the orthodox bishops in this service because of the recent movements toward intercommunion between the Anglican, orthodox, and old Catholic churches.

The convention will continue throughout today. Budget problems will occupy the center of attention. Yesterday afternoon the convention voted to coöperate with the two other dioceses of the state in the creation of a joint commission to have full supervision of Episcopal religious work at the University of Illinois.

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Dr. E. Franc Morrill, supreme medical officer of the Royal Neighbors of America, who died in Rock Island last week of Addison's disease, which she contracted while a mountain missionary in southeastern states, provided in her will that the bulk of her $75,000 estate shall eventually go into trust funds for the education of young men and women of those same states. The states included are Virginia, West Virginia, South Carolina, North Caroline, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Georgia.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 2.—For the first time in his career in movies, Harold Lloyd is deviating from his policy as a "lone wolf" comedian and is contracting to back another comedian, young Eddie Quillen, with the Lloyd money and producing organization.

Lloyd plans to make one comedy a year himself and to keep his organization of camera men, directors, gag men and technicians busy the rest of each year in turning out three more feature length funny films starring Quillen. William R. Fraser, general manager of the Lloyd corporation, said, "One reason for the deviation of our past policy is that Mr. Lloyd wishes to devise some means to keep all his employés in work all year around instead of seeing many of the men laid off, as is now the case when Mr. Lloyd himself is not engaged in producing a picture."

The Lloyd and Quillen films will be produced at United Artists studio, where Lloyd has rented space.

"The way to cure homesickness is to go home," said Marlene Dietrich today, and she began packing to return to Germany with her little daughter, Maria Sieber. Her husband, Rudolph Sieber, is now in Germany, having returned there several months ago after coming here to demonstrate in the face of Mrs. Joe Von Sternberg's law suit that there was no trouble between Marlene and himself.

Miss Dietrich is still under contract to Paramount and will be recalled to the United States in the late spring or summer to make another film here and to appear if necessary in Mrs. Sternberg's New York law suit. The Paramount studio, it is said, will separate the team of Sternberg, as director, and Miss Dietrich, as star, for the next picture.

The wise-cracking testimony of Bran Foy, movie comedian and comedy director, helped the Fanchon and Marco stage presentation firm win their law suit here in which they defended against Miss Eva Parshelle's $15,000 suit for asserted plagiarism.

Superior Judge Carl Stutsman decided the Fanchon and Marco firm did not "lift" ideas which Miss Parshelle had submitted and turn them into short musical comedy form.

The Catholic Motion Picture guild has named John Leroy Johnstone, head of the Hollywood "233 club," an organization of Masons who are actors, writers, and film employés, to act as master of ceremonies at the Catholic guild's seventh annual gambol next Monday evening. Johnstone is president of the Wampas club here. He is to be the personal guest of Father Michael J. Mullins, director and chaplain of the Catholic guild.

"The Scar of the Nation" is the last and definite releasing title for the final and most expensive gangster film to be made in Hollywood. It has been preparing for release for more than a year. The original name of the film was "Scarface," but the Hays' organization invoked the antigangster picture ban over so many things in the script version and the completed negative that the successive remarks and changes in title held up the showing of this film from last September until next March. Paul Muni and Boris Karloff of "Frankenstein" fame are the leading actors in it. Howard Hawks directed it. Hawks still has on the court roster here a suit against the Fox company demanding salary from a time, more than a year ago, when the Fox studio sought to abrogate his contract without his approval.

Young Singers to Get School Aid from Club

Mendelssohn Group Tells Plan at Concert.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Chicago Mendelssohn club is adding to its concert assignments this season the activity of encouraging musical development in the younger generation, and during its first program of the season at Orchestra hall last night made a semi-final announcement of what has been accomplished.

The decision was made to grant three vocal scholarships to the three boys of senior high schools showing the most promise, distributing them, however, so that one each goes to the three sides of the city. Forty-two boys entered, and last Sunday an elimination contest was held which selected ten semi-finalists. These, or rather nine of them, were introduced from Orchestra hall stage last night by Charles B. Tuttle, an active member of the Chicago Mendelssohn club.

The south side was represented by Philip Crane from Morgan Park, Herman Genson from Hyde Park, and Charles Polachek from Hyde Park; the west side by Robert W. Danks from Tilden, Wilburt Jones from Austin, Louis Vishney from Marshall, and John W. Wampole from Tilden; the north side, in which Lake View was the sole contributor, by Robert W. Corbett, Russell Marks, and Norval Rydin.

Just before the club's next concert in April the final contest will be held and three winners chosen. They will again be presented to the public and will receive scholarships entitling them to a year's vocal training in accredited Chicago music schools.

As to last night's concert, it contained vocal works by the most ancient as well as the most modern composers, sung under the direction of Calvin Lampert with the ringing tone and careful attention to detail which for years has made the Mendelssohn club one of Chicago's known and honored institutions. Walter Mills, baritone of excellent voice and painstaking enunciation, was the assisting artist, appearing in groups of songs as well as soloist with the chorus.

That the good work of the club with the high schools might be further continued, a group from various high school glee clubs joined the main chorus in the final number of the program, Grieg's "Landsighting."

Initiation Dance Friday.

The annual initiation dance of Tau Kappa Epsilon of the University of Chicago will be held Friday night at the Bismarck hotel. Nine new members will be guests in the Flamingo room.

THE STAGE

"EXPERIENCE UNNECESSARY," a comedy by Gladys Unger which has had a New York run this season, will come to Chicago, on or about Feb. 22, for an engagement at one of the Shubert theaters. Walter Woolf and Miss Verree Teasdale have the leading rôles. The former has been the star of several operettas, among them "The Red Robe" and "Countess Maritza." He turned his attention to the nonlyric stage last season in a comedy called "Ladies All." Miss Teasdale is an actress with a Broadway reputation whose appearances here have been infrequent.

"Tradition," a drama by B. V. Mindenburg, will be staged at the Eighth Street theater Feb. 24, with hopes of transferral to the "loop," and then to Broadway. It deals with a clash between orthodox and liberal representatives of the Jewish people, in London and Poland. J. Mortimer Mitchell will have the leading rôle.

The Theatrical Treasurers' club of Chicago will give its annual dance in the Bal Tabarin room of the Hotel Sherman tonight. This occasion will be the thirteenth in the series. Leading players from the various shows in Chicago will attend. The proceeds will be used for the club's insurance fund. C. C.

Children Save Pennies to Aid Hungry Pupils

Rush of Gifts May Prevent Closing of Lunches.

Thousands of children in the city and suburbs are saving their pennies this week in readiness for the collection that will be taken up next Sunday in Sunday schools to provide lunches for the hungry children in the public schools. The collection was suggested to superintendents and pastors by the administrative committee of the Chicago Council of Religious Education.

Meanwhile the rations continued to be decreased in many schools where food allowances had been cut down due to the depleted Hungry School Children's fund. A ray of hope for the children whose free lunches will cease if the fund is exhausted at the end of the week was indicated in the sudden spurt yesterday in the number of contributions. If this generosity continue, the fund may weather the emergency until the next major benefit.

Francis V. du Pont, Son of Late Senator, Marries

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Francis Victor du Pont, son of the late Senator Coleman du Pont of Wilmington, Del., was married here today to Miss Janet Marie Gram of Buffalo, N. Y. The ceremony was performed at the First English Lutheran church before the immediate families of the bride and groom, and a group of friends which included Gov. and Mrs. Douglas Buck of Delaware. Immediately afterward the couple left for a wedding trip through the south. Upon their return they will live at Horn's point, Du Pont estate, near Carbridge, Md.

Noted Authors Ask Change in Copyright Law

Charge Regulations Injure Young Writers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Several thousand dollars' worth of words, measured at space rates, were presented to the house patents committee today by some of the country's most popular authors, who favor a sweeping revision of the present copyright regulations.

Fannie Hurst, Will Irwin, Inez Hayes Irwin, Rupert Hughes, Arthur Guiterman, Thyra Sampter Winslow, distinguished authors all, and Sigmund Romberg, the composer, were among the literary and artistic luminaries who testified.

They were unanimous in declaring that the present system of permitting publishers to hold the copyright on the product of an author placed the younger, struggling artist "at the mercy of unscrupulous literary agents and avaricious publishers."

They proposed that the law be changed to give the copyright to the author instead of the publisher.

"We who are here can take care of ourselves," Miss Hurst said, carelessly tossing a mink coat on a chair. "We can afford to hire lawyers to go through the mazes of the present copyright law for our protection. But the new author is unable to unravel the mysteries of that document. By not simplifying the law, gentlemen of the committee, you are creating an aristocracy in letters."

Will Irwin insisted an author should have the same privilege of protecting his work through his own copyright as an inventor through a patent. Miss Winslow described how a short story writer was approached by a film firm with a lucrative proposal to picturize the stories. Upon inquiry, she was informed that the magazine which published them had disposed of the film rights long before.

The publishers make no such bargains with the well known authors, it was testified. Such writers, through the use of attorneys, protect their film and other rights. In the case of the struggling beginner, however, the witnesses asserted, the author gets only the original purchase price, with the publishers frequently getting rich rewards through the sale of film, dramatic, and radio privileges.

The publishers and distributors will have their turn before the committee tomorrow.

British Girl Weds Hunter in Jungles; Her Father Fires Him

NAIROBI, British East Africa, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The secret jungle romance of the Hon. Averill Furness, daughter of Viscount Furness and stepdaughter of a wealthy American woman, had an unpleasant aftermath today after Lord Furness learned of her marriage on Jan. 24 to Andrew Rattray, famous Kenya hunter.

"From and after Jan. 24 Mr. A. Rattray ceased to be the white hunter to my safari and from that date he has no authority to order anything on my account."

A year ago Mr. Rattray, who is 50 years old, brought two zebras to England for Lord Furness, who in 1926 married Mrs. Thelma Morgan Converse, daughter of Henry Hayes Morgan, former American consul general to Buenos Aires.

In the London home of Lord Furness, who is a shipping magnate, the hunter met the peer's only daughter, the pretty 24 year old Averill, who had gone places with the prince of Wales. He liked her, lots.

Late in 1931 the adventurous Averill went with her father, whose hobby is big game hunting, on an expedition to Tanganyike. While her father was out with the native boys a few days ago she and Rattray were married with only a maid and typist as witnesses.

They tried to keep their secret and failed. So Averill sent an airplane into the jungle to find Lord Furness and acquaint him with the news.

Mr. and Mrs. Rattray are staying with friends seven miles from Nairobi. Meanwhile Lord Furness has engaged J. P. Lucy, who has killed 300 lions, as his new head hunter.

Mrs. Rattray killed her first stag in the highlands when she was only 12 years old.

Here's Way to Start the Day Looking Your Best and Youngest

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Eugénie"—no less than the "Empress Eugénie," she signs herself—would like a morning plan laid out for her, the more beautiful to face the world with daily. "Not too complicated a system," she begs.

There isn't anything very complicated about facing the morning with the sails all set for victory. Only the rites must begin the night before, with one good cleaning up. A warm bath is needed, followed with a few minutes' attention rivetted on the complexion. A good cream is worked in until the skin is soft and velvety to the touch. It comes off if the skin is normal; if it is dry, the cream stays on. And I'd plead for the throat, too, being included in this skin care rite.

Your hair gets a couple of minutes' brushing or scalp fingering. I'm afraid the hair brush popularity wanes with fear of disturbing the wave. The brushing is best.

Next best is slipping the fingers under the hair and making them do some scalp rubbing and pinching until a glow is felt. Your nails, too, will be ready for the morning. All nice nails are, you know. Touch them up with your handy bottle of polish and your nail whitener. And not for next morning's appearance, but for mornings years from now, let the skin on the hands be treated to an oiling with cream. Or, better, if you have a hand lotion, use it.

When the nursery bird settles on your window and cries, "Get up, you sleepy head," your first thought is for a good stretch. Stretch tall, stretch wide, stretch every which way. No lazy stretch, mind you! Stretch as if there was a new silhouette present in it for you, which there is. You can add a few more stretches when you hop out on the floor.

Then your shower. If you can't take is cold, take it as cool as you can. You need that tonic to body and soul. Make your face take cold water, though the rest of you rebels at the thought. That is to wake the face up, as it were; to make the eyes come out of their sleepy hiding.

Your foundation cream or your slight oiling with any good cream comes next and then your makeup is applied, your hair arranged, and there you are! Simple enough even for an "Empress Eugénie."

Chasing Some Chaps Only Makes 'Em Run the Faster, 'Peg' Says

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Peg" isn't so sure now that the policy of running after a man is a good one. She took count of what and how the other girls did it and got their man, and then experimented, herself. The man she chose for the experiment is one "Peg" has known for a long time. One whose invitations for a date, though infrequent, gave her a terrific kick and always resulted in a perfectly grand time.

Peg agreed with herself that here was the one man among them all. Along about that time, the date-making ceased. The young man failed even to call up. So Peg decided to go after him, modern-girl fashion. She got on the line one night and invited the chap over.

He came—but bearing none of his suspected previous ardor. "It was perfectly apparent," Peg confesses "that he thought very little of me for asking him."

That was a month ago. And though Peg has seen the chap a half dozen times since, never a single date has been suggested. And Peg, confesses boldly of her failure in spite of what she calls "further wangling for a d te" on her part.

The fault, she argues, may be in her personality. There may be somet..ing about her that doesn't measure up. But her private and personal belief is that she came a cropper when she undertook to take matters into her own hands.

"The policy may work in some instances," Peg concludes. "But I'd say that a girl had better know her man before she tries it. And know herself, too, when she's about it. Know if she is the girl for the act."

In that concluding paragraph from Peg, girls, you have the whole truth and nothing but the truth about trucking down the male. If you're not the girl for the act, don't try the rôle! You need to be the breezy, don't-c..e-if-he-doesn't-accept sort or you do not get away with the scene.

And the man must belong to the brotherhood that believes in following the line of least resistance; maybe a little timid, bashful, not sure of himself. Anyway, not the aggressive, self-assertive type.

Children Should Be Sent from Homes Only as Last Resort

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

So often I am asked for the name of some boarding school where a child may be sent who is unmanageable at home. Usually it is a little child of 6 or 7 and the parents are looking for a place where he will have fine physical care, expert handling in the correction of behavior troubles and where the cost will be very small. The following is somewhat typical.

"I am a working woman with four children. One son and daughter are away and my oldest daughter, who is grown, takes care of my little girl of 5½. This child is proving too much for the oldest girl to discipline. I am afraid she will ruin her own life and make others around here miserable. I want to send here away to some school or institution which charges a small board. Can you suggest one?"

I know of no place that answers these requirements. The associated charities of the various cities would be the logical ones to go to for such advice. But personally I think it a mistake and almost like a shedding of responsibility to send a child to live away from home under such conditions.

In practically all these cases it is plain that the trouble is not with the small boy or girl but with the way in which the grownups in the family manage. In this case probably the grownup daughter does not want the care of a child. I can understand that very well—but after all, there is a certain duty involved here. The grownups should try to feel differently and make an effort to love and help the child—especially should the grown daughter who is in charge change her attitude and method.

First, I would suggest that the little girl be entered in a kindergarten to relieve the tension. Then I think the family, especially the grown daughter, should do a little simple reading—something that will give them a new attitude and workable ideas. We have two booklets that will fit at the start, the one on "Patience" and the one on "Obedience." Also, some brief general reading on child management such as is contained in our reference leaflet might come next.

Managing little children can be a really interesting job—or a nuisance, depending upon how you look at it.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a girl and want to tell her, but she won't take me seriously. Please advise. "RED WILLIE."

Guests at Tea to See Exhibit of Rare Books

Mrs. James Ward Thorne to Be Hostess.

TEA parties after the symphony concerts on Fridays always are popular and the one that Mrs. James Ward Thorne is giving this week will be unusually popular, we know, for every one is anxious to see her truly remarkable collection of rare books, manuscripts and original illustrations, which are on view in the print galleries of the Art institute now, and it is there that she is giving the tea. The exhibition will remain at the institute until March 15.

Mrs. Thorne and her husband usually are in California by this time of the year but this winter they have made no plans for an extended vacation although they hope to get away for a short trip before the season is over.

Speaking of Mrs. Thorne, by the way, reminds us of another activity the lovely lady is engaged in which we heard about recently. She is fashioning a doll house which we are told by one who has seen it will surpass even the masterpiece which she presented to her pet charity, the Woman's exchange, for its Christmas sale. We saw that one and we doubt if any doll house could be more perfect but our informant assures us the new one will be even more perfect, if there can be degrees of perfection. The new one is being constructed in a work room in the Thorne apartment at 1200 Lake Shore drive wherein Mrs. Thorne, a Swiss wood carver, and another helper spend hours. Each room, we're told, is to be furnished in perfect period designs, and the entire house is to be a thing of miniature perfection. Mrs. Thorne designed the house and does a great deal of the minute work involved herself.

Mrs. Gann Will Be Guest of Strawns.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann was to arrive last night to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn for two days. Mrs. Strawn will give a small luncheon for Mrs. Gann at the Casino today and this evening there will be a dinner party for her at the Strawns' apartment at 229 Lake Shore drive. Tomorrow Mrs. Gann will be the guest speaker at the Woman's National Republican club meeting at the Congress hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Strawn, who divide their time these days between Chicago and Washington, will return to Washington next Wednesday.

The reduced-price sale at the White Elephant shop today (Mrs. Chase says "wonderful and rare bargains will be available") will be in charge of Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine and Mrs. Oren E. Taft.

The Lighthouse Volunteer Aids will hold a meeting on Friday at 11:30 a. m. at the Drake hotel, with the president, Mrs. Franklin G. Clement of Lake Forest, presiding.

Group to View French Paintings.

The Renaissance society will hold a program on Sunday evening in Ida Noyes hall of the University of Chicago to observe the opening of the fifth annual exhibition of modern French paintings arranged by the Chester H. Johnson galleries. Harry A. Bigelow, dean of the law school, will tell of his recent trip to Africa with the Herbert Bradleys and there will be a group of native African tribal songs by Moduke Paris. Several fine African masks have been loaned as an accompaniment of the exhibition. A buffet supper will be served before the program.

The Friends of Opera will hold their annual meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 3:30 o'clock at the Casino. After the nominating committee has announced the new officers there will be a musical program and tea.

Leslie Gordons Close Their Home.

It always is sad when attractive and worth while people move away from a community, and so Winnetka is feeling the loss of the Leslie Gordons very much this winter. Mr. Gordon went east in the early fall to be the president of one of the large radio manufacturing concerns, and although Mrs. Gordon has spent most of the early winter with him, they did not close their attractive house on the Indian Hill grounds and move their household goods east until recently. As long as the house was open and little Stuart Gordon was there with his nurse and the other servants, it did not seem as if the family really had moved away, but now that there is no life around the place except a caretaker, Winnetkans realize that the Gordons are gone.

Mrs. Gordon, the former Josephine Duback, was active not only in the social life of the village but in much of the philanthropic work there, too, and Mr. Gordon was one of Indian Hill's most prominent golfers, having been president of the Western Golf association last year and the year before. The Gordons have taken a house in Ridgewood, N. J., so that he will be near his manufacturing plant. Mrs. Gordon and Stuart were with Mr. Gordon's mother, Mrs. Thomas W. Ritchie, whose house is next door to the Gordons', during the closing of their house.

Margaret James to Sail in April.

Miss Margaret James plans to go to England in April to be with her sister, Mrs. Gordon Stannus, until her marriage to Charles Clarence Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dalrymple Smith of Loughbrown, Hexham, Northumberland, takes place in the early fall. Her parents, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. James will join her in late July to remain in England until after the marriage.

Mrs. A. Rosecrans Baldwin, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger and her daughter, Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, are motoring east for a fortnight of visiting in New York. Mrs. Baldwin's son, Rosecrans Jr., will run up from New Haven for a visit with his mother. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Litsinger will be guests of Mrs. Matthew North during their stay there, and they will, of course, see a lot of Eleanor Litsinger, the subdeb of the family, who is at finishing school in New York.

Mrs. Howard Willett will depart on Saturday to spend a month in Mexico, stopping on her way south for two days during the Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Paris Designs Coat That Plays Two Roles

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—At the tag end of winter is a dangerous moment to buy a new coat, as every wise maiden knows well. There is always the chance that styles may change in a big way, and there is invariably the worry about getting something that will do also for spring. These two doughty problems can, however, be settled and no undue chances taken.

If you must be chic on a slim purse, the question of style is necessarily simplified. You keep your clothes clear of high novelty features and stick to simple things which are astonishingly smart in all seasons. The fashion element of a coat to wear in winter and spring can be achieved by choosing one that is along the lines of the Vera Borea coat shown in our sketch today, which is a very simple coat in black rough wool, with plain raglan sleeves.

It is ever so slightly fitted about the waistline and ever so slightly flared below the hips. It is closed up the left side front, being generously wrapped over and fastened with a button at the neck and at the waistline.

That is the coat itself, and to it Vera Borea adds a shaved lamb harness that makes it a real Paris creation. This harness may be removed from the coat in the spring and a belt substituted at the waistline and a silk scarf at the neck.

The harness consists of a wide band that extends down the back of the coat from neck to waistline. At the top of this band is another band of fur like th top of a T square and this band is brought around the neck and the ends twisted together and tucked under at the sides. A slightly longer band at the bottom twists around the waistline in the same way. The whole thing may be taken off in a jiffy.

How to Sell 'Em

Consumers' inventories are now low, which provides a good reason for believing that we are at the downward terminal of the business depression and can now look forward to an improvement, Frederick H. Scott, vice president of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., told members attending the Interstate Merchants' council at a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

Previously, while merchants' stocks were low, consumers were well supplied with automobiles, clothing, furniture, etc., thereby limiting the possible market, Mr. Scott asserted. Now, however, the public finds itself in a position where it will have to start buying.

Mr. Scott described distribution as the world's greatest industry, pointing to the $53,000,000,000 retail business done in 1930. Successful operation of the distribution industry is one of the prime essentials to the nation's prosperity, for a poor job is passed all along the line, crippling transportation, manufacturing, and other industries, he declared.

Overproduction has been blamed for the depression, he said, but underproduction, too, should get some of the blame. He told the merchants to dress up their stores better and to establish closer relations with their customers. He advised extensive advertising and the putting an end to sales of cheap inferior goods which do not make for good will.

Persia to Send Rare Gems as Fair Exhibit

Noted Explorer Arranges Loan of Collection.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

IMAGINE a trip to Chicago's lake front to see the shah's crown jewels or the great granite vase of the luxury loving King Artaxerxes! This is the treat in store for townsfolk and their guests who will visit the Century of Progress Exposition one year from this coming summer.

A cablegram from the exposition's foreign office in London brought this interesting bit of news in the announcement that the Persian government will lend treasures of both artistic and historical interest never before equaled in any exposition. Credit for obtaining the collection goes to the noted explorer, Dr. William M. McGovern, who has been commissioned by President Rufus C. Dawes to represent the exposition at Teheran and other oriental courts.

The news also brings to mind the fact that Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes has authorized Lady Chamberlain of London to search the world over for other interesting pieces that may supplement these "Arabian Night" marvels. It was this enterprising woman who persuaded Premier Mussolini to exhibit some Italian art treasures in London for a reported consideration of £37,000. Lady Chamberlain borrowed the money from her friends, showed the exhibit four months, charging two shillings on weekdays and three on Sunday, and then returned the £37,000 with several thousand left as her own reward.

The majority of the pieces that will come to Chicago in the Persian collection created a sensation when displayed in London last winter. And one of the objects that added not a little splendor to this exhibit was the famous "Emperor's Carpet" lent by Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick and now on exhibit at Chicago's Art institute. Connoisseurs of art agree that it is not only one of the greatest carpets in existence but one of the finest achievements in the early history of decorative arts.

It was woven some time about the middle of the 16th century on one of the various court looms that were working for Shah Tahmasp, a sort of Persian Louis XIV. both in the length and the splendor of his reign. Just where the rug was woven it has never been possible to say.

In design and weave, it is a masterpiece. Like the finest of the court carpets it is on a silk warp and weft with more than 400 knots to the square inch. Likewise the colors represent the highest achievement of the dyer's art. The lustrous and glowing emerald green of the border is perfectly balanced by the equally lustrous crimson of the field. A string of cartouches in a clear, brilliant gold, carrying verses from some unidentified Persian poet separate the main border and the inner field.

Close to $200,000 went into the purchase of the carpet at a New York auction, it is reported. A small fraction of this amount might have been saved, the story goes, had not Mrs. McCormick's brother, John D. Rockefeller Jr. bid up and up to obtain the rug for himself, little knowing that his earnest and successful opponent was his own sister.

Though our estimations of the esthetic value of great carpets are slowly changing under the pressure of time and fuller experience, Arthur Upham Pope, advisory curator of Mohammedan art at the Art institute, says it is conservative to rank it among the first ten great carpets of the world.

We venture a thought that Mrs. McCormick, who has always done so much for Chicago in a civic way, may again loan the carpet as a feature of the Persian exhibit for the Fair.

Another famous rug will be among the treasures from Persia. It was given by Shah Abba, a 17th century ruler, whose court was said to outdazzle those of the Bagdad caliphs of the Arabian Nights, to the shrine of Imam Riza. In the collection to come will also be a manuscript of the Shah Namah or Book of Kings richly illuminated with the gorgeous colors employed by the miniature painters of the 15th century, prayer arches of luster tiles used in the 14th century, and a manuscript of the "Life of Timu," illustrated by Bihzad, the oriental Raphael of the 15th century.

Lightweight Suits Decreed for Men as Tailors Open Session

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 2.—Lighter clothing for men will be the style in 1932, it was announced here today at the annual convention of the Merchant Tailor Designer Association of North America, delegates to which have arrived from all over the continent.

L. C. Tyler of Columbus, O., chairman of the fashion committee, announced: "People always say that men's clothes are too heavy, that they are not as light and healthy as women's clothes, and that we tailors are reluctant to make changes. That is not so. There are changes every year and this year, too, there will be one for the better.

"Those padded shoulders, for instance, are out. There will be no stiffening in the lapels, linings will not be used in many coats. The material used is to be of much lighter weight—tropical weight almost. These new fashions will make men's clothing almost as light as that of women's."

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

But there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged.

This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings.

For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Charming Cheat

By Clara Sharpe Hough

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family, although his mother had sent her checks.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of the aged aunt he'd expected he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. His arrival was fortunate for Filomena, who had been out of work for weeks and was in a sad state financially. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed and before he leaves tells him so. One evening when Ricardo calls on Filomena he finds her hastily packing a suitcase.

INSTALLMENT IX.

THE AWAKENING.

"Who's moving out?" inquired Ricardo from the door. He could see that something was definitely wrong. Filomena was pale and agitated, her movements erratic, her hands trembling. Something had happened. Was she planning to leave without his knowing? Why should she?

"O, Ricardo," said Filomena.

"What is it, my dear?" he crossed the littered room to her swiftly, not heeding Frances, who was still engaged in dismantling the chiffonier, heeding nothing except Filomena's appeal to him.

She withdrew from his approach. She backed away toward the window, her hands hard upon each other, her breath coming hard.

"Ricardo," she said, jerkily, "Ricardo—my father's dead." Her hands unclasped convulsively, she laid one of them against her mouth as though to hold back her words that had broken from her against her will. Her face was whiter, her eyes looked bigger and darker every instant.

She turned her back to him and slid out of the filmy little frock.

He stared at her, uncomprehending. "Your father—why, child, he's been dead twenty years," he said. "What's all the fuss about?"

"He died this morning," said Filomena in a dry little voice. "I've—got to—go home."

"Are you crazy?" he cried, furiously angry because after all it was so plain what she was really telling him. "Tell me what you mean! Your father——"

Frances came and stood close to him, a dress dangling over her arm. "Are you crazy?" she demanded in the loud voice he had always detested. "Leave the poor kid alone, can't you? This is no time for you to be monkeying around. Her father's dead and she's got to go home."

"Her father," said Ricardo slowly; "her father; her father."

"Yes, you fool," said Frances, still loudly and disagreeably, and gave him a push. "Now get out, can't you, and let me get her ready to go. She's got to get the evening train to Boston."

He turned a wrathful face toward her. "You'll get out in about a second if you don't shut up," he said, quite as impolitely as he had always longed to speak to her. "This is none of your affair. It's Filomena's—and mine. Is that true, Filomena?"

"So you did lie to me?"

She nodded again.

"Ricardo, honestly, if you don't clear out now and let Fil get changed she'll miss her train and——"

"There's no hurry," said Ricardo, looking quite coolly at his watch, "there'll be a lot of trains to Boston tonight. And I think you'd better be the one to clear out." He turned to her again, quietly now, but with a hint of smoldering wrath in his eyes. "This is between Filomena and me, I think."

"O, don't be high and mighty," cried Frances, "you don't have to make a scene right now, do you? You can decide later whether you were a fool because you wanted to be or because you couldn't help it. I've got to get Fil ready for the train, and I——"

"I'm not at all sure she's taking the train," returned Ricardo, "but we can settle that without any help from you. So if you'll kindly clear out——"

"Well, I won't," replied Frances truculently, "and I don't know just what you'll do about it."

"O yes, you will," said Ricardo, and seized her by the shoulder.

Frances weighed a sturdy hundred and thirty-five pounds, but after a few breathless moments at the threshold, when there was a startling sound of rending cloth, he suceeded in locking the door upon her.

Then, having pocketed the key, he turned toward Filomena. She stood where she had when she first spoke to him, looking white and miserable.

"So you are just what Web said you were."

She made no reply, and he pondered this idea while Frances pounded violently at the door.

"You're a cheat and a liar and a gold digger besides," he said.

No answer from Filomena.

"You fooled me all right," he went on slowly. "You got away with it very neatly. But you aren't getting away with it any longer. See?"

She stood still, mute and wretched eyed.

"I don't relish being made a fool any more than the next man," he explained, resentfully, "but I suppose I must have been an easier mark than most of 'em. Most of 'em didn't fall so easily, did they?"

"I'm going home tonight," said Filomena. "I've—got to go home, you see. And I—I won't come back. I'll—just stay there. I won't take anything of yours, anything you—you bought for me. And I really and honestly——"

"O, no you won't," he retorted, "that isn't the way it's done at all. Handing it all back doesn't undo it, you know. I don't want this stuff." He stepped to the bed, picked up the black lace frock that Frances inconsistently had laid on top of everything else. "No, thanks. It's yours. You can keep it. You've had all the fun so far. Only it's customary to pay for things like this." He tossed the flimsy thing back on the littered bed.

"No, Ricardo," said Filomena quickly. "No. You wouldn't——"

"O, yes, I would. Well, now you know where you stand, and you know where I stand. Now let's get the packing done."

Amid the clamor of Frances who was doing what she could to batter in the door, he tossed aside the things she had piled on the suitcase and regarded it thoughtfully.

"What'll you need to take?" he asked, quite as practically and helpfully as he might have done yesterday. "How long will you be staying?"

Suddenly she dropped into the low chair with her hands over her face, weeping silently.

He looked at the pathetic bowed little figure and resisted his impulse to touch and comfort her. But he was still far too angry to let himself soften toward her.

He fished among the tangled garments on the bed. "Pajamas," he suggested, tossing them into the open suitcase. "Toothbrush. Get that later. What else do you need?"

Dabbing at her eyes, she watched him from the chair. "My slippers," she suggested in a small hoarse voice. "They're under the bed."

He found the little blue mules at the edge of the rug. Ever so slightly heartened, she opened a drawer that through some oversight Frances had spared, and brought to the bed some folded unrecognizable garments of pale silk.

"You'll have to brush your hair." He retrieved the hairbrush that had fallen to the floor, and on the littered dressing table found a comb.

"That's all, I guess," Filomena said.

"Your green dress," he suggested helpfully. She was gaining composure in this everyday business of packing. She folded the green jersey dress.

He looked at his watch again. "Soon as you get changed," he said, "we can go along."

He did not move.

She looked at him questioningly, then incredulously. He stood with his hands in his pockets, looking unconcerned.

"I'll change my dress and come right along," she reiterated.

"Go right ahead," he agreed.

"Well, but I—but you——"

"If you're waiting for me to go out, politely, and sit in the next room, as I used to, you needn't wait. For I'm not going."

"Ricardo! You——"

"Things have changed, haven't they? Well, things have changed since yesterday." He strolled a step or two, whistling the fragment of a jazz song, with the air of a man not concerned with what goes on about him.

"I'll just wear this," she decided, getting her little dark blue hat from the closet. "Where'd she put my coat, anyway?"

"You can't travel in that," he objected, looking with disapproval at the new peach colored chiffon frock with the trailing ends, which was just as delightful on her as he had thought it would be. "That's nothing to be wearing on a train. You'll spoil it."

"But I—but you—" she wilted visibly under his eyes. "O, Ricardo, at a time like this, for you to——"

"Frances was pulling that cheap stuff," he returned unmoved, "I didn't expect it of you. Snap it up now, for if you can't do it yourself, I can do it for you. And I will, too."

She stood a moment undecided. Then tossing her golden head, that proud little head that he had adored in its pride, she turned her back to him and slid out of the filmy little peach pink frock.

Ricardo lit a cigaret and leaned against the door, watching the emerging of Filomena's bare shoulders and slight silken clad body. But the performance was very tame. There was no posturing nor gesturing and the lingerie did not approach in style nor color that which was flaunted nightly from the stage by Frances and her mates in the front row.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Lack Winter Coat, Gym Suit.

"My father has been out of work and cannot afford to buy us the things we need. My mother has no winter coat and would appreciate one in size 48. I should like to have a green gym suit, size 16 or 18, and a pair of gym shoes, 6 or 6½. H. S."

To be without a winter coat during the cold weather means exposure to all the ills so prevalent at this time of the year. Can you insure a little comfort for this woman by giving her the coat you are planning to discard? Perhaps some one will have the gym equipment for her daughter, too.

Exhibit Drawings of Nijinsky, Dancer Made Insane by War

New York, Feb. 2.—[U. P.]—Two hundred fantastic drawings produced by the famous Russian dancer, Waslov Nijinsky, since he became insane in 1917, have been placed on exhibition in the Leggett gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria under the supervision of Mme. Nijinsky.

Nijinsky, who has been called the greatest dancer that ever lived, is in a Swiss sanitarium, where most of the drawings were made. He never speaks, not even to his wife and two daughters when they go to see him.

He is haunted by the horrors he saw during the war, when he was imprisoned for 18 months; his emotions have become garbled, so that he thinks sad things are funny and funny things sad.

Mme. Nijinsky was urged to exhibit his work by several famous artists, including Picasso, and by the psychologists Freud and Jung. Dr. Jung, after examining the weird "hallucinations" Nijinsky has produced in recent years, pronounced them primitive, and said that they illustrate the fact that genius and insanity go hand in hand.

Mme. Nijinsky, who discussed her husband's work and affliction at a preview of the exhibition, said that the great dancer is "always unconscious" when he is drawing.

Food Talk.

Why, we so many times ask, do we experience such difficulty in duplicating cakes or muffins when following another person's recipe that she has carefully written out for our use? And why, when using any recipe and, to the best of our knowledge, following the same procedure in each case, is it so hard to obtain the same result two times in succession?

The answer is that there must be some variation, whether we are conscious of it or not. This variation can take place in any number of ways—in the measuring, in the manipulation, in the baking, or in the quality of the ingredients themselves.

One variable is the proportion of ingredients. And the proportion is one thing not to be trifled with. Measure carefully and accurately—sound advice no matter what you are making.

Under the present circumstances, then, your success or failure in baking will depend a great deal upon the following conditions:

Whether you sift your flour at least once before measuring. Other dry ingredients like granulated sugar need not be sifted. Powdered sugar on the other hand should be rolled on a board to remove all lumps.

Whether in measuring the shortening you press out any and all air spaces present in the fat.

Whether you try changing the recipe, that is substituting one ingredient for another.

Whether you follow directions for manipulation exactly.

POUND CAKE.

1 cup butter 3 eggs, separated
1½ cups pastry flour ¼ cup milk
2 tsp. baking powder 1 1-3 cups confectioners' sugar
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. mace ½ tsp. vanilla

Cream the butter thoroughly. Add the flour, sifted with baking powder, salt and mace, a little at a time, working in well. Beat the egg yolks. Add the milk and sugar, then add to first mixture. Add the stiffly beaten egg whites and beat until batter resembles a thick hard sauce. Add the vanilla and pour at once into a paper lined ungreased cake pan. Bake in a moderate oven [325-350 degrees F.] about one hour.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

This time I know you did it. We haven't had any for a long time, but, nevertheless, I know since we used to have so many that you didn't miss this one. It wasn't such a very hard one, either, though that isn't nice to say to those of you who made it. You sort of fall into it. Of course, you all know what I'm talking about. I'm talking about the squeeze play in yesterday's play-a-problem. This was the hand:

NORTH
♥—K,10,4
♦—4,2
♣—8,6,5,4,3,2

WEST
♥—9,2
♣—A,J

EAST (Dealer)
♠—J,4
♥—A,Q,J,8,7,3
♦—9
♣—K,Q,10,9

SOUTH
♠—K,Q,10,9,8
♥—6,5
♣—7

East dealt and bid a heart. South overcalled with a spade and West took out with one no-trump, showing general strength. North passed. East now bid two clubs. South passed. West bid two diamonds, North passed, and East bid three hearts. East wishes to show by this bid that he has long hearts and is content with less than normal support from his partner. South again passed and West, with his mind at ease about the trump situation, at once jumped the bid to six hearts. All passed.

South opened the ♠ K, which dummy took with the A, dummy leading back the ♥ 9, which declarer took with the J. Declarer then led the ♣ 9 to dummy's A in order to come through North's hearts again. Dummy led back the ♥ 2, North playing the ♥ 10, and East the Q. East then led the ♥ A, dropping North's K and clearing the suit. East then proceeded to lead out the following cards, all of which took, of course: the ♣ K, ♣ Q, ♣ 10, ♥ 8, and the ♥ 7.

East at this point holds the ♥ 3 and the ♠ J and the ♦ 9. South holds the ♠ Q, the ♦ Q, and the ♦ K. Dummy holds the ♦ A-J-10. North's holding is immaterial.

And here the pretty squeeze developed. Declarer (East) led the ♥ 3 and what was South to do? If the ♠ Q was discarded, East would then lead his ♠ J, taking the trick, and then lead his ♦ 9 to dummy's A. If, on the other hand, South should discard one of the diamonds, East would then lead his ♦ 9 to dummy's A, dropping the other high diamond in South's hand, and lead out the ♦ J for the thirteenth trick. Either way East and West make seven-odd—their little slam, bid and made, and one extra trick.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

It Looks Like Ground Hog Will Make Tracks in Snow

Clouds and foggy weather prevented the ground hog from seeing his shadow yesterday in Chicago and other parts of the central states. According to tradition, the ground hog will stay outside his den from now on, anticipating an early spring. In Chicago yesterday afternoon the temperature rose to 40 degrees. Somewhat colder weather, probably with snow, is predicted for today by the government weather bureau.

"Please, dear . . . Take that PAINT off your LIPS!"

"I COULDN'T believe Ted was in earnest when he said that. But he was . . . the make-up I had grown used to made me look painted to him!"

Perhaps you aren't aware of that painted look yourself. But men see it . . . and it's one thing they simply cannot stand!

Don't risk painted lips! Forget your present lipstick. From now on—Tangee your lips.

Tangee is something entirely new. It can't make you look painted. It isn't paint, but a new discovery that changes on your lips to the one color best for you. It brings you new loveliness and charm.

Cheeks Mustn't Look Painted!

Tangee Rouge changes on the cheeks—just the way Tangee Lipstick does on your lips. It gives the color most becoming to you . . . ends that "painted look". When you get Tangee Lipstick, ask for Tangee Rouge.

AND YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD DEALER

NEVER were cars more beautiful, safer and more comfortable than those now on display during the 32nd National Automobile Show at the Coliseum, Wabash Avenue at Fifteenth Street.

The throngs of delighted visitors who have crowded the 300 exhibits have received new thrills, a new appreciation of motor car values.

Engines are smoother and more powerful. Lower, longer bodies give greater assurance of security. A host of new automatic devices make motoring more enjoyable and economical.

Prices were never so low! The 1932 automobile is a sensation in this respect. You get more per dollar in style and beauty, in comfort and safety, than ever before. If you have not as yet visited the show, go today or tomorrow.

You owe it to yourself to see the new models and to become familiar with the amazing improvements which America's greatest modern industry has added to cars which motorists last year thought had reached perfection.

A BRILLIANT SPECTACLE

This year there are more new models than exhibited at any former show.

This week offers you a rare treat in that you can see and compare in a few hours, in one exhilarating trip, the entire range of models of every manufacturer.

Point by point you can check the relative merits of the cars which appeal most to you. And in nearly every case you will find sharp reductions in price. Where price has not been cut, you will find an emphatic increase in quality. You will find refinements, innovations, equipment formerly charged as extras but now included in the list price.

When you examine the new models, you, too, will voice the conviction of all who have seen them—this year's car gives the motorist, no matter what price he wants to pay, the greatest value he has ever known.

For complete details of the new cars read the advertisements appearing in the Chicago Tribune. More automobile advertising appears in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper. For over twenty years—the Tribune has been the chief advertising medium of auto manufacturers in their development of sales in the Chicago territory.

At one low cost the Tribune reaches 165,000 more families in Chicago and suburbs than read any other Chicago newspaper—and 51% of the families in all towns of 1000 or more population in Tribune Town.

NEWS OF PROFOUND SIGNIFICANCE

The courageous investment by motor car manufacturers of close to a hundred million dollars in improvements in the 1932 models is fraught with profound significance to every American—whether a car owner or not.

The automotive industry was the largest contributing element to the long years of prosperity which kept employment at such high levels and brought such economic advance to America. Creating tremendous wealth within its own factories, the industry is the keystone of well-being in scores of others.

Today the greatest potentials for a sound recovery in general business and a widespread resumption of employment are in the automotive field. The determination of the motor car manufacturers to restore normal buying by presenting the greatest values in history has won enthusiastic response from leaders in national affairs.

Sales at the Auto Show are being watched with closest interest as an indication of what business in general may expect this year.

AS AT OTHER SHOWS HELD SO FAR THIS YEAR INDICATIONS ARE THAT SALES AT THE CHICAGO SHOW WILL SET NEW RECORDS.

If You Are Interested in a New Outfit for Your Home as Well as for Yourself

There are new things becoming to every type of decorative scheme—all of them so attractive, so beautifully designed, so up-to-the-minute in fashion—that the prices you will find attached to them just don't seem to belong. And that isn't saying a word about quality—which is the same fine type that is always maintained in

RACING DEATH ON A BOB SLED—HOW IT FEELS

MAGNATES FOOT BILLS; PLAYERS GET SYMPATHY

Proving Baseball Is a Strange Business

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 2.—Since the baseball magnates entered their secret agreement to cut the salaries of their ballplayers and boycott all players who refused to work for the wages offered them, I have noticed several times a curious argument in favor of the magnates.

It is set forth that if a baseball writer is fired or his pay is reduced he can never expect any assistance nor even any sympathy from the ballplayers, whereas he can generally look to the local baseball magnate for help in time of trouble. This is quite true, but such a consideration suggests a personal motive which is hardly consistent with the journalistic idea.

Magnates More Charitable.

There is no doubt that the baseball players as a class are less agreeable socially and much less charitable than the magnates, some of whom give away large sums of money every year to individuals and organized charities and never permit any one else to pick up a check for the food and drink at a party.

Nor would I suggest that the magnates do any of these things with the studied purpose of placing the baseball writers under obligations to them.

I have been the guest of Mr. Sam Breadon, the head of the Piggly Wiggly chain of baseball clubs, at world series dinners and various little hotel room jollifications at which nobody but Mr. Breadon was ever permitted to pay for as much as a bottle of mineral water, and I am sure it never occurred to him that he was buying newspaper support with his hospitality. One may nibble Mr. Breadon's bread and sip his stimulants of an evening and come away with his convictions intact and still on good terms with the host.

Players No Philanthropists.

On the other hand, it is hard to remember a single ball player who ever was noted for his open-handedness. Babe Ruth, the greatest money-maker and spender of them all, is supposed to have been an irresistible check-grabber in the spendthrift days before he married his present manager and settled down to life on a budget, but that is only a matter of hearsay with me.

The next richest ball player that the game has produced was said to have issued a standing order to the club's bat boy to go through all the rooms occupied by all players of his team at the end of every hotel visit and collect the odds and ends of bath soap for him.

Another wealthy athlete who has long enjoyed the affectionate regard of the customers once substituted raw southern hooch in the bottles which the club proprietor had entrusted to him out of his pre-war private stock for purposes of entertainment while the club was on the road.

Ask Pullman Porters.

Not for nothing are the athletes known to the Pullman boys and dining car help as nickel customers and it will have to be admitted that the players let go much less willingly than most people do Clubs which tried the experiment of dealing out a daily ration allowance of cash to their players when they were on the road and permitting them to choose their own restaurants had to suspend the plan because the players became dyspeptic and skinny and, in some cases, almost starved to death to save money.

Even on a cash allowance of $2.50 per day, adopted by one club, there were athletes who were able to make a profit. And of course every magnate is familiar with the player who will endure the pain of infected teeth or the sickness of an inflamed appendix or inflamed tonsils until the opening of the official season, when he goes on the pay roll again. Then the club, being interested in his health and physical efficiency, assumes the cost of the repair work.

It's Not Because They're Lovable.

So it is not because the ball players as a class are lovable, not because they would do as much for a sport writer, that one points out the social iniquity, to use a very strong word, of the baseball boycott system which the magnates have resorted to with special enthusiasm this year to enforce their conspiracy against their employés.

They agreed to reduce wages, and the terms of the ball players' standard contract, which is as hard and fast as an insurance policy, provide that the player must accept what he is offered or be driven out of the game, which may be his only means of a livelihood.

In the case of Bill Terry of the New York Giants, who received about $22,000 last year, the reduction is said to have amounted to 40 per cent. But under the conditions the Giants might have offered Terry as little as $500 for the season of 1932 and Terry would have had to accept this pay or be driven out of baseball.

Baseball Isn't Only Business.

I quite realize that this system is not restricted to the baseball business, but the baseball business is the only business which openly avows such a plan, a candor which may be to its credit, at that. I know of several large employers of white collar help who have reciprocal agreements never

REPORTER SEES FOUR GERMANS HURT IN CRASH

Tells of Thrills on Ride Down Slide.

[Five minutes before the German bobsled team cracked up on the treacherous Olympic bobsled run at Lake Placid yesterday, critically injuring two members and seriously hurting the other two, Edward J. Neil, Associated Press staff man, covered the course in a mile a minute dash with Harry Homberger, American pilot. He was an eye-witness to the smash up in which the German sled, the second in two days, jumped over a 28 feet banked turned and hurled its occupants to death's door 85 feet below into a rock strewn gulley.]

BY EDWARD J. NEIL.
[Associated Press Sports Writer.]

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 2.—They took me down the most dangerous mile and a half in the entire sports world today, gave me thrills enough to last a life time, and then before my eyes laid the picture of sudden death and destruction that might well have come to me in a less fortunate moment.

It was 7 o'clock in the morning, deadly cold on the top of Mount Von Hoevenberg, and the bobsledders of eight nations, men who can't have nerves, laughed and chatted in a polyglot of French, German, Swiss, Rumanian, Belgian, Italian, Austrian and English.

Red Flag Starts Death Drive.

At their feet lay the Frenkenstein contraptions known as bobsleds, 500 pounds of steel and oak. In the air was a fine mist of snow. We were at the start of the Olympic bob slide, the mile and a half of glare ice twisting through 25 awesome bends and hairpin curves down the mountainside, the racing strip that in two days has sent eight Germans to the hospital. Today it all but killed two of them.

We watch the starter with his red flag and suddenly he gets word from a telephone strung along the slide that all is clear.

Harry—they call him Hank—winks. "You asked for it, let's go."

He's just a pleasant kid, 26 years old, but a civil engineer from Saranac lake, the fellow who built this slide. He is pilot. Four lives and a steering wheel in his grasp.

Is This the Last Mile?

They say he's the greatest bobsled driver in the history of the sport, dark, keen-eyed, quiet. He is the Albie Booth of bobsleds, 158 pounds, but his shoulders are the widest in the crew. His world record is 1:52 for 1½ miles.

Up comes the sled. We pull on brilliant red jackets and yank on red leather helmets that cover the face entirely, leaving only slits for eyes and mouth.

Hank climbs behind the wheel. We settle on the sled, bracing feet, gripping the straps on the side with hands shielded in padded gloves. I was No. 3, sandwiched in between huge Percy Bryant and the brakeman, Ed Horton, who yanks the steel jaws that clutch at the ice when we need to slow down.

Solemnly the men of other nations, who can't hope to equal Homberger's skill, shake our hands. They do that before each run. They act as though they never expected to see us again.

One Heave and We're off!

Particularly does Fritz Grau, German captain, make it a point to slap our backs. So did Albert Brehme, Hellmuth Hoffman, the jovial Rudolph Krotki, the German team masseur, who takes Max Ludwig's place for the day. An hour later they were all in a hospital, mangled and maimed. Grau and Brehme may die before another day is out.

Hank turns for a last word.

"It's not so fast today," he says, "but I'll do my best to give you a thrill."

One heave and we're off. The foreigners dash for places around the telephone. Each station calls off our progress. I've watched them stand there tense, silent, seeming to be praying there'll be no shout, "They've jumped a bank." That means you've smashed through a curve going a mile a minute and you're body is hurling down a mountainside studded with rocks an dtrees and ice. I saw that, too, later.

Forty! Fifty! Sixty!

Swiftly we picked up speed on the first straight drop. We're shooting down what looks like a culvert of solid ice with the top half cut off. The steel runners begin to sing. The wind tears at your hunched head.

Forty . . . fifty . . . sixty miles an hour.

"Lean," screamed Horton in my ear.

Up into my face came a dazzling wall of white ice. I leaned hard. We sweep to the top. The runners slide, catch, we hurtle down again. That was the turn called Eyrie.

Now it's sixty again and going up, and one after another come the blinding banks, ten, twenty, thirty feet high. Desperately I leaned. This way, that way, gasping for breath, helpless, straining. The wind is blinding. Tears stream from your eyes. You think you can't hold on another sec-

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

This is sort of a tête-à-tête in which you may not be much interested, but there are hundreds of young men to whom it will be of particular concern. It is an open letter to the boys who are planning to enter the 1932 Golden Gloves tournament.

For some of the out of town contestants the quest for the greatest prize in amateur boxing already has begun. Chicago boys will get into the fight on Feb. 15 with the first preliminary round at Ashland Boulevard auditorium. Then come the north and south side trials.

The task cut out for Golden Glove candidates this year is the stiffest ever, and only the best amateur boxers in the world will tread it to the end. The first big test of courage and skill comes at Chicago Stadium Feb. 29, March 1 and 2, when the winners in all the qualifying meets come together in the Tournament of Champions. Out of this will come the rivals for the championships of Chicagoland, which will be decided on March 9 in the same arena.

Champions, runners up and eight alternates then move into the Illinois Athletic club, where for two weeks they will prepare for the bitter intercity battle with New York, scheduled for Madison Square Garden March 28. Later will come an international match at Soldiers' field.

Now a word about entering. THE TRIBUNE, of course, is anxious to get all the entries it can. But it is more interested in fighters. There is no point in sending in your entry if down in your heart you don't mean to go through with it. The time for cold feet is now. This is a man's game and no place for the faint hearted.

Don't try to fight in a class below your normal weight. Competition is keen in every division and there is nothing to be gained by trying to mingle with the little fellows. Every contestant is examined by a TRIBUNE doctor before he is allowed to box and he will be ordered to compete in a class of his natural weight or disqualified from the meet. There will be no gambling with a boy's health.

Only applicants who have satisfied the Central A. A. U. officials of their amateurism are allowed to enter. If you have fought on a professional card or if by any other act you have jeopardized your standing with the amateurs, don't try for Golden Gloves. You will be caught before you have had a chance to share in the rewards of the tournament. Both the A. A. U. and the Illinois athletic commission coöperate fully with THE TRIBUNE in keeping out professionals. Last year four out of town entrants were disqualified after they had advanced to the quarter finals.

We want to develop another team of which Chicago will be proud. We want to give New York its third straight whipping. We don't have to use boys whose amateurism is questioned to attain that goal.

So come on, you fighting sons of Chicagoland. THE TRIBUNE welcomes all the brave aspirants for Golden Gloves of 1932.

Now a word to the folks who come out to see these boys perform. Tickets for the finals, March 9, and for the Tournament of Champions, Feb. 29, March 1 and 2, have been on sale for several days. The demand is heavier than ever. There is every indication that Chicago Stadium will be sold out for the finals two weeks in advance of the show.

Thousands of good seats are still available. The prices for the finals are $1, $2, and $3. The top price for the Tournament of Champions is only $1.50. Application for tickets must be made by mail to the ticket manager of the tournament at Tribune Tower.

This is not a sales talk. It is a friendly tip to hundreds of amateur boxing fans who will be wondering a few weeks hence why they can't see one of the biggest events in amateur sport.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia rolled along toward the world's three cushion billiard championship last night when he beat Johnny Layton, 50 to 35, in 37 innings.

It was one of the most spectacular games of the title play. It had been a nip and tuck affair until the 32d inning with Layton leading most of the way. Then Reiselt ran 12. It was the second highest run of the tournament and put him into a lead of 47 to 34.

Layton fought stubbornly. He made one more billiard in the next 5 innings. But he was fighting a hopeless uphill battle and it was easy for Reiselt to pick off three more and finish it.

34 Points in 12 Innings.

Reiselt had made 34 points in 12 innings when he finished his run of 12. It was like a no hit ball game to the billiard fans, for these were not easy shots. He was sending the ivories all around the table and making them perform miracles.

Reiselt's world's championship prospects are becoming more rosy with every game he plays. He would be a certain winner if he could shake off the stubborn challenge Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago has been making.

Kieckhefer had raced up on the heels of Reiselt by winning a sensational afternoon match from young Jake Schaefer, 50 to 36.

Kieckhefer's triumphant struggle against Schaefer had one of the largest crowds of the tournament excited from beginning to end. It was a fine exhibition of billiards and became even more brilliant in the closing innings, with both scoring what appeared to be impossible shots. During this stage of the struggle Kieckhefer was out in front following three runs of six.

Kiwanians Cheer in Vain.

In the 44th inning Kieckhefer was leading, 44 to 33. Then Kieckhefer made six difficult shots in the next four innings and the game was over.

In the early game last night the downtown central chapter of the Kiwanis club turned out in a body to cheer for Brother Len Kenney of Chicago. But they didn't get to do much hilarious celebrating, for Frank Scoville of Buffalo beat him, 50 to 39. It was the last game for both players.

HOW GERMAN BOB SLEDDERS CRASHED

Basketball Abandoned by Lindblom High

Lindblom High school's basketball team, a member of the Chicago Public High School league since 1920, yesterday failed to appear at Wendell Phillips High school for a scheduled heavyweight basketball game. The action was followed last night by an announcement by the league officials that the school has discontinued basketball for the remainder of the season.

Lindblom's action dropping basketball from its sports schedule, it was reported, is the first step in a movement to have all high schools abandon the sport. Lindblom's withdrawal from the league will affect all other members.

See Economy as Reason.

Officials refused to give any reason for Lindblom's action other than the proposed economy budget which the board of education is expected to adopt. The school board's plan was to curtail all extracurricular activities.

Several teachers at all of the schools in the league are kept on an extended pay roll, receiving extra pay for attending all basketball games with students. Under the new plan these teachers would not accompany students to games played in their own gymnasium.

At a recent teachers' meeting a proposal to drop basketball at all schools was considered, but no definite decision was reached.

A. H. Pritzlaff, secretary of the league, said he knew of no reason for Lindblom's withdrawal except the school board's proposed budget. However, he added that it may prompt other schools to follow Lindblom's action.

Rumors League Will Disband.

Rumors persisted last night that the league would soon disband. League officials refused to comment on whether they have contemplated the discontinuance of basketball. It also was reported that other schools in the central section, with Lindblom now not competing, also would drop basketball in a few days.

Phillips' heavyweight squad was given a forfeit victory over Lindblom when the team did not appear on the Phillips court. Phillips' team was on the floor and the referee declared it the victor on a forfeit.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Jockey J. O'Malley thrilled spectators at the Fair Grounds race track this afternoon by a spectacular feat seldom, if ever, seen in a horse race, and in all probability saved the life of Jockey Eugene James, who was a sensation on Chicago tracks two years ago.

James, mounted on Kitty Wilkins, was thrown as his mount stumbled. He made a flying leap for Sunny Port and grabbed that horse's mane. He was just losing his grip as the field of horses thundered down upon him when O'Malley, mounted on Sunny Port, reached down and grabbed James by the seat of his trousers and pulled him to safety.

O'Malley, with James across his lap, pulled his horse to the outside. Horsemen say nothing could have saved James, as the field dashed onward. Lady Blenville swerved in the mixup and threw Jockey Robinson, but he was thrown clear and arose unhurt.

As O'Malley trotted after the field and passed the grandstand he was given a big ovation. Two years ago he was suspended here for rough riding and was a long time on the ground. He always denied that he had anything to do with the bumping in the race in which he was penalized.

Rangers Lose to Canadien Sextet, 4 to 1

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens, hockey's world champions, held second place in the Canadian division of the National Hockey league safe and placed themselves only two points behind Toronto tonight by trouncing the New York Rangers, 4 to 1.

The Canadiens won in an impressive fashion. They scored two quick goals in the first period and added another pair in the third frame, while the Rangers were trying desperately to tie the score. The New Yorkers looked stale. Their defense developed holes and they were always slower than the Frenchmen.

AMERICANS, 4; BRUINS, 3.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins tonight came from behind to tie the New York Americans with a determined third period rally but, in pressing for the winning score, left an opening which enabled Billy Burch to score the tally that gave the Americans a 4 to 3 victory.

Bert McInenly scored in the opening session, on Burch's forward pass and Rabbit McVeigh counted twice in the second, assisted by Burch and Wallie Kilrea.

In the third period Weiland of Boston edged up to the Americans' net in time to turn Marty Barry's passout back into the net. Two minutes later Barry broke up a New York wave in midice and carried back for an unassisted score.

MAROONS, 4; FALCONS, 3.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2. — (AP) — The Montreal Maroons outscored the Detroit Falcons, 4 to 3, in a National Hockey league game tonight, holding off a determined third period rush to win.

Trailing 3 to 0 half way through the second period, Detroit came back into the running with two quick goals and was trying hard for the third when three Maroons broke away and Baldy Northcott scored what proved to be the winning counter in the third period.

Eddie Shea Knocks Out Wangley in 8th Round

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 2. — (AP) — Eddie Shea of Chicago drove a straight right to the jaw in the eighth round to win by a knockout from Paul Wangley of Minneapolis tonight in a boxing bout scheduled for ten. More than a minute was required to revive Wangley. He dropped for a count of nine in the fourth, but from then on to the finish fought on even terms.

Detroit Hands De Paul Five 36-25 Defeat

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 2.—(AP)—A last half spurt that overcame a 5 point deficit at half time gave the University of Detroit basketball team a 36 to 25 victory over De Paul of Chicago here tonight. De Paul started with a rush, soon took a 5 to 0 lead, and was ahead, 18 to 13, at the half.

Sharpshooting by Aitchison, Chapp, and Reisterer in the second half added points rapidly and the Titans made a total of 24 to win, while the visitors were held down to seven.

De Paul watched the Titan star, Skrzycki, who generally leads in the scoring, but the others made good while he was being covered. Lineup:

St. David Swimmers Win Catholic Youth Crown

St. David swimmers won two out of the three classes last night in the second annual swim meet of the Catholic Youth Organization at the Lake Shore Athletic club pool. They took first place in the senior and intermediate classes with 28 and 18 respectively. St. Thomas Aquinas swimmers captured the junior division with 14 points. St. Mel and Holy Name Cathedral tied for second honors with eight points each.

Londos Defeats Calza in New York Match; Booed

New York, Feb. 2.—[Special.]—While a crowd of more than 10,000 in the Coliseum accorded him a salvo of boos, Jim Londos pinned the Italian, George Calza, tonight in 38 minutes and 55 seconds with a crotch hold and body slam.

Loyola 29-26 Victor Over Millikin Five

Loyola university hung up its thirteenth victory in fifteen games last night by defeating James Millikin university, 29 to 26, at the Loyola gymnasium. The outcome was in doubt until the final minutes of the game.

Steinhauer's five baskets for Millikin kept the Decatur five within distance of Loyola throughout. Schuhman, Cavanaugh and Butzen each scored three baskets for Loyola.

Loyola took an early lead, but was tied by Millikin in the middle of the first half, 8 to 8. With Cavanaugh breaking through the Millikin defense for short shots at the basket and Steinhauer scoring for the downstatters, the count was even for the rest of the period with Loyola taking a short lead near the end of the half, 16 to 13.

France's basket and Henry's free throw gave Millikin a tie to start the second half at 16 all, and Millikin again tied the score at 20 all. Loyola pulled away but Stillman, Henry and Steinhauer again tied it at 26.

With two minutes to go, Schuhman took a short pass from Wagner on the free throw line and scored from a position directly under the basket. Wagner contributed a free throw to make the final score, 29 to 26. The lineup:

GOLDEN GLOVES FIGHTS SPREAD TO DUBUQUE, IOWA

Second Hawkeye City to Join Tourney.

Dubuque, Ia., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Competition for Golden Gloves has spread to northeastern Iowa. The Dubuque Telegraph Herald and Times Journal today announced it would sponsor a qualifying round of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S amateur boxing tournament.

The meet will be held at the Y. M. C. A. and will be in charge of Ray W. Edwards, physical director of the organization. The date has not been set. Promoters are counting heavily on talent from Columbia college and the University of Dubuque to help give the city a representative team in the Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium Feb. 29, March 1 and 2.

This will be the second tournament in Iowa. The other will be held at Davenport.

RECORD DAVENPORT LIST

Davenport, Ia., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—A record entry is seen for the third annual Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by the Daily Times, which opens at the Coliseum here Feb. 10. The entry list totaled 140 today and at least 20 more are expected before Monday, the deadline.

Buzz Green, heavyweight king for the last two years, is expected to enter this week. Other champions are Johnny Baltzer, 112 pounds; Quinn McCann, 118 pounds; Joey Rozina, 126 pounds, and Willie Guide, 147 pounds.

SOUTH BEND HAS 47

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—At least three of the former champions of the South Bend Golden Gloves tournament will fight in the News-Times 1932 meet starting Feb. 15. Among the 47 entrants are many who have competed before.

Only one of the champions will defend his title, however. John Nate, flyweight champion, will fight as a bantam, and George Van Der Heyden, featherweight title holder, will compete in the lightweight division. Henry Robinson, light heavyweight champion, hopes to defend his title.

Four teams of South Bend and Mishawaka already have entered and additional squads are expected to represent Niles, Mich., and Elkhart and Nappanee, Ind. Entries will close Feb. 9.

GARY CHAMPIONS BACK

Gary, Ind., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—"Bigger and better than ever." That is the best possible description of the third annual Gary Post Golden Gloves tournament to be held in Memorial gym Feb. 23 and 24.

Entry records already have been broken, although the entry deadline still is two weeks away. The 1931 Gary tournament drew 37 contestants and required only one night to determine the eight champions. This year's tournament has attracted 64 entries, necessitating a two-night program with at least 30 bouts each night.

Among the entrants who have been in training for the last month are Jack Kranz, 1931 Chicago Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion; Anthony Zale, 1931 Gary welterweight champion; Jack Kolvy, 1930 Gary lightweight champion; Paul Stedina, 1931 bantamweight winner; John Navicky, 1931 lightweight champion, and Pete Dudak, last year's flyweight champion.

Dudak has been forced to move up into the bantam class and Kolvy will appear in the welterweight division, while Kranz will be fighting this year as a heavyweight. John Long, 1931 Chicago Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, is expected to compete in the Gary tournament but will appear as a light heavyweight.

LARGER PEORIA ARENA

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—With 24 hours remaining before the entries close, 120 amateur boxers had filed their names for participation in the Journal-Transcript Golden Gloves tournament at the Rialto theater Feb. 8, 9, and 15.

Three former central Illinois champions — Kenney Jackson, flyweight; Paul Helms, bantam weight, and Tony Sutton, light heavyweight—will defend their titles won in 1931.

More than 1,000 fans were turned away on the final night a year ago and officials have obtained a lease on the Rialto theater, largest in the city, for this year's fights.

Streator always has been successful in finding boys capable of causing a lot of trouble to rivals in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE meet. In 1931 Laddie Tonnielli, lightweight champion, went to the semi-finals, only to lose after a close decision. Katye Kaktus fought his way to an alternate job on the Chicago team. Both of these 1931 champions have entered this year's meet.

JOLIET BOYS AT WORK

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Sixty aspirants for honors in the eight divisions of the Joliet Spectator Golden Gloves tourney started training today for the three day elimination tourney here Feb. 15, 16 and 18.

Joe Roman, Steel club fighter, was runner-up in the 126-pound division at Chicago in 1930 and won his intercity match. Last year he was beaten at Chicago in an early round by the boy who eventually won the crown. Roman has been training for more than three months.

The Moose club of Joliet also has entered boys who will make a strong bid for honors in the tourney. They are being coached by Dave Rosen, lightweight fighter several years ago.

60 ENTER AT VINCENNES

Vincennes, Ind., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—With more than 60 boys entered, a record entry list is expected for the Vincennes sectional of the Golden Gloves tournament, which will be held here Feb. 11 and 17. Entries will close Feb. 9.

Three towns will send teams to the Vincennes tournament. They are Princeton, Frichton and Mount Carmel, Ill.

to "tamper" with one another's employés, thus avoiding the necessity for counter-tampering, which would cause uncertainty and confusion and run into expense. An employé of one wishing to obtain a better job or more pay with the other is advised there is no room for him just now, but he is not told there is a gentleman's agreement which forbids his being hired away.

I have not many friends who keep butlers, but during the days when there was so much money around I did meet a few millionaires pro tem and learned the chances of the hiring of butlers. It was considered very bad form indeed for one millionaire, pro tem or otherwise, to hire away another millionaire's butler, or his chauffeur or gardener, although he might have been willing to give the employé in question much more money than he was getting in his present job. It was like violating the sanctity of the American home.

This understanding was conducive to tranquillity in the household, but it was not so good for the profession of buttling. But then, of course, buttling is not a sympathetic profession, so the butlers never had the backing of an aroused public opinion.

It Would Be Unfortunate.

It would be unfortunate if all journalism were actuated by the personal forehandedness of individual journalists, who think of a day they might be sick and broke and in need of help.

In such a case I would still believe that the ball player ought to have a free market in which to sell his work, or, anyway, some voice in the decision on the amount of his pay. But though I had taken the ball players' part in many an argument on the subject the last person I would appeal to would be a ball player. Instead, I think I would appeal to some magnate of the type of Jake Ruppert of Louie Comiskey. If their generosity is as genuine as I think it is they would never offer the same as the price of a man's opinions.

MURPHY LEADS PURDUE ALUMNI AGAINST BRUINS

Hostilities between the Murphys—Charley of Purdue and Charley of Loyola—will be renewed Sunday night when the Chicago Bruins meet the Purdue All-Stars at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

The Purdue team is regarded as one of the strongest professional teams playing now with the possible exception of Ft. Wayne. Murphy, who captains the team this season, is the leading scorer.

In the south division, Bowen heavyweights continued their march toward the semi-finals by triumphing over Parker, 39 to 17, for their third straight victory. Dolac, replacing Bill Haarlow, who was graduated, at left forward, led Bowen, sinking four field goals and two penalty shots. Bowen led, 20 to 9, at half time.

Marshall and Crane were victors in west division lightweight contests, Marshall winning from Harrison, 35 to 21, and Crane defeating McKinley, 24 to 15. Sorkin led Crane to its third consecutive triumph by scoring ten points.

N. L. Reveals Innovations in 1932 Program

New York, Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Moving through odds and ends of legislative matters the club owners of the National and International leagues, conducting separate meetings here today, officially rang down the curtain on another session of winter baseball. The National league, with President John A. Heydler presiding, ratified its schedule for the 1932 championship season.

President Heydler contrived to bring out several interesting features of the National league's playing calendar, which opens April 12 and closes on Sept. 25. For the first time in several years the Dodgers will be called upon to play the Giants in a Sunday game at the Polo grounds. It has been the accepted custom to play all Giant-Dodger Sunday games at Ebbets field.

Another innovation will make it no longer necessary for visiting teams in Greater New York to play the Giants and Dodgers in successive series.

As in the case of the American league, the National league also will operate this year with only ten umpires, the plan being to have two men officiate in each of two games and three in each of the two remaining games. The league's staff of umpires was announced by President Heydler as follows: William Klem, Charles Rigler, Ernie Quigley, Charles Moran, Charles Pfirman, John Reardon, Albert Stark, George Magerkurth, Charles Donnelly, and George Barr.

Amateur Boxer Killed in Evansville Meet

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Cyril Hughes, 17, of Rockport, Ind., died tonight of a heart attack after losing his first bout in the Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by the Evansville Courier and Journal. Hughes, a flyweight, fought Ernest Anderson, Mt. Vernon, Ind., Negro. Near the end of the first round Hughes was knocked down. The bell saved him at the count of nine and he got up and walked to his corner, where he collapsed. He was removed to a hospital, where he died an hour later. Hughes, like all other candidates, underwent a physical examination this afternoon. He was pronounced fit to compete by Dr. Joseph Welborn.

JIM REESE A HOLDOUT.

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Explaining that while he expected to take a cut in salary he thought the one made was too big, Jimmy Reese, second baseman, said today he had returned his contract unsigned to the St. Paul club.

Toronto's High Scoring Sextet Battles Hawks

Hockey's greatest scoring line of Conacher, Primeau, and Jackson will appear at the Stadium for the third time this season tonight when the Blackhawks meet the Toronto Maple Leafs, leaders of the International division of the National Hockey league.

The trio is known as the Toronto kid line. Harvey Jackson, 20 year old left wing, is second in the league's scoring list with 31 points, just one point back of Hooley Smith, Montreal Maroons' scoring ace. Joe Primeau, center, is only 23 years old and stands third on the list with 30 points.

Primeau's specialty is passing. He has hit the nets only four times this season, but he is far ahead of every other player in assists, with which he has helped teammates to score 25 times. He plays center.

Conacher Hardest Shot.

Charley Conacher, giant right wing, whom hockey experts credit with having the hardest shot of any player, has just turned 21. He is tied with Primeau, having made 25 goals and 4 assists.

This season Toronto has beaten most of the strong teams of the league with amazingly high scores. The Leafs scored six times against Boston's strong defensive sextet in one game. They broke through Montreal Maroons for eleven goals in two battles. In another two they scored 20 goals against the New York Americans, a team which specializes on defense.

Checked by Blackhawks.

Although the Leafs have piled up big scores on other National Hockey league teams, their record is not impressive against the Blackhawks in their three games. In the first at Toronto the Hawks defeated the Leafs, 2 to 1; the second on the Stadium ice went to a 1 to 1 overtime tie, and the third, another overtime, also in Chicago, finished 1 to 0 in favor of the Hawks.

LEVINSKY DRAWS AS MANY FANS AS DEMPSEY—LENA

Turns Down Stadium's Offer of $5,000.

Negotiations between King Levinsky and Matchmaker Nate Lewis of the Chicago Stadium for Levinsky to box four rounds with Jack Dempsey at the Stadium Feb. 18 collapsed yesterday when Mrs. Lena Levy, sister-manager of the King, turned down an offer of $5,000.

Mrs. Levy intimated the King was tired and was planning a vacation and that the Levinskys believed the King to be just as big a box office attraction as Dempsey.

Meanwhile, Ancil Hoffman, manager for Max Baer, passing through Chicago, told Sidney Strotz, president of the Stadium, he would welcome the Dempsey bout.

Willie Oster, Boston middleweight, was forced to cancel his eight round bout with K. O. White at Rainbo Fronton because of the postponement from Friday to Feb. 12. He is matched with Clyde Chastain at Miami Beach, Fla., on that date. He will leave for Miami Beach with Jackie Davis Friday.

A benefit amateur card will be presented at the Jewish People's Institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard, next Wednesday. The most popular boxer on the card will be given a trophy donated by Jack Dempsey.

Four north side suburban champions, Frank Ketter, Bud Ginter, Fred Becker, and Tony Sutton, will appear in feature bouts on the amateur card tomorrow night at the Belle Plaine Athletic club, 3943 Lincoln avenue. Ginter meets George Angus. Other matches bring together Becker and Joe Pellico, and Sutton and Ray Hall.

Young Stuhley of Kewanee, Ill., and Johnny Baima, Lawndale middleweight, will meet in the semi-final of Mique Malloy's card at White City next Monday. Stuhley has won his last 12 bouts. Henry Firpo and Dave Shade meet in the ten round main event.

A charity amateur show will be held by the 18th Ward Republican Voters' league tonight at Viking temple, 69th street and Emerald avenue.

GERMANS FOLLOW REPORTER DOWN ICE SLIDE; CRASH

Writer Experiences Thrills on Bobsled Ride.

ond. You fight, surge, and then you're out of the curve and flying down a straightaway. Seventy miles an hour, and you get a breath.

Then It Gets You.

Then something begins to happen to your nervous system. The curves are getting steeper. You're taking them eagerly. Suddenly you begin to tingle, every nerve in your body feels as though some one were playing on it with a fiddle bow. Exultation sweeps up from your toes, reaches your throat. Back goes your head and you howl with the sheer joy of it.

You're ready now for the serious part. Whiteface, a vertical semi-circle of ice 35 feet high at seventy miles an hour. The sky suddenly turned to a sheet of ice over your head, the track a streak of blue under one elbow.

Shady Corner, again at seventy, a thud as you fly into the wall, smash off again, and just when you think you're gone, another straightaway, another breath.

Then the final test, a final surge of every drop of blood through your veins. The apex of sporting thrills and the end of many a bob sled career—Zig-Zig—a whip to the left, a leap of five feet, all four runners off the ground, to straighten out, a whip to the right. One last burst and you're at the finish line, limp, exhausted.

It Was a "Slow" Ride.

A minute later we were drinking coffee and my nerves were still tingling so, the liquid shimmered in the cup.

"Slow," said Hank, "about 2 minutes."

"Yes" said Horton, "I wish I'd brought my gun. I saw a rabbit I could have got when we were going through Shady."

"What's the idea," growled Paul Stevens, whose place I took. "Did you have to walk down?"

We started back up the mountain. Almost to Shady we heard another bob screaming down the course. We jumped behind the track peering through the snow up the twisted ice ribbon. We could see Shady up the bend.

A bob flew into the turn at seventy miles an hour, swerved, runners shrieked. The sled swept up the incline, smashed through the top. Four bodies hurled through the air, into a deep ravine below. It was our friends, the Germans, Grau, Brehme, Hoppmann, and Krotki.

Clear the Track—Start Over.

We raced up the slide, helped carry the battered, blood soaked, unconscious forms to the ambulances. Grau has a fractured shoulder, broken hip, injured spine and skull. Brehme's skull and wrist are broken. The calf was all but torn from Hoppman's leg. Krotki, the substitute, limps up the slope, his back strained.

"That's the way it goes," Homberger sighed.

CRASH INJURES FOUR

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Mounting the perpendicular wall of the Shady Corner turn on the Olympic bobsled run at a 65 mile an hour clip, a second German bobsleigh went hurtling into space today and tossed four riders into a rock strewn gully 85 feet below, injuring one of them perhaps fatally.

All four riders, broken and torn, were picked up by a rescue squad and rushed to the general hospital here.

Order Portable X-ray.

So badly hurt were three of the four that hospital authorities refused to risk moving them from their beds to the X-ray machine downstairs, but ordered a portable X-ray from Saranac Lake so that the Germans would not have to be disturbed. Final diagnosis revealed that one is in a critical state, a second in a serious but not dangerous condition, and the other two in no immediate danger.

The injured are:

Capt. Fritz Grau, 37 year old, driver of the sled, broken right shoulder, possible fracture of the right hip, concussion of the brain, lacerations of the head and body; condition serious but not dangerous.

It was on Sunday that Capt. Werner Zahn drove the German sled, Fram II., over the reverse curve of zigzag and went crashing down the mountainside.

MR. MINER GIVES OL' DEVIL HAWK BOTH BARRELS

BY BOB BECKER.

American sportsmen have gone out by the millions, combined forces with hawks and owls, and killed game birds right and left, says Jack Miner, well known amateur naturalist and owner of the famous Miner bird sanctuary near Kingsville, Ont. But have the hunters exterminated the predators with the same efficiency? No, insists Miner as he pens a terrific indictment of the hawk family.

The bird fan who has not had the privilege of reading how Jack gives the hawks both barrels at once will be interested in the following quotation from his latest attack:

"The great complaint about killing the hawk is that you are 'interfering with nature' or "upsetting nature's balance,' as they killed the weak and delicate birds, which I believe they did. And the great Provider put them there for that purpose. And now with 95 per cent of their food birds gone, which includes the passenger pigeon, the hawks are left here hungry, and the only way to restore nature, or bring nature back to her own, is to reduce them to the same extent that other bird life has been reduced.

"Remember that while a hawk will take a weak bird first, he can and does catch any he wants to, except, of course, the larger variety of hawks, like the red tail, red shouldered and broad winged hawks."

HUNT FOR PLANE AND 5 LOST OFF BAHAMAS WIDENS

Air Line Head Refuses List of Passengers.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Planes and boats searched all day for a missing Bimini Airways plane carrying Pilot Val Chick and four passengers. The plane left here yesterday noon for Bimini, in the Bahama islands, and has not been heard from since then. High seas were reported along the route the plane took and have made a safe landing on the water highly improbable for the plane, which was equipped with pontoons.

Thirty foot waves have prevented the coast guard from sending out small craft. Gregory Melanson, president of the air line, said the plane carried provisions to last for a week. He continued the search from the air, aided by planes of Pan American Airways and privately owned planes. The missing plane is a Fairchild, powered by a Wasp motor. Melanson refused to give out a list of the passengers.

Find Rust and Plane.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Francis H. Rust, 34, reserve air mail pilot for Transamerican airlines, who was missing in an area swept by snow squalls after taking off from this city for Chicago at 10:30 p. m. Monday, was found beside the wreck of his plane late today. He was unconscious, had a fractured left leg and was suffering from shock and exposure. His plane was a Stearman biplane equipped with a Wright motor.

The pilot had attempted to jump from his plane, but his parachute had not opened fully, due to the low altitude. The plane had not burned and the mail was saved.

Pilot Found Dead.

Salt Lake City, Feb. 2.—[Special]—The charred wreckage of a mail plane piloted by John W. Sharpnack, 40, veteran bad weather pilot of United Air Lines, was found near Rio Vista, Cal., today by Pilot William Campbell of an Oakland-San José mail plane. The body of the pilot was found near the wreck of the Boeing Hornet powered plane. Sharpnack was flying the mail from Oakland, Cal., to Reno, Nev., last night when he ran into a snow storm over the Sacramento valley.

Coast Hunt Continues.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Fighting snow, ice, low hanging clouds, and freezing temperatures, searchers continued today to hunt the Century-Pacific Air Lines plane lost since last Friday with the pilot and seven passengers, three of whom were women. The plane was flying from Bakersfield to Los Angeles. All the occupants of the plane are thought to be dead.

Army Pilot Missing.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Lieut. Edward D. Hoffman, Army Air corps reserve pilot, is missing in an army observation plane from which Lieut. William A. Cocke Jr., another reserve pilot, jumped with his parachute last night. Lieut. Cocke landed in Sequoia National park safely and was found early today by forest rangers, suffering from exposure.

HEAD OF KNIFE COMPANY KILLS SELF IN OFFICE

Lawrence H. Powell, president of the American Stainless Knife company, 1445 Austin avenue, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by shooting himself in the right temple in his office. He was 49 years old. Employés told police Mr. Powell had been despondent over business troubles. His plant, which once had a pay roll of more than 300 persons, had steadily dropped employés in the last two years until it had scarcely more than 60.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Powell signed the pay checks and turned them over to John Forest, 2415 South 50th avenue, Cicero, superintendent of the factory. Shortly after Forest left the office an employé heard a shot in the president's office.

Dr. L. F. Baxter, 1580 West Lake street, was summoned. He pronounced Powell dead. Powell is survived by his widow and two children, Lawrence Jr., 8 years old, and Robert, 3 years old. He lived at 2341 Commonwealth avenue.

No trace of the slayer has been found. A daughter, Levinia, of Portland, Ore., appeared at the inquest, which was held at the county morgue, but did not testify.

TEARS ARE REFUGE OF DOROTHY KNAPP IN HER $500,000 SUIT

New York, Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Dorothy Knapp, once billed as "the most beautiful girl in the world," took refuge in tears today in her suit to recover $500,000 from Mrs. Anne Penfield and others whom she accuses of having brought about her dismissal from Earl Carroll's "Fioretta."

Pressed on cross-examination about three pay checks for $900 each indorsed by her after she said she was dropped from the show, Miss Knapp began to weep. When she turned streaming eyes upon Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer, who is presiding over the case, he said bruskly: "Look at the checks."

Then a recess was taken, apparently without settling the question whether the indorsements were Miss Knapp's and whether the money had been placed to her credit in the bank.

Moses Malevinsky, counsel for Mrs. Penfield and the other defendants, who include Mr. Carroll, Mrs. Emily Hubbell, Mrs. Penfield's secretary, and George L. Bagby, musical protégée of Mrs. Penfield, wanted to know if she had signed the checks and collected the money.

Miss Knapp's reply was that she had not been paid for the last three weeks of the show and that the indorsement was not hers.

Before adjournment, Mr. Malevinsky suggested she consult her bank about the checks and correct her testimony later. Mr. Carroll testified he had delivered the three checks to Miss Knapp personally.

Mrs. Mary Wolfe, 59 years old, widow of John W. Wolfe, former assistant city engineer of Chicago, died on Monday at her home at 7709 Yates avenue after a long illness. She was a sister-in-law of Richard Wolfe, former commissioner of public works. A native of Ireland, Mrs. Wolfe had lived for more than fifty years on the south side. She is survived by three sons and three daughters. Funeral services will be held at St. Bride's church at 9:30 a. m. today. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

GIRL LOSES ARM IN OAK PARK AUTO COLLISION

Miss Dorothy N. Guy, 22 years old, 1026 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, was so severely injured in a collision of two automobiles last evening that her right arm was amputated a short time afterward at the West Suburban hospital. The crash occurred at Randolph street and Lombard avenue in the suburb.

Miss Guy was riding with her father, Walter, 65 years old, in a small sedan belonging to her brother, George, 30 years old, who was driving. The driver of the other car was Burton W. Hales Jr., 108 South East avenue, Oak Park, a grain clerk in his father's brokerage office, Hales & Junter, 116 West Jackson boulevard.

Three automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday raised the toll since Jan. 1 to 110. The victims:

Mrs. Anna Ceravetta, 33 years old, 538 North Ridgeway avenue. Died at the Franklin Boulevard hospital from injuries sustained Jan. 21 when she was run down at Hamlin avenue and Ohio street. The driver was George Donovan, 1338 North Hamlin avenue, a teaming contractor, who was charged with reckless driving.

Aline Bough, 11 years old, colored, 4601 South Michigan avenue. Fatally injured last night when she was struck by a Yellow cab driven by Elmer Taylor, 5745 Prairie avenue, at Indiana avenue and 46th street. Taylor took her to the Provident hospital, where she died.

Unidentified man, about 45 years old. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile at Humboldt boulevard and Courtland street. Frank Zonga, 37 years old, 2258 Iowa street, driver of the car, was held by the Shakespeare avenue police.

ROBBERS' AUTO SOLD BY COURT; VICTIM GETS $200

Leslie Wheeler, 436 East Woodlawn avenue, Lake Forest, who was one of the nine socially prominent persons robbed in the Lake Forest home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell on Nov. 21 by five bandits, got back $200 yesterday that he lost in the holdup. The morning after the robbery Wheeler entered an attachment against the $2,300 automobile of Frank Tufano, 19 years old, convicted leader of the gang, which had been abandoned on the Mitchell estate. Yesterday Police Magistrate Edwin Burgess of Lake Forest entered judgment and ordered the car sold. It was redeemed by members of Tufano's family, who paid $300 to the court. Mr. Wheeler received $200 and $100 went for the garage bill and court costs. Practically all the jewelry, valued at $150,000, taken by the robbers, was recovered.

SEES 2 FRIENDS DIE IS BLIZZARD ON A MOUNTAIN

Youth Crawls Down as Storm Rages.

Twin Mountain, N. H., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Two youths who braved blizzard-swept Mount Washington Sunday in subzero weather perished more than half way up the mountainside while a third crawled on hands and knees from the summit to the base station after he was forced to abandon his companions when they succumbed to cold and toppled from the cog-wheel railroad trestle.

Donald Higgins, 23, Winchester, Mass., youth, struggled against the storm after he was forced to release his grasp on his two friends, first Ernest McAdams, honor senior at Tufts college, then Joseph Chadwick of Woburn. With difficulty he made the ascent, rested without food or fire in the shelter of the summit house and crawled down to collapse at the base.

Signals Attract Attention.

Higgins' story was related today to the caretakers at the base station when he staggered to the door and with feeble signals attracted their attention. He told them he had left his two companions lying dead in the snow along the trestle. He had been forced to abandon them on his way up the mountain and had seen one of bodies as he came down. Details of his valiant efforts to save his two friends came between periods of fainting.

"McAdams showed signs of weakening when we were more than half way up the mountain," Higgins said. "We thought we could make the top and find shelter and rest up much better than to attempt to go down through the storm. It was blowing a hurricane, the snow was biting in our faces and we wondered if we'd make it."

"I held on to McAdams and urged him to pluck up, told him we'd make it and to keep on plugging. But the storm was too much for him, and when I was so benumbed that I could not help him further I had to watch him topple off the trestle into the snow. Then Chadwick fell off and I went on alone."

Exhausted from Exposure.

Tonight, at Morrison hospital at Whitefield, the youth's condition was said to be "fairly good." His face was badly frost bitten, his left hand had been frozen and he was exhausted from exposure and hunger.

Higgins said they were half way up the trestle when McAdams showed signs of weakening, but they kept on, holding McAdams between them.

"We made it as far as Jacob's Ladder before we had to give up," Higgins said. "McAdams couldn't stand it. We didn't have enough strength left to carry him any further and then he slipped out of our grasps because our hands were too benumbed to hold him. He just crumpled and fell off the trestle into the snow.

Attempts to Go Ahead.

"Chadwick and I struggled on. We held on to each other and our combined strength enabled us to make considerable headway. We thought that by clinging to each other we'd make it. But I was weakening too. Then, when Chadwick seemed to stumble and wobble I felt him slipping away from me and he fell and I tried to keep on."

Early tomorrow veteran woodsmen will attempt to find the bodies of young McAdams and Chadwick.

Ends DANDRUFF Overnight!

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

WHAT U.S. ROADS REQUIRE MOST: MORE FREIGHT

Car Loadings Slow to Improve.

BY O. A. MATHER.

While the various measures adopted in the last few weeks undoubtedly will help American railroads, what the carriers need most is a larger volume of freight traffic. And that, apparently, must await improvement in general business. The railroads may henceforth be a bit more liberal as buyers of varied commodities, but, after all, they are primarily sellers of transportation.

It cannot be denied that railroad traffic is as slow—perhaps slower—in improving than is general business. For example, loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Jan. 23 totaled only 562,938 cars, which marked a decline of 10,338 cars from the preceding week. This recession is contrary to the usual seasonal trend, as the end of January usually marks an increase in the movement of commodities in preparation for the spring season.

Business Still Drops.

Moreover, the low level of traffic is evidenced by comparisons. Business was pretty dull a year ago, yet freight loadings were 152,536 cars higher than the current figure. And business was on the decline two years ago, yet loadings were 299,408 cars higher. The current report shows that miscellaneous freight totaled 184,831 cars, a decrease of 53,679 from the corresponding week last year; merchandise 188,512, decrease 19,747; grain and grain products 32,575, decrease 6,968; forest products 19,555, decrease 14,624; ore 3,469, decrease 1,636; coal 107,493, decrease 48,313; coke 5,452, decrease 3,785; live stock 21,051, decrease 3,784.

In the steel industry, likewise, it appears that no real seasonal expansion is taking place thus far, although improvement is hoped for later on. Reports from the Youngstown district said that steel mill operations have declined following the sharp rise in January although this lull is believed to be temporary. Some estimates placed current output as low as 20 per cent of capacity, compared with 30 to 35 per cent recently.

Estimates 27 Per Cent Output.

The American Metal Market estimated production for the whole country around 27 per cent of capacity this week, which is the same rate as reported last week. It adds that no strictly seasonal improvement has appeared with the exception of somewhat larger orders from the automobile industry. February, however, is expected to show some improvement. As for railroad buying, it argues that there will be only slow and moderate expansion because the railroads will need a considerable part of augmented revenues to meet fixed charges.

Merchandising is still in the doldrums, as may be judged by the first report this year by Sears, Roebuck & Co., largest of the mail order and chain store concerns. Sales for the first four weeks of the company's thirteen period year totaled $19,008,449, compared with $23,042,271 for the corresponding period in 1931. This was a decline of $4,033,822, or 17½ per cent. Naturally, this decline in dollar sales is partly attributable to lower prices, but they bear out a recent estimate by Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears-Roebuck, that a further decline is to be expected during the first half of this year.

Oil Output Rises.

A moderate increase in petroleum production took place last week, according to the American Petroleum institute. The daily average gross crude oil output was estimated at 2,170,800 barrels, an increase of 9,300 barrels a day over the preceding week. Production east of California expanded 14,800 barrels a day.

Refineries operated at 57.6 per cent of capacity, compared with 58.4 per cent in the previous week. Their stocks of gasoline totaled 40,746,000 barrels, an increase of 1,008,000 barrels for the week.

FURNITURE MART EARNINGS IN 1931 TOTAL $236,191

Net earnings of $236,191 are reported by the American Furniture Mart Building corporation for 1931 in the annual statement issued yesterday by V. L. Alward, president. Earnings fell short of dividend requirements on the preferred stock, on which payments were discontinued last June. In 1930 the company earned $343,277 or 20 cents a share on common. Preferred dividends paid totaled $130,102 compared with full year requirements of $258,314. Earned surplus at the close of the year stood at $547,532 against $468,443 at the end of 1930. The company accepted $32,500 preferred stock at par value in payment of rent during the year. President Alward points out that while operations reflect general business conditions the corporation through marked reduction in operating expenses earned its interest and sinking fund requirements by a comfortable margin.

Java to Reduce Sugar Crop in 1932 Fifty Pct.

SAMARANG, Java., Feb. 2.—(AP)—The 1932 Java sugar crop, it was learned today, will be reduced by 50 per cent. As a result an area of 90,000 hectares—222,390 acres—will not be planted and more than 50 factories will be closed.

Mexican Oil Production Declines 15 Pct. in 1931

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.—The 1931 petroleum production in Mexico declined about 15 per cent, figures from the petroleum department today disclosed. The production in 1931 was 33,038,855 barrels.

Estimate Wage Savings for Larger Roads

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 2.—The reduction of 10 per cent in railroad wages to Feb. 1 next, negotiated this week with the union forces, is widely regarded as the most helpful of a series of constructive developments in the railroad industry during the last three months.

Like several of these developments, including the various major revisions in rates, the effect on individual roads is difficult to compute very closely in dollars and cents, because of the rapidly shifting conditions of traffic. Itemized wage accounts are not readily available except for the roads as a whole. What the wage bill was in 1931 can only be approximated and what it will be for 1932 can hardly be guessed at this date.

Pennsy Chief Beneficiary.

Officials attempting to picture the advantage due from a 10 per cent wage slash content themselves with round figures in a range bracket providing plenty of lattitude, usually on the assumption that employment this year will be about on a level with that for 1931.

The chief beneficiary will be the Pennsylvania railroad, which has the largest pay roll. Estimates from semi-official quarters are that the road will save about $20,000,000 as a result of the 10 per cent cut, disregarding possible additions to working forces in conformity with the general agreement in Chicago and assuming a force about equal to that for last year. On 12,800,000 shares this would be equivalent to about $1.50 a share.

The New York Central's estimate is a potential saving of about $3.50 per share, or about $17,500,000. These and other estimates, some official and some only private, are shown below:

Santa Fe.	$7	$2.81	N Y Cent.	$7.5	$3.40

What Saving Means.

On the basis of 1931 results such savings would have meant for the Milwaukee, the Illinois Central, and the Chicago and North Western the difference between a deficit after charges and a small margin of coverage for bond interest.

Any substantial increase in traffic necessitating and warranting a large amount of additional maintenance work this year would subject the above estimates to further revision on the basis of the increased pay rolls.

Patrick H. Joyce, president of the Chicago Great Western railroad, stated yesterday that his line will use the estimated $500,000 it will save from the ten per cent wage reduction on maintenance of way. By doing this the road will keep men at work and aid supply houses through purchases, he said.

U. S. Envelope Co. Reduces Wages of All Employes

The United States Envelope company yesterday announced a general reduction of 10 per cent in the wages and salaries of all employés and officials. Between 250 and 300 employés at the Waukegan plant are affected by the move, which goes into effect at once. The notice which issued from the company's main office at Springfield, Mass., said that the company confined wage adjustments to the smallest possible margin in the last year but conditions in recent months have made a general cut necessary.

Railroad Has Profit in 1931 Against Loss in 1930

DAWES ELECTED PRESIDENT OF 2 BILLION BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—The board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation organized today, electing Charles G. Dawes as president and Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, as chairman of the board.

JOSEPH C. MASON.

An all day meeting is to be held tomorrow, at which applications for the first of the two billion dollars of loans which the board is authorized to grant to banks, railroads, business corporations, and agricultural associations will be considered. So far there have been applications for some 100 millions in loans.

List of Officers.

Immediately after the oath had been administered to the new officers the board held an executive session and elected the following officers in addition to Mr. Dawes and Mr. Meyer:

G. A. Marr of Salt Lake City, former general counsel of the War Finance corporation, general counsel.

The identity of corporations and banks, to which loans are made, will not be made public, officials said. Loans to railroads, however, will come to light since they are subject to approval by the interstate commerce commission.

Chicagoan Aids Dawes.

Joseph C. Mason of Chicago, former budget officer of the state of Illinois and former secretary to both Gov. Frank O. Lowden and Senator Charles S. Deneen, was officially named as assistant to Gen. Dawes.

The board is expected to make a request tomorrow on the treasury for purchases of its capital stock. The treasury is authorized to subscribe a maximum of $500,000,000 in capital and the entire amount will be called for within a short time it was indicated. Directors were unwilling to estimate the amount of loans which would be made eventually, but predicted that it would be necessary to issue debentures of the corporation to supplement the $500,000,000 from the treasury before the end of the fiscal year on June 30.

Details of the corporation's policy are yet to be worked out. These details include the methods of appraising assets upon which loans will be made, the schedule of interest rates and the class of banks and corporations to be the first recipients of credit aid.

U. S. STEEL EMPLOYES GIVEN CHANCE TO BUY STOCK AT $40 A SHARE

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Employés of the United States Steel corporation will be permitted to subscribe for the common stock this year at $40 a share, officials announced today. The stock closed on the New York Stock exchange at $39.37.

The corporation has set aside 200,000 shares to meet the subscriptions, this being the largest offering since the annual subscription plan has been in effect. The price is the lowest at which employés have been offered common stock since the annual offerings were inaugurated. Last year 100,000 shares were offered at $140 a share. The record high price for employés' subscriptions was $169 a share in 1930, which compared with $165 a share named for 1929 allotments.

It is understood that 65,233 workers took approximately 126,000 shares last year, while in 1930 the subscriptions totaled 98,266 shares.

Spanish Peseta Reaches Record Low Quotation

MADRID, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Spanish peseta today reached a record low point of 12.75 to the American dollar. The downturn was attributed to the budget deficit, reports of increased taxation, a probable government loan and the general depression brought about by the commercial situation.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES REACT AFTER RALLY

Reaction followed on the heels of Monday's rally yesterday, with stock prices on the Chicago exchange giving way on light trade. The professional element tired of the task of marking up prices when the public failed to respond.

Marshall Field common was a conspicuously weak spot, breaking through its previous bear market low to sell at 8¾ following the passing of the dividend. While the action was not unexpected, offerings in the stock increased substantially, with nearly 5,000 shares appearing on the tape. The final quotation on the stock of 9¼ represented a net loss of 1⅛.

Price changes in other shares were inconsequential. Monday's gains were erased but no important volume of selling appeared. Insull Utility debentures receded to 26½ and Middle West common was available a fraction below its previous price. Motor issues showed nominal losses.

Carson Pirie Will Open Branch in Des Moines

J. T. Pirie announced last night that Carson Pirie Scott & Co. will open a branch wholesale establishment in Des Moines, Ia., to handle floor coverings. Conrad Knoblach will be in charge. The company recently opened branches in St. Louis and Indianapolis and last spring it doubled the size of its New York City wholesale store. Other cities in which it has branches are Columbus, O., and Milwaukee. Mr. Pirie stated that the decision to open a branch in Des Moines was in line with the firm's policy of expanding during depression periods when advantageous arrangements can be made.

S. S. Kresge Reports 1931 Net Profit of $9,461,699

S. S. Kresge company's net profit for 1931 was $9,461,699 after charges, interest, depreciation and federal taxes, equal after 7 per cent dividends to $1.69 a share, par $10, on 5,517,829 shares of common stock. This compares with net income of $10,621,151, or $1.90 a common share, in 1930.

Japanese Silk and Bonds Dip, Money Gains

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Japanese currency, in terms of dollars, strengthened markedly in Wall street today, but Nippanese bonds were again depressed, and silk, Japan's principal commodity, declined sharply.

The Japanese yen rose more than a cent to around 36⅜ cents, falling back to 36.20, the closing quotation, or ⅞ cent higher. Chinese currency quotations were regarded as nominal by bankers, since there was little inclination to trade on either Shanghai or Hongkong.

Japanese Bonds Weak.

Japanese bonds generally added to their heavy declines of yesterday, but in the late trading several of the Nipponese issues staged a vigorous rally which recovered for several of them part of the day's losses and in a few instances small gains were registered. There was heavy trading in Japanese government 6½s, which descended to a new low of 73⅛ and then came back to close at 75½ for a net loss of 1⅜ points. The government 5½s actually showed a gain of half a point. Oriental Development 6s lost 3¾, and the 5½s advanced 1-3. Shinyetsu Electric 6½s were down 6, and Tokio City and Tokio Electric liens lost from 1 to 3 points. Yokohama City 6s advanced fractionally.

Raw silk futures dropped about 5 cents a pound, following a sharp break in Yokohama.

Japan Sells Cotton.

Japanese interests, recently the heaviest of the buyers in the cotton market, today turned sellers and prices broke sharply. With the switching of the trade position, May contracts declined to 6.69 cents a pound or around 90 cents a bale below yesterday's closing quotations. The general market closed with losses ranging from 85 cents to 95 cents a bale.

At the opening of the market approximately $1,000,000 worth of cotton was sold by brokers who handle business for Japanese clients. A reason for the selling was advanced by some dealers, who pointed out that the original operation is to sell Japanese currency when it is high and buy actual cotton in the south and, as a hedging measure, later to sell cotton futures to serve as protection until final disposition is made of the actual cotton.

International Bank Report.

BASEL, Switzerland, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The drop of the Japanese yen in the wake of far eastern events caused the only losses sustained by the Bank of International Settlements for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1932, its annual report will show. These losses were covered by other gains and a dividend of 6 per cent was assured, it was announced, since February and March financial figures will not change the situation materially.

Total business of the bank for the fiscal year shows an increase from 11,500,000 Swiss francs to 13,000,000. Transactions in pounds show a profit of 11,000,000 Swiss francs.

United Gas Improvement Earns $1.33 on Its Common

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 2.—The "war bride" hubbub on the stock exchange subsided today as suddenly as it had developed. With the news from the far east assuming a more pacific tenor, traders decided their excitement over the prospects of big profits from the shares of steel, powder, chemical and airplane companies in the way of government contracts was a bit premature and proceeded to wriggle out of their hasty commitments at whatever bargains they could obtain.

The result was a rather dispiriting collapse of the new bull movement which seemed to be getting under way yesterday. Quotations fell from 1 to 4 points, virtually erasing the gains run up in the preceding session. From the bear viewpoint the fresh turnabout revealed a significant absence of initiative on the buying side, which would normally be present were the constructive forces really confident of the position which they assumed at the opening of the new week.

Comfort for Bulls.

On the other hand the tapering off of activity as the list turned reactionary might readily be interpreted as offering a grain of comfort to the bull element, showing, as it did, a lack of any serious threat of renewed liquidation. There was no very high pressure in evidence in any quarter of the list and the total turnover fell nearly a half million shares below that of yesterday, amounting to only about 1,100,000 shares.

Outside interest continued nil. The small fry trader seems immune to all panaceas offered for the market's ailment these days. He is hopeful that the bankers may start something with the two billion dollar "dole" they are to receive through the new Reconstruction Finance corporation, but he has some "frozen assets" of his own to think about—with no prospect of government help—and the indications are that he is going to be very sure of himself before parting with any of them on another market swing. The Hoover moratorium rally of last spring is too vividly fresh in his memory.

Rails Are Quiet.

MAKE REPORTS ON 5 SHERIDAN TRUST ISSUES

Mailed to Bondholders Last Night.

BY AL CHASE.

Reports on several more defaulted bond issues were mailed last night by the bondholders' committee of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank to holders of securities deposited with the Chicago Title and Trust company, according to Arthur M. Wirtz, chairman of the committee. The other members of the committee are: John P. Hooker, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Ernest Ridgeway, receiver for the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank; William Ray Prince, August Torpe Jr., and O. P. Curran Jr.

JOHN P. HOOKER. [Wallinger Photo.]

The properties are the Warner-Lincoln apartments, the Virginian apartments, the Audrey apartments, the Keystone Motor Sales building, and the Leland-Malden apartments. The total amount of bonds issued against these properties was $298,000. This has been reduced to $282,500. All were underwritten by the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank.

The Warner-Lincoln apartments, at the southwest corner of Warner avenue and Lincoln street, were financed by a $45,000, 6 per cent bond issue now reduced to $44,000. Interest was defaulted on May 16, 1931. Principal payment of $7,000 was previously defaulted. Foreclosure was instituted and the Cook County Trust company was made receiver. The operating statement to date follows:

1931.	Rental income.	Op. exp.	Net.
Aug.	$ 581.00	$ 28.84	$ 552.16
Sept.	699.40	271.92	427.48
Oct.	597.50	146.92	450.58
Nov.	637.34	272.93	384.41
Dec.	596.00	105.34	490.66
Total	$3,111.24	$825.95	$2,285.29
Less general taxes for 1929			993.30
Cash on hand, Jan. 1, 1932			$1,291.99

"Title is somewhat involved, with no mechanic's liens, one junior mortgage, and several judgments," said Mr. Wirtz. "As of Jan. 1, 1932, there were on deposit with the bondholders' protective committee $38,300 worth of bonds out of a total of $44,000. Foreclosure suit probably will be proved up shortly and it is the hope of the committee that all bonds will be on deposit by that time. The property was 93 per cent rented on the first of the year."

Audrey Apartments.

The original issue on the Audrey apartments, at the southwest corner of Kedzie and Ardmore avenues, was $53,000, at 6 per cent, since reduced to $51,500 on Jan. 1, 1931, when default occurred in prepayment. A foreclosure suit was filed and bonds called for deposit. An assignment of rents was obtained by the bank and funds accumulated toward payment of defaulted principal, thus reducing the outstanding amount to $50,500. A building receivership, with its resulting expense, was thus avoided.

Operating statement to date is:

1931.	Rental income.	Op. exp.	Net.
July	$ 563.50	$ 199.68	$ 363.82
Aug.	563.50	229.60	333.90
Sept.	563.50	250.10	313.40
Oct.	563.50	122.55	441.15
Nov.	563.50	197.54	365.96
Dec.	473.50	257.48	216.02
Total	$3,291.00	$1,256.75	$2,034.25
Cash on hand, Jan. 1, 1932			2,034.25

Practically all bonds have been deposited, it is stated, and the property was 81 per cent rented on Jan. 1, 1932. The building contains twelve four room flats, two stores, and a six car garage. The attitude of the owner is reported as one of close cooperation.

Keystone Motor Sales Building.

The Keystone Motor Sales building, at 4319-27 North Kedzie avenue, occupies a lot 100x125, and was financed by a $30,000, 7 per cent bond issue now reduced to $22,500. Interest defaulted on Dec. 30, 1930. Principal defaulted on June 30, 1930. The building was rented for only one month between July and December, 1931, at $100. The operating expenses were $67.65, so cash on hand the first of this year was only $32.35, according to the Cook County Trust company, receiver. The building is vacant.

The Virginian apartments, at 7632-38 North Marshfield avenue, were 83 per cent rented on Jan. 1, 1932. Rents were assigned to the Sheridan Trust, so a receivership was avoided. These totaled $5,775 for approximately seven months, with operating expenses $2,898. Deducting $2,318 for bond interest payment there is reported $558 cash on hand last week. The original bond issue was $80,000, at 6 per cent, now reduced to $77,500.

The original $90,000 bond issue of the Leland-Malden apartments, at the southwest corner of Leland avenue and Malden street, has been reduced to $88,000. The property was leased to one tenant and the rental income from April to and including part of December, 1931, was $10,504. The operating expenses totaled $2,045. After deducting the general taxes for 1929 there was reported $6,007 cash on hand on Dec. 22, 1931. The Straus National bank is receiver. The building contains forty suites of two rooms each.

NAME GROUPS TO DEVELOP STATE HOUSING PLANS

Miss Edith Abbott Heads Income Committee.

Four subcommittees were appointed yesterday at a meeting of the Illinois housing commission to carry forward the tentative program adopted by the commission. One of these groups, of which Miss Edith Abbott of the University of Chicago is chairman, will consider the income available for housing purposes, industrial and commercial decentralization, and the effect of new housing for lower income classes on other residential districts. Paul Douglas, also of the University of Chicago, and Alfred K. Stern, chairman of the Illinois housing commission, are members of Miss Abbott's committee.

MISS EDITH ABBOTT.

The committee on standards for housing, which will attempt to determine minimum standards of structure, design, equipment of houses, and of neighborhood facilities, consists of Ernest Grunsfeld, chairman; R. C. Wieboldt, and Charles Duke.

George Richardson, a trustee of the Marshall Field estate, was named as chairman of the committee on the problems of land and finance. The other members are Wirt Wright, Joseph K. Brittain, Alfred Stern, and Leonard Rieser.

Brownlow Heads Committee.

The policy of governmental bodies toward housing will be studied by a committee headed by Louis Brownlow and with Herbert B. White and Arthur J. Todd as members.

Three of the committees will meet within the coming week in order to be able to report definite progress at the next meeting of the commission on March 7.

The other two major divisions of the Illinois housing commission are an investigation of present housing in Illinois and a consideration of housing as a factor in social and economic progress. No subcommittees were designated for these sections of the work and they will be the concern of the entire commission, according to Coleman Woodbury, executive secretary.

MARKET LOSES ITS INTEREST IN WAR BRIDES

War Shares Participate in General Decline.

strengthen the shares of the carrier group, but today's development indicated pretty conclusively that demand for the shares is not so eager as it might be. The railroads still have bus competition and other problems to deal with and many of the boys on the side lines just now hail from the well known state of Missouri. Not even a war or the rumors of war can stampede them out of their "fixed positions," apparently.

And so the market continues the exclusively professional affair that it has been for these many weeks. The proceedings hold to the same dreary routine, bobbing up and down and drifting steadily lower and lower. Group movements are growing more and more difficult to distinguish and the influences that usually count as market factors more and more impotent. Even the "war brides" of yesterday are content to drift along with other departments and the losses among them were no greater nor less than the average mill run for the entire list.

Auburn in Sharp Drop.

Thus, Dupont lost only 2 points—about the size of its gain in the previous session; Atlas powder dropped 1¾, U. S. Steel, 1⅝; Bethlehem, 1, and Savage Arms only a small fraction.

The sharpest loss of the day was suffered by Auburn Auto, which dropped 7½ points after topping yesterday's closing figure by some 3 points in the early dealings. Atchison led the rails down with a 4 point decline, with Union Pacific playing the rôle of runner up with a drop of 3½. Losses elsewhere in the group averaged about 1 to 2 points.

Some of the preferred again sold off rather easily, among them Public Service of New Jersey with a drop of 4¼, Rock Island 2⅞, and Solvay 2 points.

A. P. Thom Urges Repeal of Rail Recapture Clause

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—(AP)—A representative of the Association of Railway Executives today asked repeal of the transportation law provision directing the recapture of railroad excess earnings. Alfred P. Thom, counsel and spokesman for the association, told the house interstate commerce committee he favored retroactive repeal of the recapture clause under which it is estimated $378,000,000 is owed the interstate commerce commission by railroads. Repeal of the recapture provision has also been urged by the commission.

WHEAT PRICES DECLINE AS WAR TENSION ABATES

Buying Against Bids Helps Check Recession.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Less warlike news from the far east and the weakness in the stock market caused a rather radical change in sentiment yesterday regarding the probable trend of the price of wheat in the immediate future. Sufficient scattered commission house and local selling developed to carry the market off ¾@1⅛c from Monday's finish, with the close within a fraction of the bottom. Net losses were ¾c, with March at 56⅜c; May, 59¼@59⅜c, and July, 59⅝@59¾c.

Buying against bids was a factor in checking the decline in wheat. Speculative interest in the market both here and abroad was regarded as below normal, and under such conditions erratic price fluctuations are generally anticipated by the trade, as the market quickly passes from an overbought to an oversold condition or the reverse. Reports from various parts of the winter wheat belt suggested that there had been relatively little severe damage to the crop so far.

Trades Go Slow.

For the time being the average trader is rather inclined to go slow on either side of the market pending the definite development of fresh influences. Bearish statistics have been before the trade for some time past and seem to have lost a considerable part of their influence, especially when the market has had a fair decline. There is nothing, however, as many see it, except the prospective crop scare and the price level on which to base purchases. The result has been about an even balance between bullish and bearish sentiment, with little trade on either side.

The foreign demand for cash wheat was much less active yesterday, although France was again credited with making purchases. Total sales in all positions, however, were estimated at only 250,000 bu. Liverpool felt the effect of Argentine hedging pressure and closed ⅝@½c per bu lower, with May at 55¾c, while Winnipeg was off ⅝@½c, with May at 62⅞c in Canadian funds. The latter were around 13 per cent discount. Buenos Aires surprised the trade by rallying sharply after an early break and closed unchanged to ⅛c lower, with March at 42¾c.

Less Pressure on Corn.

Buying of corn futures early by a local professional gave the market an advance of ⅛@⅜ over Monday's finish, but the buying quickly spent itself and a reaction followed to below the previous day's close. Fair support was in evidence on the decline, but the finish was at net losses of ⅛@⅜c, with March, 37⅜; May, 40½@40⅝c, and July, 42⅜c at the last. The country was willing to sell cash corn to arrive again, but buyers were less disposed to bid up to secure the grain and only 47,000 bu were booked. Shipping sales aggregated 32,000 bu.

An official Argentine government report said the condition of the new corn crop in that country was much less favorable than last year when over 400,000,000 bu were harvested, a record yield. Acreage this season is placed at 14,462,000, compared with 11,734,000 acres harvested in 1931. The English trade was inclined to be skeptical regarding the report. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to ⅛c lower, with March at 27¼c.

Comparatively little change is shown in the oats and rye situation from day to day and, with the lack of stimulating influences either way, both grains continue to be dominated by the action of either wheat or corn. Oats closed ¼c lower with May, 25⅞@26c, and July, 25⅝c, while rye was off ½@⅝c with May, 46⅜c, and July, 47⅜c.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP)—New low records were established in the raw sugar market today when sales of 12,000 bags of Porto Rican for February arrival were confirmed at 3.02c to local refiners. This represented a decline of 2 points from the previous close.

Sugar futures were irregular most of the day owing to conflicting reports in regard to the crop restriction program, but after declining to new low records on some positions from an early advance, prices firmed up again and closed with net gains of 1 to 2 points on news that Java planters were reducing their crop. Approximate sales, 21,740 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.

WOOL.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(AP)—At the wool auction sales today, the closing of the first series, 11,008 bales were offered, of which 9,367 were sold. Today's session was well attended and competition was keen throughout. An excellent selection of merinos and crossbreds were offered and fine sorts closed 5 to 7½ per cent higher, while others were at par. Fine crossbreds were 5 per cent dearer, and capes 5 to 7½ per cent higher. Punta Arenas closed at par, all compared with the closing prices of the last series. The home trade bought 65,500 bales, the continent 50,000 and Pan-America about 1,000; 62,000 bales being held over.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet today, closing 2 to 4 points lower on sales of only 4 contracts or 600 barrels.

Weakness of lard, prospects of lower tallow prices and easiness to cotton and grains upset the market. Crude oil was quoted at 3¼ bid in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 4.00c; March, 4.42c; May, 4.54c; July, 4.65c; Sept., 4.77c.

There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract with closing prices as follows: spot, 4.00c; March, 4.20c; May, 4.35c; July, 4.50c; Sept., 4.60c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Action of the wheat market has been a decided disappointment to traders who expected that the crop scare would bring in sufficient new buying to lift the market out of the rut. Prices are holding around the 60c level for May, and there is a fair business in changing from May to July and July to September. Sentiment in some quarters is bullish, but no headway is being made.

Crop reports so far suggest no serious damage to wheat except possibly in a few sections, and until there are more constructive influences the disposition is to go slow on the buying side. It was noticeable that a brokerage house which was a heavy seller of deferred futures a few days ago was a conspicious buyer a good part of the day.

Liverpool spot wheat is higher than a week ago and there is said to be more evidence of a few foreign countries taking hold of the market, with Italy and Germany leading. While most traders are advising purchases on breaks, they do not expect the market to have more than a moderate upturn.

Country holders of cash corn are asking more than the market for the bulk of their grain and are not making large sales, although they are of sufficient size to keep traders in futures moderately bearish. Eastern consumptive demand remains disappointingly small. The only feature to the speculative trade is the selling of corn and buying of wheat by spreaders.

SHEEP—Fed western lambs	$6.00@6.85
One month ago	5.75@6.50
One year ago	7.50@8.75
Top yesterday, $6.85; average, $6.15.

The hog market yesterday displayed its weak side when buyers succeeded in putting prices under pressure despite the substantial decrease in receipts. Quotations kept sliding all day and were still on the downgrade as the session closed. The extreme top slipped back 10c, at $4.25, while the general average lost 10c at $3.90.

The performance of the hog market proved sadly disappointing to the bullish side of the trade which had confidently expected a good strong market in view of the small available supplies at all points and particularly since reports are more encouraging from the wholesale trade lately. Normally, small local houses would be eager buyers on the present basis, but the trade's assumption that snow bound supplies may pile up later in the week is curbing buying.

Little Change in Futures.

There was little change in the futures trade yesterday. May contracts were offered at $5.50 and bid $4.75, while March hogs could be bought at $5.00 and carried bids of $4.25. February contracts were offered at $4.50 and bid $4.25.

Yesterday's cattle receipts were augmented by several thousand head of "stale" cattle carried over from Monday's unsatisfactory trade, and when a generous supply was estimated for today the market finished in a semi-demoralized condition. Except for a few high quality steers there was no dependable outlet yesterday and at the close of the session there was a greater accumulation than on Monday's close.

The stagnant condition of the eastern meat trade has effectively checked shipping demand here. The market has lost most of last week's 50@75c advance and even sharper cuts were cited in some sales. A big share of the day's offerings went over the scales at $5.00@7.50, good fleshy kinds at the outside figure, while only scattered loads sold at $8.00 and above. Choice 1,198@1,354 lb steers topped the list at $9.00.

Lambs Up 25@50c.

A buying wave swept through the sheep house yesterday and drove prices up 25@50c. Easetern houses were paying up to $6.85 for their selections on the buoyant closing trade, while packers bought freely at $6.50@6.65. Receipts at 13,000 were smallest for Tuesday, with two exceptions, since last July and below normal for this time of the year. The shortage at other western markets brought large local houses into the bidding earlier yesterday and the clearance was better than usual.

WARNER BROS. REPORT QUARTER LOSS OF $1,848,868

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 2.—Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., reported consolidated net loss of $1,848,868 for the November quarter after all charges and depreciation. This compares with net income of $1,576,421 for the corresponding three months of 1930, equal after preferred dividends to 39 cents a share on 3,767,593 no par common shares.

The funded debt of the company was reduced by $3,600,000 during the 1931 period as a result of the retirement of that amount of optional 6 per cent convertible debentures, series due 1931, of which $1,287,500 is in anticipation of annual purchase fund requirements due Aug. 1, 1932.

The company reported that net loss for the November quarter would amount to $28,704 after allowing for a profit of $1,881,927 arising from the retirement of debentures and subsidiaries, funded indebtedness, etc.

Current assets as of Nov. 28 were $23,742,954, compared with $35,680,869 on Nov. 29, 1930, and current liabilities $12,420,319, against $18,403,715, leaving net working capital of $11,322,635, compared with $17,277,154.

Why pay more than Household's low rate On loans?

The nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small loan law. We established this low rate in 1928 and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

FOR EXAMPLE:
The average monthly cost of a $200 loan repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.

GET THE COST IN DOLLARS BEFORE YOU BORROW.
